Railroads Cancel Cuts For 930,000, Avert Strike

Follow Board Advice Roosevelt Pleased Program Mapped Parley Set Monday

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—The Nation's major railroads canceled an order for a 15 per cent wage cut for approximately 930,000 employes today in the hope their action would expedite Government aid.

The decision forestalled a strike of the workers and cleared the way for drafting legislation to help the carriers.

Withdrawal of th pay reduction notice was recommended last Saturday by President Roosevelt's fact-finding board.

J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, and George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association, conferred with Mr. Roosevelt Monday. They announced then he had promised to support a legislative program to aid the rail lines and had expressed confidence an informal committee of six, representing labor and management, could present one to the next Congress.

Alluding to these developments, Pelley informed President Roosevelt by telegram today that "the railroads are taking this action not because they agree with the conclusions reached by the fact-finding board, but because they recognize the gravity of the situation and because they hope that out of it will come, through the co-operation of all concerned, a sounder and more equitable transportation policy."

(At Hyde Park, President Roosevelt expressed gratification at the announcement of the railroads and he reiterated the hope that a "constructive" railway rehabilitation program would be enacted at the next session of Congress.

("Everybody in the Nation is happy that the railroads will withdraw the notices of wage reductions," he said in a formal statement.

("I join with railroad management and railroad employes in hoping that we can develop and put through a constructive program of legislation at the next session of Congress.")

The association's legislative committee planned to meet in Washington tomorrow to start work on a remedial legislative program. The members are Carl R. Gray, vice chairman of the Union Pocific Railroad; E. E. Norris, president of the Southern Railway, and M. W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Earlier in the week, Pelley mentioned a 6-point program fostered by the association. It included revision of the Interstate Commerce Commission's rate-making procedure, low-rate Government loans, abolition of reduced Government freight rates, repeal of the long and short haul rate and new regulation of water transportation.

The association's general counsel, R. V. Fletcher, indicated the roads might seek also to work out their own consolidations. He said:

"We want to be released from compulsion and to be free to devise our own individual plans of consolidation.

In a radio address later, Pelley stated:

"The immediate plans are for a joint committee of management and labor to get together with the President's fact-finding board and work out a program."

Labor conferees will be Harrison; D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and B. M. Jewell, president of the railway employes department of the American Federation of Labor.

Assassin Stalking Greek King Stabs London Doctor in 'Error'

By the United Press.

London (Saturday), Nov. 5.—The Daily Mail said today an unknown man stabbed Dr. Sydney G. MacDonald, widely known London surgeon, on Tuesday night and that inspectors of Scotland Yard are working on a theory the attack was intended for King George of Greece, who is in London on a holiday.

GEORGE II OF GREECE

Dr. MacDonald, who is recovering, bears a striking resemblance to the Greek ruler.

The King has been in London for some time. He is traveling incog..ito.

The Daily Mail said that the King was staying at Brown's Hotel in Dover street, a minute's walk from Bond street, and that it was believed the assailant planned to kill him as he returned to his apartment from dinner.

The physician, according to the newspaper, hurried to his apartment after he was attacked and was found to have a "serious knife wound" beneath his right shoulder blade.

The Daily Mail said Dr. MacDonald had been dining at the Ritz Hotel and was walking up Bond street at 10:10 p. m. He was about to hail a taxicab when a man walked up to him, murmured something unintelligible, and then plunged a knife in his back.

D. C. Man Gives Eye in Vain To Restore Sight of 4 People

A dramatic attempt to save the eyesight of as many as four persons in New York City by transplantation of a cornea donated by a Washington man suffered the anticlimax of defeat yesterday.

The disappointing denouement did not become known here until late yesterday, though it was on Wednesday that the eye, extracted from the socket of a middle-aged Washingtonian, was rushed to New York by plane.

Dr. Ramon Castroviejo, whose success in restoring vision by transplantation of the cornea, or "optical window," has won him international acclaim, yesterday informed The Post that the contribution, unfortunately, was unsuitable.

"I found that the cornea had been injured at some time in the past. It is imperative that only sound, healthy material be used in this type of work," he told The Post by long distance telephone.

The case had its origin when a Washington railroad worker suffered the penetration of a steel fragment into his eyeball. The sliver did not damage the cornea, however, Dr. Castroviejo expressing the belief that the corneal injury he discovered occurred previously.

Since the fragment had done irreparable damage to the retina, destroying the sight beyond any hope of cure, removal of the eyeball was held necessary for protection of the good eye, which otherwise might have become affected.

Dr. L. Conner Moss performed the operation last Wednesday at Episcopal Eye, Ear and Nose and Throat

Actress Denies 'Betrothal' To Hitler on Arrival in U. S.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 4.—Fraulein Leni Reifenstahl, film actress and director, frequently referred to as one of Adolf Hitler's few women friends, arrived today on the Europa with a laughing denial there was anything romantic about their friendship.

Leni Riefenstahl

"I read that since many years," she said. "But to me it is not humor. It is because I work in the films and in order to do that I have to see Hitler sometimes.

"Hitler is not difficult to see in Germany. Everybody sees him. I have known him since 1932, a year before he became chancellor. He saw one of my pictures—"Blue Lights"—and he liked it and I met him."

Fraulein Reifenstahl was here on a holiday, she said, and her visit had nothing to do with the American showing of her, 1,200,000-foot film of the 1936 Olympics, although she would be happy to have it shown here.

She last saw Hitler in June at an art festival in Munich, but that business about her betrothal to Der Fuehrer—it is to laugh, Fraulein Riefenstahl said. And again it is to laugh at the story she has Jewish blood. And once more it is to laugh that she is a plumber's daughter. Her father manufactured central heating plants, she said.

Sane Motorists to Get Awards For Safe, Courteous Driving

By Howard F. Wentworth.

A new attack on Washington's traffic safety problem will be inaugurated Monday when The Washington Post and Metropolitan Police Department join with the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association to reward acts of safe driving on District streets.

Designed to stimulate habits of caution and courtesy among motorists, the program will provide an avenue of recognition for the legion of little-publicized drivers who willingly co-operate with safety efforts by rigid compliance with rules and regulations.

Although traffic offenders will not be overlooked in the search for cautious drivers, a uniformed policeman and a Post reporter—touring city streets in an unidentified car—will be on the alert for instances of driving care and common courtesy.

Deserving drivers will be presented with a "Certificate of Service to Public Safety."

When a driver is seen complying with some rule conducive of public safety, the patrol car will pull alongside. The motorist will be thanked for his co-operation in behalf of the Police Department and the "public safety award" presented.

The proposed plan to encourage better observance of traffic laws has been approved by the District Commissioners. It was first studied by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, and Traffic Director

Demoted Police Lieut. Kelley Jailed for Alimony Arrears

Patrolman James J. Kelley, of Tenth Precinct, until last September 28 a lieutenant of police, was ordered jailed yesterday by Justice Jennings Bailey until he pays $120 back alimony.

JAMES KELLY

Kelley also faces trial before the Police Trial Board on charges of being absent without leave brought September 27 by Inspector L. I. H. Edwards. He was on duty yesterday.

Mrs. Virginia E. Kelley, of 132 Twelfth street northeast, sued for divorce March 2, 1938, charging cruelty. She was awarded temporary alimony.

Until his demotion to a beat, Kelley was in charge of WPDW, Washington police radio station, which was built under his direction. He drew plans for the station and installed the station in 1930, and so efficient was his work that he was credited by Inspector Edwards with saving the District nearly $100,000 by his knowledge and ability to manufacture transmitting and receiving equipment.

He was so highly regarded that a few months ago Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, said he planned to have Congress designate him a captain. Joining the force September 24, 1921, he was made detective sergeant July 1, 1931 and acting lieutenant February 16, 1933.

Near Farmville, Va., Lieut. Kelley was injured in an automobile accident in March, 1935, in which Albert Sardo, Washington undertaker was killed. Friends said he never completely recovered from these injuries.

America's Attitude

By William V. Nesslv.

The United States last night served notice that it would not recognize any denunciation by Japan of the Nine-Power Pact guaranteeing China's territorial integrity and the "open door" policy in that country.

It made clear, also, that it will not accept Japan's proposed formation of an Asiatic bloc, consisting of China, Japan and Manchukuo, if the project contravenes existing treaties, "accepted principles of international law" or "principles of fair dealing and fair play between and among nations."

Statement Issued

The State Department late yesterday issued a statement saying:

"In response to requests by the press for comments on the statement issued by the Japanese government in regard to the situation in the Far East, the Secretary of State said that he felt it very important to view the situation in accurate and comprehensive perspective.

"The attitude of the United States and the position of the American Government in relations both with China and with Japan, as with other countries, are, he said, governed and guided by the generally accepted of international law, by the provisions of treaties to which the United States and numerous countries—among them China and Japan—are parties, and by principles of fair dealing and fair play between and among nations.

British Airliner Crashes, Burns in Take-Off; 14 Killed

St. Helier, Jersey, Channel Islands, Nov. 4 (AP).—The four-engined De Havilland airliner St. Catherine's Bay caught fire, crashed into a field and then exploded just after taking off for Southampton today, killing 14 persons. There were no Americans on the plane.

The dead included all aboard, four of them women and one a baby, and a farm worker who was crushed to death as the big craft fell directly on him. Investigators tonight had failed to determine the cause.

The accident occurred in a thick mist just two minutes after the take-off for Southampton, 125 miles over water from this island. The plane was on the regular Jersey-Southampton run.

U. S. to Open Arms Plants For Defense

Roosevelt Tells Plan Factories Long Closed Purpose Kept Secret Will Speed Warships

By the Associated Press.

The magnitude of the United States' effort to rearm swiftly in a troubled world was emphasized yesterday with disclosures that long-unused arms plants are to be reopened and steps taken to cut down delays in construction of warships.

President Roosevelt, at Hyde Park, said a $22,000,000 World War ordnance plant at South Charleston, W. Va., would be reopened and devoted to a secret purpose, and that the New Orleans Navy Yard would be used again after being inoperative since 1921.

These steps, Mr. Roosevelt said, are part of a general program of utilizing Government-owned land and plants now closed, instead of buying private property for the rearmament program. This, he said, would mean a large saving.

Would Hasten Work

Mr. Roosevelt said the Government was striving to reduce the time that elapses between appropriations for warships and their completion. A major reason for these delays, he said, is the fact that designs often change during the construction of ships. His remarks pertained to reports the Navy faced further delays because Navy officials are split on matters of design.

Earlier, the Navy disclosed the transfer of two officers on its key board of inspection and survey, but denied the transfers were due to any criticism the two men had made of ship designs.

The two officers are Rear Admiral H. L. Brinser, board president who is to be transferred to the Navy's General Board; and Capt. Joseph S. Evans, who has been ordered to Schenectady, N. Y., where an electrical plant is turning out naval equipment.

Plant Idle 18 Years

The ordnance plant at South Charleston has been idle for 13 years. Built to make armor plate, gun forgings and projectiles in the World War, it was completed too late to figure materially in that conflict. A bill to sell it was offered at the last session of Congress.

President Roosevelt said the plant was not needed as a yardstick to check private concerns' prices on armor plate, because it was easy for the Government to determine whether such prices were fair. He declined to say what the plant would be used for.

The New Orleans Naval Station represents an investment carried on naval records at $4,669,941. Representative Fernandez (Democrat), Louisiana, and other members of the Louisiana Congressional delegation have suggested repeatedly that it be used for torpedo production or as a repair plant for destroyers and submarines.

The moves disclosed yesterday fitted in with other efforts to gear Navy expansion to higher speeds. A World War torpedo factory at Alexandria, Va., already is being fitted to assist a Newport, R. I., plant in the production of underwater projectiles for submarines.

Grid Star Quits Cult to Return To Dartmouth

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 4 (AP).—Harrington Gates, 24-year-old erstwhile halfback of Dartmouth football team, returned to school today after a five-day sojourn with the religious cult known as the "Holy Ghost and Us" society.

"I've come back for good," he said.

Clad in a football sweater, Gates was driven directly to his college lodging house by Joseph Holland, a member of the cult and his host during the past week at the New Boston, N. H., turkey farm, headquarters of the religious group.

Holland, wearing dark glasses, refused to talk with reporters.

Roosevelt Urges Votes For Lehman, Wagner, Warns of 'Tory' Threat

Dewey Found Gaining Lehman 8-5 Favorite But Odds Go Down New Yorkers Cynical

By Sidney Olson.
A Staff Correspondent.

New York, Nov. 4.—Galahad has been a good name for some 13 centuries now, but no one ever did more with it in a few weeks than a slim young man with jug ears and a bushy mustache who is now running like an electric rabbit for the Governorship of New York State.

Thomas E. Dewey, the 36-year-old Owosso, Mich., Galahad, is smiting the "enemy" hip and thigh these days from every podium that is momentarily unoccupied.

Considered coldly, it is a matter of great wonder, for this handsome young man is making a political miracle come to pass.

Anything Can Happen

With every ounce of power, prestige and pap that 16 years of complete mastery of the public trough can summon, the Democrats are being forced beyond every former limit to beat this untried, inexperienced, bright-eyed young man whom the Democrats have bitterly named "the Boy Scout."

But jam your hat down over your ears Tuesday night, because anything can happen up here. What New York calls "smart money" is 8 to 5 tonight on Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, the Democratic incumbent, to repeat. Further, there is practically no Republican money in sight.

But that isn't the whole picture. Unless all signs fail there is a terrific groundswell of public opinion here which has scarcely made itself felt as yet, but which is timing itself for election day, which is when the score really counts.

Lehman Odds Go Down

Already evidences of this groundswell have driven Lehman odds down point after point. Almost daily the most enthusiastic Democratic leaders have revised their victory estimates significantly downward. Leaders who predicted Lehman by 300,000 votes two weeks ago were down to 150,000 Monday and are saying 100,000 tonight.

The magic of a Galahad is doing it. This Dewey is no politician, and that's supposed to hurt him. But it's been hurting him the way it did W. Lee O'Daniel, the hill billy Texas flour salesman who romped in because he wasn't a politician. In short, the people love it. He makes mistakes every day, and they love it. He has pulled political boners that have made the eyeballs of veteran politicians roll with horror back into frontal sinuses, and the public flocks up to him trying to tear buttons off his coat to mount on the mantel.

Against Dewey is practically every factor that an observer can count up. For him are only those dangerous intangibles that so often fave tripped up the factual analysis: The sentiment for a change that has so many times upset reigning American politics; the colorful flair and vigorous bounce of a young man with big new promises and a supremely engaging manner; the belief that perhaps the New Deal is not all that it's been cracked up to be—emotions, impulses, votes.

Every veteran political observer in New York is now predicting a very narrow victory for Gov.

Highlights in Talk By Roosevelt

The New Deal . . . does not wish to run or manage any part of our economic machine which private enterprise can run and keep running . . . But when an abuse interferes with the ability of private enterprise to keep the national conveyor belt moving, government has a responsibility to eliminate that abuse.

• • • •

We do not assume for a minute that all we have done is right or all that we have done has been successful, but our economic and social program of the past five and a half years has definitely given to the United States a more stable and less artificial prosperity than any other nation in the world has enjoyed.

• • • •

But if there should be any weakening of the power of a liberal government next Tuesday, it would resurrect false hopes on the part of some business men, now beginning to change antiquated ideas, that if they can hold out a little longer no adaptation to change will be necessary.

• • • •

At a critical moment in the world's history we cannot take the risk of supplanting seasoned leaders like Gov. Lehman with men, no matter how sincere, who have yet to win their spurs or prove what they really know or where they really stand in the fight for social justice.

Roosevelt Speaks

By the United Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 4.—President Roosevelt tonight called on the Nation to preserve the social and economic gains of liberalism in next Tuesday's elections.

Speaking from the library of his Hyde Park home, the Chief Executive reminded American citizens of "terrorism and intolerance" in other lands and warned that unless democracy "moves forward as a living force" fascism and communism will grow in strength.

In his first fireside chat in many months Mr. Roosevelt traced the record of his Administration, pledged noninterference with private enterprise provided abuses are eliminated, and finally appealed for the election of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York.

Doesn't Mention Dewey

Without mentioning Thomas Dewey, Republican opponent of Lehman by name, the President inferentially pointed to his youth, observing that "governing the State of New York requires the skill that comes from long experience in public affairs."

The major part of the address, however, was given over largely to a philosophic and comparative discussion of government.

He said that "in these tense and dangerous situations in the world democracy will save itself with the average man and woman by proving itself worth saving."

"Realistic Necessity"

"Too many of those who prate about saving democracy," he said, "are really only interested in saving things as they were. Democracy should concern itself also with things as they ought to be."

"I am not talking mere idealism," he asserted, "I am pressing realistic necessity."

He continued: "I reject the merely negative purposes proposed by old-line Republicans and Communists, alike—for they are people whose only purpose is to survive against any other Fascist threat than their own.

"As of today, Fascism and Communism—and old-line Tory Republicans—are not threats to the continuation of our form of government. But I venture the challenging statement that if American democracy ceases to move forward as a living force, seeking day and night by peaceful means to better the lot of our citizens, Fascism, Communism, aided, unconsciously

Nice Pledges D.C.-Baltimore Speed Highway

20-Minute Trip Is Aim Would Bar Traffic Lights Toll Bridge Proposed

By Edward T. Folliard
A Staff Correspondent.

Baltimore, Nov. 4.—A new high-speed boulevard between Washington and Baltimore, devoid of traffic lights and cross roads, over which the motorist would travel betwen the two cities in 20 minutes, was promised here tonight by Gov. Nice in a radio spech.

He said the highway, leaving Washington, would follow the roadbed of the old W. B. & A. electric line and, reaching Baltimore, be carried over the Patapsco River by a proposed $10,000,000 toll bridge. Then it would follow Route 40 to Philadelphia.

Gov. Nice outlined his plans in a re-election campaign speech, and they are thus subject to his fortunes at the polls next Tuesday. Even so, an alternate for the now highly congested Washington-Baltimore boulevard seems certain, regardless of who occupies the Governor's mansion at Annapolis.

"The new road to Washington, as I saw the plans and drawings this afternoon," said Gov. Nice, "is in keeping with the modern idea of road construction. It will run in a straight line, from the outskirts

Maryland Will Vote Tuesday On Legalization of Lotteries

In the Free State of Maryland, where individual rights are held in historic esteem, voters Tuesday will decide whether they want to be the first in the Nation to legalize lotteries as a means of raising needed revenue.

As the laws are today, no State in the Union officially approves lotteries—and in only rare and isolated instances have the people ever been permitted to vote on the question directly.

Although various moves toward legalization have been made in Maryland over a period of years, this is the first time the question has attained a direct vote status.

It was put on the ballot by vote of the Legislature whose members saw it as a means of raising funds "if the emergency should arise" and many of whom argued that since "chance-taking" is something that prohibiting laws do not stop, the State should take some move toward regulating it and benefiting from it.

If the constitutional amendment is voted in Tuesday, code restrictions against lotteries still will remain on the Maryland books. They, however, can be removed quickly by the Legislature when the restrictions in the constitution are removed.

Political leaders yesterday agreed that there is an "even chance" the people will vote to make legalization possible. Although Gov. Nice has declared himself "unalterably opposed to forming a partnership with gambling," the question has raised little fire and has not become a major political issue.

"I have found a good deal of sentiment against it out in the State," Gov. Nice told The Post

Board Delays Survey for Montgomery

Democrats Blamed 'Politics' Charged Certificates Awarded

Montgomery County Bureau of the Post, 9213 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone SHepherd 4200.

Montgomery County's Board of Commissioners again split sharply along party lines yesterday when, in a five-minute special meeting, it voted 3-to-2 to again postpone action on a proposal of the Brookings Institution to make a survey of the county government for $5,000.

Frank H. Karn and Paul M. Coughlan, Republicans, voted to award a contract to the Brookings Institution immediately, while the motion to postpone action was backed by Democrats, Robert D. Hagner, Richard H. Lansdale and Clay Plummer.

Both sides had prepared statements for release before the meeting began, and were handing them out to newspaper reporters almost before the roll call on the vote was completed.

The statement signed by the three Democrats indicated favorable action on the Brookings proposal will be taken later. After pointing out that the offer is good for 30 days, the joint statement said "Shortly after the election and well within the 30-day period of the offer, we have every intention of arriving at a contract with them."

The Democratic statement also accused the two Republicans of having received the Brookings offer and released their answer to the press before its existence even was known to the Democrats. "We understand," the Democrats said, "as we are sure the county voters also understand, that this was merely a political gesture on the part of the two Republican members of the board."

The reason given for the Democratic opposition to awarding the contract at once was that "the atmosphere of the last several days before the general election is not the proper time to consider or enter into such a contract."

Karn and Coughlan accused the Democrats of giving "mere lip service to the proposed survey by voting an expenditure of not more than $5,000 but following it up by twice voting to postpone action to have the survey made by the Brookings Institution."

Democrats Accused

Washington I. Cleveland, Washington AAA manager and a resident of Kensington, last night charged that Democratic members of the county board had reversed campaign pledges by voting against the Brookings proposal.

Cleveland, in a radio speech over station WMAL, declared both parties had indorsed the survey in their campaign platforms, and he said he was "keenly disappointed," in the board's action withholding the approval for the survey.

Cleveland described the present county government as archaic, and resembling in most details the pattern prepared in the horse and buggy days when the county was entirely a farming community.

"There is no more vital and important problem confronting the citizens of Montgomery County today than that of modernizing their form of government."

Program Tonight

The Montgomery Players, local amateur theatrical troupe, will open their 1938-1939 season tonight with the comedy hit, "First Lady," at 8:30 p. m. in the auditorium of Leland Junior High School.

The play is directed by Harrison H. Hathaway and leading roles are taken by Jane Plummer Rice, Margaret J. Buckley, Irving M. Day and Dolph Bishop. Others in the cast include Helen Devereux Pyle, Doris Dewey Day, Dorothy Cameron, Peggy Wolhaupter, Martha Pogge, David Betts, Wallace Buell, David P. Wolhaupter, Lea G. Willson, Howard Bandy, Clare Kenner, Ted Dunlap, Mabel Lukens, Gail Richardson and Edward H. Wilkinson.

Contributors Warned

Judge Donald A. DeLashmutt, chairman of the 1938 Montgomery County Community Chest campaign, yesterday warned chest workers and contributors in the county that proper designation must be made on all pledge cards if the Social Service League is to reap a maximum benefit from chest donations.

"Proper designation," he stated, "requires that you fill in both your business and residence addresses; that you sign your card both on the front and back, and that you designate on the back of the card the agency or agencies to which you wish to contribute."

The judge urged persons who both live and work in the county to designate their pledge 100 per cent to the Social Service League, which is the central agency for all Montgomery charities associated with the Washington Community Chest.

Those who live in the county and work in Washington were urged to designate 50 per cent to the Social Service League, the maximum permitted under the agreement between the metropolitan and suburban units of the Chest.

Certificates Awarded

Certificates of merit were awarded this week to winners in the first bi-annual architectural competition sponsored in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties by the Washington Metropolitan Section of the Maryland Society of Architects.

Winners were announced by Arthur L. Blackslee, chairman of the society's committee on municipal art, yesterday, as follows:

Hind and E. T. Dunlap, owners, Mr. Dunlap, architect, and Westhaven Development Co., owner, Shrierer & Patterson, architects.

Judges in the contest were Clyde M. Fritz, chairman of the Maryland Registration Board of Architects; William Dewey Foster, consulting architect of the Procurement Division of the United States Treasury, and Rudolph Stanley-Brown, also consulting architect of the Procurement Division of the Treasury.

Photographs of the winning specimens of architecture are being displayed in the Jesup Blair Community House in Silver Spring for the remainder of the month of November.

Field Day Today

The field day of the Montgomery County division of the Boy Scouts of America will be held this afternoon on the old Rockville Fair Grounds in Rockville. Demonstrations, contests and exhibitions will be featured.

Last night Bethesda Boy Scout troop was presented with a flag by Bethesda-Chevy Chase American Legion Post at a program given in the Bethesda elementary school.

Survey Discussion Topic

Discussion of the proposed plan for a survey of Montgomery County's form of government will be conducted by the Takoma Park, Md., Community League at a meeting Monday at 8 p. m. at the home of W. H. McClenon, 211 Cedar avenue Takoma Park, Md. Dr. J. A. Le Cerc will preside.

Red Cross Session

The first meeting of the season of the auxiliary to the Silver Spring chapter of the Red Cross will be held Friday at 1 p. m. at the home of the new chairman, Mrs. Howard Cutler, 8500 Maple avenue.

Women who will volunteer to sew and make surgical dressings for war veterans are urged to attend.

Toys Are Sought

Mrs. George Robertson, chairman of the Health and Welfare Center of Takoma Park and vicinity, yesterday issued an appeal for toys to be given needy children at Christmas.

The appeal asks for toys children have outgrown. They will be reconditioned, Mrs. Robertson said, by boys attending the Mongomery-Blair High School. The toys may be left at the Takoma Park Elementary school, Philadelphia avenue, or at the center's headquarters in the Takoma firehouse, Carroll and Denwood avenues.

Mrs. Robertson appointed Mrs. Ralph Gould to be in charge of welfare work for Thanksgiving.

Rally Set Monday

A meeting of the Women's Democratic Club of Silver Spring will be held at 8 p. m. Monday in the hearing room of the Liquor Control Board building, East-West highway. The president, Mrs. Ralph Wells, said important business matters will be discussed.

Driver Gets 60 Days

James J. Lester, 28, colored, 30 Lincoln avenue, Takoma Park, yesterday was ordered to serve 60 days in the county jail at Rockville after he was found guilty of four traffic charges by Judge H. C. Heffner in Takoma Park Police Court.

Police said Lester was arrested October 29 when his car struck and injured Mrs. Cora Schofield, 402 Carroll avenue, Takoma Park, and charged with reckless driving, operating without a permit, poor brakes, and driving while drunk. Unable to pay a fine of $117.25, Lester went to jail.

The Rev. Cox to Preach

The Rev. Z. B. Cox, of West Point, Va., will preach in the Rockville Christian Church Sunday morning and evening. He will be the first of a number of visiting ministers from whom it is hoped to select a pastor to succeed the Rev. J. Lloyd Black, resigned. Early in the week, Dr. Black began his duties as pastor of Park View Christian Church, Washington.

Divorce Suit Filed

Mrs. Myrtle Margaret Sherrill, of Bethesda, Md., has filed suit in the circuit court at Rockville for a divorce from Barron Curtis Sherrill on the ground that they have voluntarily been separated for the last five years. She also asks the court to allow her to resume her maiden name of Decker.

Union Service Planned

At union services in the Rockville Methodist Church Sunday night, joined by the congregations of the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches of Rockville, the sermon will be preached by the Rev. Forrest J. Prettyman, formerly chaplain of the Senate, who is now a resident of Rockville.

Election Officers

The supervisors of elections for Montgomery County have announced appointments of John R. Magee as Democratic officer of registration and judge of election for the Second Precinct of Wheaton District, to succeed Lee W. Jones, resigned; Walter G. Burriss, Democratic clerk of election for the First Precinct of Wheaton District, to succeed Edna Hurlebaus, resigned, and Ellis L. Chapman, Republican clerk of election for the First Precinct of Rockville District, to succeed Francis F. Gilmore, resigned.

Slot Devices Go Tonight in Prince Georges

Delay Explained Police Busy in Court Political Rallies

Superintendent Arthur W. Hepburn, of Prince Georges County police, announced yesterday that all slot machines would be removed by midnight tonight—five days after the grand jury ban on them was supposed to become effective.

Hepburn said his officers would be able to enforce the grand jury edict now that the circuit court had recessed. Most of his officers have been busy testifying in court this week, he declared.

Many of the coin devices were removed yesterday or turned toward a wall to prevent patrons from playing them.

The machines were held illegal in a ruling by the Maryland Court of Appeals last summer. State's Attorney Bowie declined to take any action against them, however, until the grand jury recommended their removal three weeks ago.

Operators were given until November 1 to remove the machines, but when the deadline arrived none of the machines had been taken away.

Hepburn's announcement followed action by the County Federation of Citizens' Associations, which demanded "immediate compliance with the law."

Rallies End Tonight

Democratic candidates for political offices in Prince Georges County will wind up their campaign at rallies to be held tonight at Ardmore and Riverdale.

The meetings will be held in St. George's Hall at Ardmore, and in the Riverdale town hall. All the candidates will visit both places.

Howard U. Theater To Give Play Tonight

The Howard University Theater will present "Outward Bound" by Sutton Vane at 8:15 p. m. tonight at tthe Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, Tenth and V streets northwest.

Fenwick Backs Stagger Plan In Arlington

Explains Advantages Holmes Safety Delegate Scouts Aid Chest Drive

Arlington County Bureau of The Post, Clarendon, Va. Tel. OXford 0500.

Charles R. Fenwick, Arlington County Democratic leader, spoke yesterday in support of the referendum on staggered terms of office for members of the county board, on which voters will decide in the Tuesday election. He set for these arguments for the proposed system:

Members other than the two elected in the county election will be before the people in off years and their qualifications can be closely scrutinized.

One, two and three short ballots are eliminated since a single member is being elected.

One member will be answerable to the people every year.

No Additional Cost

There being no other local election, the voters will give more careful consideration to the qualifications of the candidates and elect on merit.

There will be no additional expense since there is at present some sort of a State or Federal election each year.

Under the present system, Mr. Fenwick says:

The election is held every four years at the time that the major county officers are elected with the result that the candidates for the county board are given very little consideration by the voters in view of the campaigns conducted by the major officeholders. It is common practice to cast a ballot for one, two or three candidates for the county board instead of five with the result that an organized minority can elect a majority. The entire board is elected at the same time with the result that it is possible for the entire new board to come into office without being familiar with the policies and experiences of the old board.

Five Nominations

Nomination for officers of the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will be acted upon at the December meeting, Elmer J. Blackmer, jr., secretary announced last night.

Nominations are: Warren R. Clardy, president and chairman of the board of directors; Ralph E. Curtiss and John Clardy, vice president and representative to county firemen's association; Elmer J. Blackmer, jr., secretary-treasurer; A. C. Scheffel, Lorenzo Donaldson, Carl Scheffel, John E. Bamforth and Arthur C. Stickley, for membership on the board of directors, three to be elected.

Mission Services

There will be special mission services conducted by the Rev. James J. McGuckin at St. Agnes Catholic Church in Cherrydale beginning tomorrow and continuing through November 13.

There will be services tomorrow morning at 7:30, 10, and 11:30 o'clock. Week-day services will be 6 and 7:30 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m.

Holmes Is Safety Delegate

George P. Brannan, commander of Arlington Post No. 139 American Legion, announces appointment of Walter E. Holmes, as delegate to the Arlington County Safety Council.

George P. Grove has been appointed chairman of the local body's State committee with Emery N. Hosmer as vice chairman, and will work in conjunction with Charles Crush of Christiansburg, State chairman.

A student from each high school in the State will be selected to attend a week's session at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute each summer for instructions in local, county and State government.

Brannan announces that plans are under way to conduct an essay contest in the high schools on the subject of "The Advantages of the American Form of Government to That of Foreign Forms." The local winner will be awarded a gold medal with the highest State winners receiving cash prizes.

Scouts to Aid Chest Drive

Col. Christopher B. Garnett, chairman in charge of the Community Chest drive in Arlington County, announces that in an effort to acquaint the residents of the county with the purposes of the Community Chest and how to make donations, the Boy Scouts today will distribute literature to every home in the county.

There will be a county-wide court of honor and review for Boy Scouts tonight at 7:30 o'clock in St. Charles School hall on North Washington boulevard in Clarendon.

New Airport At Alexandria Stirs Protest

Proposal Opposed Safety Angle Cited Health Unit Discussed

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU, 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Temple 3787. Delivery Service, phone Alex. 1400.

The State corporation commission at Richmond took under advisement yesterday the application of the Arlington aviation field, sponsored by colored people, for a license to operate an airport near Alexandria, the Associated Press reported.

The commission granted 30 days for the filing of briefs at the conclusion of a hearing during which spokesmen for various organizations and groups expressed opposition to the granting of the license.

Objectors testified on the question of safety and noise, while the county of Arlington offered objection on the ground that the space for the field, between Seminary road and the Leesburg pike, was needed for the further development of residential sections.

Al Anderson, colored, operator of the airport, described the field as entirely safe and answered numerous technical questions. Noble D. Butler, colored pilot, in whose name the license is being sought, and W. R. Ashburn, operator of the Beacon Airport, about 4 miles away, also testified for the applicant.

The objectors included the City of Alexandria, expressing opposition in the form of a resolution adopted by the city council; the Episcopal High School, the Virginia Theological Seminary, the Seminary Hill Civic Association and real estate owners.

A considerable amount of the testimony dealt with the effect of the proposed airport on property values.

The field is located near the Fairfax County line and the City of Alexandria.

Health Unit Discussed

Dr. I. C. Riggan, State health commissioner, and Dr. L. J. Roper, director of rural health service, met Thursday night with the Alexandria Health Board to discuss bringing the local health department up to State requirements, thereby securing State funds to assist in its operation.

Dr. Riggin recommended a full-time health officer at a minimum salary of $4,500; four qualified trained nurses, at salaries of $1,800 each; two sanitary inspectors, to be sanitary engineers, at salaries of $1,800 each; a technician, at a salary of $12,00, in place of a bacteriologist—the technician also to do clerical wor.

Dr. Riggin also said the State Health Board will send specialists to Alexandria to outline the work recommended by the State board.

Mayor Richard L. Ruffner, Councilmen Charles L. Burgess and George K. Bender, City Manager Carl L. Budwesky, Dr. W. Lewis Schafer, Dr. W. Clyde West and Dr. J. Cameron McCluer compose the local health board.

Dr. Riggin said the health department should do preventive work, not curative, and the cooperation of the local Medical Society will be needed in the curative field. He said the health office should not treat or visit indigent patients, that physicians in private practice should handle this work, two or more paid retainers by the city to care for the poor in case of illness.

Dr. West and Dr. McCluer said the clinic now conducted by the physicians of the city, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club and financed by the Community Chest and the physicians, will co-operate with a modern health department, but present lack of space hampers this service.

Fire Damages Garage

Fire yesterday afternoon damaged a garage in the rear of 517 King street, run by Charles Myers. The interior of the building was burned out and three automobiles were burned slightly before they could be removed.

Fire Chief James M. Duncan said he understood an explosion caused the fire, and an investigation is being made.

Polling Place Changed

Voters of the Second Ward Tuesday will cast their ballots in the old State employment office, Cameron street side of the City Hall. For several years past the corner of the City Hall Building had been used for the polls, with entrance on Royal street. The change was made to allow better working facilities for the election workers.

Byrd Sees Likely Reorganization Plan Next Session

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—The likelihood that a plan for reorganization of Federal departments and bureaus will be submitted soon after Congress convenes January 3, was seen here today by Senator Byrd, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Investigation of Departments.

He said that he expects to call the committee to meet at an early date.

"I regard economical operation of the Bovernment to be of first importance now, especially in view of the probability of increased armaments," Byrd declared.

He asserted that "very large sums" can be saved by a reduction in overlapping activities."

Prince Georges Republican Put Off Ballot

Election Is Questioned Duvall Is Barred Printing Delayed

Legality of Tuesday's general election in Prince Georges County was in question yesterday as last-minute court action resulted in disqualifying a Republican office-seeker and made it impossible to have the ballots ready at the time specified by law.

An injunction suit, brought by Raymond Winston (Democrat), of Berwyn, against William A. Duvall, also of Berwyn, Republican candidate for county treasurer, caused the latter's name to be ordered off the ballot.

Chief Judge Walter J. Mitchell, of the circuit court at Upper Marlboro, Md., granted the injunction on the ground that Duvall had not filed his candidacy in time.

The court action delayed printing of the ballots until noon yesterday when Samuel A. Wyvill, of Upper Marlboro, began the task of running off 45,000 copies on a hand-fed press. He estimated the job would take 30 hours.

According to this estimate, the ballots will not be in the hands of the board of election supervisors until tonight.

Judge Mitchell pointed out that the law requires the ballots to be turned over to the election board four days in advance of the election, or prior to midnight last night.

Roy Pumphrey, who represented the board of election supervisors at the hearing on the injunction suit, told Judge Mitchell that if the petition was granted "it will not only throw our county election machinery out of gear, but will have a serious effect on the election throughout Maryland."

Disqualification of Duvall, one-time county commissioner, leaves two candidates for the office of treasurer. They are Capt. Vinton D. Cockey, of Laurel, a Democrat running independently, and Harry W. McNamee, of Berwyn, backed by the Democratic organization.

Soviet Helping Chiang Make A New Stand

100 Tanks Provided
Artillery Strengthened

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, (Saturday), Nov. 5.—Gen. Chiang, with a group of Soviet advisers, more than 100 new tanks, recently Russian-strengthened artillery and troops withdrawn from the Hankow area, has chosen southern Hunan province for a new stand against the Japanese.

With the loss of Hankow, Chiang is striving to avoid positional warfare for which the Japanese with their superior equipment are better fitted. He is expected to intensify guerrilla, or hit-and-run, tactics.

To back up this new phase of resistance the Chinese will have an air base in Yunnan, southwesternmost province of China, where American instructors are training young airmen to expand the small but effective force of Russian-equipped and manned planes.

With an estimated six-month supply of munitions and a practically unlimited reservoir of manpower, Chiang believes the Chinese will be able slowly to wear down the enemy.

Americans and other foreigners at Hankow believe there is little chance of successful competition—for months at least—with the commercial organization Japan is building up.

Within the past few days hundreds of Japanese vessels have brought goods up the Yangtze. They arrived without incident, though Japanese authorities had proclaimed the river unsafe.

Foreign shipping has been bottled up for a year, but despite the pessimistic outlook many Americans were determined to hang on, hopeful that Washington would be able to keep Japan from slamming the open door in China.

Defenseless Cities Bombed

Hongkong, Nov. 4 (AP).—The Chinese Central News Agency reported tonight that undefended cities of Kwangtung province were bearing the brunt of widespread aerial attacks. Several towns were destroyed and others partly wrecked, the agency said.

Japanese advices said the Chinese defense of the province had been complicated by what they termed civil war between Kwangtung troops and provincial forces from neighboring Kwangsi. Kwangsi forces were said to be attacking the Kwangtung soldiers because of their failure to make a last-ditch defense of Canton.

Blackface Pair Get $10,000 in Pay Roll Holdup

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 4 (AP).—One man was shot and wounded in the holdup late today of a cigar factory by two white men with faces painted black. They escaped with an estimated $10,000 of the weekly pay roll.

Maximo Alonso, an employe, was wounded. Francisco Gonzales, general manager of the plant, told police the bandits came into the factory while workers waited at the cashier's window for their pay.

Dies Asserts U. S. Workers Belong to Red Associations

Says He Hopes to Call Them on Stand
Two Witnesses Tell of Dynamite Plot
Communism Linked to Republic Strike

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Dies (Democrat), of Texas, of the House committee investigating un-American activities, announced yesterday that he hoped the committee would find it possible eventually to call a number of Government employes whom he said were members of organizations associated with the Communist Party.

He made the assertion after Representative Mosier said there were several hundred Government workers who wanted to be heard. Dies added that he understood there were 400 or 500 employes of Federal bureaus who were members of organizations which have a Communist on their boards."

Gus Hall Named

Meanwhile, two witnesses told the committee that a "well-known Communist" had directed the activities of a dynamite squad during a strike at the Republic Steel plant at Warren, Ohio, in June, 1937.

The witnesses, Lester J. Abele, of Cleveland, and Edgar Herzog, of Elyria, Ohio, said the man was Gus Hall, also known as Arva Halberg. They added Hall was "top man" at the Warren headquarters of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, a C. I. O. union, and also was on the payroll of the Communist Party as an organizer.

Abele, adjutant of the Seventy-third Brigade of the Ohio National Guard, testified that three members of the dynamite squad confessed they had received instructions to blow up property of the Republic Steel plant, homes of non-strikers, railroad tracks and bridges, "highly volatile" tanks of benzol owned by Republic Steel, the municipal electric light plant, and a reservoir which supplied the city with water.

Abele, who said he assisted in obtaining the confessions, asserted that seven of eight men indicted pleaded guilty to a charge of possession and use of explosives. He said the eighth was Hall, who, he continued, later pleaded guilty to a lesser charge and was fined $500. Four were sentenced to the State penitentiary for 1 to 20 years and three were paroled, he said.

Tells of Bombs

Abele asserted that the charge against Hall was reduced to malicious destruction of property after Paul J. Reagen, Trumbull County prosecutor, had told the court he did not believe he had a case. The steel workers organizing committee paid the fine, Abele declared.

This testimony prompted Representative Mosier (Democrat), Ohio, a committee member, to comment:

"So a Communist leader of the whole outfit was let go for a $500 fine paid by the C. I. O."

Abele testified that a search of C. I. O. headquarters in Warren revealed "home-made" bombs, which had nitroglycerin base and were fashioned from jars and bottles.

Abele said he helped obtain the confessions while assigned to work with the city solicitor after an outbreak of night bombings. The confessions related plans to drop bombs upon the Republic plant from the air, he said, and declared C. I. O. headquarters housed explosives and machine guns.

Herzog Testifies

Herzog, the other witness before the committee, identified himself as a member of the Communist Party since 1932. He testified he joined the party to learn "what it was all about," and said that in 1937 he was made chairman of the American Legion's Ohio Committee on Un-American Activities.

The committee tried to conceal Herzog's identity from his alleged Communist associates by requesting photographers to refrain from taking pictures of him. Chairman Dies told reporters that Herzog was known in the party by another name and might be subjected to "bodily harm" if his appearance before the committee became known to party members.

Herzog said he had officiated with leading Ohio Communists and attended Communist Party meetings in 50 per cent of the counties of the State. Upon one occasion, he said, Hall detailed separate dynamite crews to blow up a bridge leading to the Republic plant and the Republic benzol plant. Learning of the order, the witness said, he informed the National Guard and the dynamiting was prevented.

Blockade-Runner Of Grays Dies at 90

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—George Dallas Williams, 90, one of Norfolk's oldest citizens, died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. J. O. Wiggs, in Berkley.

Mr. Williams was a blockade runner for the Confederate forces. He had many narrow escapes from capture, being forced to abandon his horse and wagon on one occasion and take to the woods.

Lynchburg Fire Captain Ousted on Conviction

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Fire Capt. Jessee M. Staton was dismissed from the fire department by Chief L. B. Rapp today, following his conviction in municipal court of a charge of assault. At the court hearing station he was acquitted of a charge of being drunk.

Chief Rapp announced appointment to the captaincy of Louis Staton, a brother of the deposed captain.

Virginia U. Joins County Against Annexation

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Allan W. Perkins, attorney for the University of Virginia, told a special anexation court today the university would join With Albemarle County in the battle against incorporation.

Perkins, addressing the court after a conference with the university board of visitors, said he planned to confer with Attorney General Staples to lay plans for the legal fight against inclusion of university property in an area proposed for annexation.

The court adjourned today after completion of al levidence. It will reconvene Wednesday to hear final arguments in the case. The hearing has been in progress for the last two weeks.

Nazi Ship Blast Held Sabotage By Inquirers

6 Investigations Begun
Plates Bent Inward
Consul Sees 'Secret War'

Tentatively agreed that sabotage was responsible for bombing of the German steamer Vancouver at Oakland, Calif., Federal, State and private agencies yesterday pushed six separate investigations into the blast.

An act of "criminal sabotage" was responsible for the explosion that tore a 5-foot hole in the ship's side Thursday, said Baron Manfred von Killinger, German consul general at San Francisco. High Government officials here, though reluctant to discuss the disaster, admitted they "could not see how it could be anything but sabotage."

A Marine Inspection Board to meet in San Francisco was appointed yesterday by Col. J. Monroe Johnson, acting Secretary of Commerce. This board will be composed of three officials of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Survey, William Fisher, supervising inspector, chairman; Francis F. Leahy and David T. Smith, both principal traveling inspectors. Baron von Killinger has been invited to send a representative to the board's hearings.

Officers of the Coast Guard and the Department of Justice will assist in the inquiry, the Commerce Department said.

After an exhaustive investigation at Oakland immediately after the explosion by District Attorney Earl Warren and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, Warren said, gradually, "We are of the opinion the explosion was not in the engine room itself." Fearing international complications, Warren would not say if he believed the blast to be the work of saboteurs until the vessel could be floated and carefully examined.

The vessel was resting last night stern down on a mudbank off the narrow channel between Oakland and San Francisco. Anchored there, the 477-foot steamship was said by its officers to be taking water faster than pumps could handle it.

Two Men Killed

Mystery was added to the Oakland explosion by Mrs. Dora Russell, of San Francisco, a passenger who said two men were killed by a blast soon after the Vancouver left Hamburg on its voyage to the United States. She said the earlier explosion was attributed to a bursting steam pipe.

The Oakland disaster was blamed by Baron von Killinger on "a small clique aiming to destroy by secret warfare the basis of ordered society."

"The ship's plates are bent inward," he said, basing his statement on reports of a diver and the vessel's chief engineer. "The conclusion I leave to the public. The very active investigation by the authorities will establish that an act of criminal sabotage was committed.

"I deeply regret that the printed attacks against my country have now resulted in concrete disaster . . .

Sees "Secret Warfare"

"There is some consolation in the hope that this rotten act will open the eyes of the general public to the effect of irresponsible poisoning of public opinion perpetrated by a small clique aiming to destroy by secret warfare the basis of ordered society.

"You know whom I mean."

Capt. E. W. Moessinger, the Vancouver's master, said the explosion was "damned suspicious." Three members of the engineroom watch, standing 6 yards forward of the point of impact, said the "detonation" must have occurred outside the hull or they would not have lived to tell their stories.

Italians Shout For Duce to Get Territory Back

Interrupt His Speech
Cry for Nice and Savoy
He Warns of 'Revenge'

By the United Press.

Rome, Nov. 4.—More than 100,000 Italian war veterans packing Venice Square today responded to a rousing speech by Premier Mussolini with shouted demands for restoration of former Italian territories now held by France.

Mussolini, speaking from the balcony of his palace in observance of Italy's armistice day, warned the veterans against "exaggerated and premature optimism" and exhorted them to be ready at all times to defend the empire.

"There are men who, defeated by the straight and truly peaceful policy of the (Rome-Berlin) axis, still dream with open eyes of a Utopian and impossible revenge," Il Duce said.

"For this, old fellow veterans, it still is necessary to sleep with our heads on our knapsacks as we did in the trenches.'"

For the first time in a gathering of Italian war veterans, Mussolini was interrupted frequently by shouts of "Nice! Savoy! Tunisia!"

Italy lost Savoy and the Nice area to France in 1860 when Victor Emmanuel of Sardinia ruled as the first king of modern Italy. France took control of Tunisia in North Africa in 1881 after it had been under British-French-Italian control for 12 years.

Only 9 of 188 Tomato Growers Able to Qualify

By the Associated Press.

Only nine growers out of the 188 enrolled qualified in the ten-tone tomato contest held by the University of Maryland, Herman Hunter, canning crops specialist, announced today.

The winners are divided into two groups, those producing from two to five acres, and those producing over five acres.

Winners in the first group are Robert C. Howard, Upperco, Baltimore County, who produced 13.06 tons to the acre on 2.995 acres seeded, and Randall Lewis, second, with 12,956 tons an acre, on 2.322 acres.

Frist price in the large acreage group was won by Seymour Smith, Glen Aarm, Baltimore County, with a yield of 12.38 tons to the acre on 6.23 acres. Second prize went to Elmer Oller, Smithsburg, Washington County, with 12.196 on 8.05 acres.

Other growers who qualified are William Bringham, Oxford; Fred Harrison, Easton; C. P. Carter, Queenstown, and Clinton Cooper, and Francis Bryan, Trappe.

Masonic Lodge Pays Tribute to Grand Master

More than 500 persons heard tribute paid to Leonard P. Steuart, grand master of Masons, at a "Ladies' Night" entertainment and dance at the Willard Hotel last night, held by the Washington Centennial Lodge of the Masons.

Opened with an invocation by Dr. Simpson B. Daugherty, chaplain of the Washington Centennial Lodge and assistant grand chaplain, the Grand Lodge, the audience heard vocal selections by Sydney Resnick and Abe Resnick and piano selections by Ralph H. Gauker.

"A tribute to the grand master" was paid by Robert P. Smith and an address praising the work of Grand Master Steuart was made by Dr. John C. Palmer.

Chamberlain, Halifax to Visit Paris in Germany's Behalf

Will Discuss Return of Her Colonies
Loans to Dictators Also Involved
Big Four May Meet Later in London

By Joseph Driscoll.

Special Cable to The Post.

London, Nov. 4.—As the next major step in European appeasement Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax are to visit Paris from November 23 to November 25, it was officially announced tonight. The conference will be preliminary to a second get-together of the "big four" of Munich, perhaps in London.

Chamberlain and Lord Halifax will talk things over with Premier Daladier and his foreign minister, Georges Bonnet. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Chamberlain and Lady Halifax.

The most pressing problem to be discussed prior to a London meeting with Hitler and Mussolini is Germany's demand for the return of the African colonies which she lost in the World War. The British government is disposed to return some colonies and it expects France to follow suit.

Mandates Shared

Britain shares mandates with France over the old German colonies of Togoland and the Cameroons, and these are the most likely to be returned. For strategic reasons, the British Empire is reluctant to return Tanganyika and Southwest Africa to Germany. As compensation for these, it has been sugegsted Belgium and Portugal might give Germany part of the Congo and Angola, respectively.

Chamberlain's intermediary in the matter of colonial barter and trade is Oswald Pirow, the South African defense minister who came to London via Lisbon and will also call at Berlin and Brussels. The general idea in London is that Belgium and Portugal, despite their natural protests, may be persuaded they too should sacrifice some colonies to Germany in the interest of general appeasement.

Other matters to be discussed in Paris are disarmament and financial aid to the dictatorships. Prime Minister Chamberlain wants to negotiate an air pact such as Hitler has hinted at from time to time. Any measure of aerial disarmament or limitation would bring relief to London, the most vulnerable capital in the world.

Reich Needs Money

If Germany gets colonies she would require millions of dollars to develop them, just as Italy requires money for Italian East Africa. Britain and France, especially Britain, have the money to lend at not too high interest rates, provided they are assured the money will be used properly and not for arms which might be turned against them.

Twice during the current year, the French premier and foreign secretar yvisited Downing street without any return visits. The same thing happened in previous years and there were unkind remarks that French policy was always decided in London and that France was becoming a second-class satellite nation. The trip to Paris late this month will repay all courtesies and dissipate these insinuations.

Now that Britain has ratified the Anglo-Italian accord and recognized Mussolini's annexation of Abyssinia, the British hope that France and Italy will bury their quarrel. Chamberlain looks forward to the day when there will not be two rival blocs in Europe, but only one grand, united London-Berlin-Rome-Paris axis.

Political Arena

Climaxing the national Republican campaign and undoubtedly replying to President Roosevelt's broadcast of last night, former President Hoover, John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican Committee and Representative Martin, chairman of the Congressional campaign committee, will go on the air tonight.

HOOVER

Hoover will be addressing a Republican rally in Spokane, Wash., in the last of a series of addresses. The Mutual Broadcasting System will carry his address from 9 to 10 p. m., E. S. T. Hamilton will speak from 10 to 10:30 from Washington over the National Broadcasting Co.'s Red Network. Martin will speak from Boston from 10:45 to 11 p. m. over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

With the Sheppard Committee investigating Senate campaign expenditures reporting additional evidence of political activity in the administration of relief funds, the number of Republican House and Senate incumbents and candidates signing the round-robin pledging a Congressional investigation into such activities yesterday reached a total of 222.

Additional signers yesterday were Ewing D. Colvin, Republican Senatorial nominee in Washington; Rep. Englebright, of California, Republican House whip; and Rep. Rees of Kansas.

In a report filed with the clerk of the House yesterday the Democratic National Committee said it collected $27,458 and spent $39,130 between October 28 and November 28 and November 3. It reported a balance of $13,647 but added that it had unpaid obligations of $184,614.

The Republican Senatorial campaign committee reported collections of $19,500 and expenditures of $26,768 from October 28 to November 2.

The National Reepublican Congressional committee reported contributions of $9,800 and expenses of $16,133 for the same period.

Lammot duPont, of Wilmington, Del., gave $5.00 0to each of the G.O.P. committees. John D. Rockefeler, jr., gace $2,000 to the Senatorial committee and $1,500 to the Congressional committee.

Other contributions listed by the Senatorial committee included Richard K. Mellon, Pittsburgh, $5,000; Mrs. May T. Mellon, Pittsburgh, $2,500, and George Whitney, New York; L. C. Walker, Muskegon, Mich.; F. D. Bartow, New York, and John M. Blodgett, Grand Rapids, Mich., $1,000 each.

New York, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Democratic candidate for re-election, said tonight the promises of his Republican opponent, Thomas E. Dewey, regarding social measures already have been performed under the Lehman administration.

"Let us not forget," Lehman asserted, "that our record of achievement on the very things that my opponent now talks about was consummated in the face of bitter and ruthless opposition of the Republican Party."

Gov. Lehman declared the State's social security law was three times beaten in the "Republican Assembly" and that "we finally compelled its enactment only because I was able to marshal the voice of public opinion."

Mankato, Kas., Nov. 4 (AP).—Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican Presidential nominee, said tonight the great weakness in the fiscal policies of the administration lies in its "failure to bring home to the American people the cost of their Federal Government."

"As long as a great majority of our voters think Federal expenditures are not costing them anything, the effect on public opinion is disastrous to an economical and efficient government," the former Kansas governor said to a Republican rally here.

Adoption of sound fiscal policies, Landon asserted, would be a firm step toward solid recovery.

"Now this is either the Roosevelt depression or it's the same old Hoover depression that we heard so much about from the Democrats six and eight years ago. The President hasn't done a thing to bring us out of it."

Mrs. Thomas F. McAllister, director of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee, in a broadcast here last night said that selfish prosperous groups "seek to terrorize American citizens by using the scarecrow of communism as a threat to our institutions."

"Just 50 years ago, the President answered the same kind of tactics, which apparently were in use in those days, as they are today, whenever the recipients of special favors want to protect their rights of privilege. In 1888, Grover Cleveland said: "Communism is a hateful thing and a menace to people and organized government. But the communism of combined wealth and capital, the outgrowth of selfishness which undermined the justice and integrity of free institutions, is not less dangerous than the communism of oppressed poverty and toil, which, exasperated by injustice and discontent attacks with wild disorder the citadel of misrule.'"

Former McAdoo Aide Sues Mayer For $500,000

Los Angeles, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—William H. Neblett, former law partner of Senator McAdoo, filed a $500,000 damage suit today against Film Producer Louis B. Mayer, charging defamation of character.

Mayer, vice president in charge of production at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, was accused of besmirching the attorney in testimony before a special assembly committee which was investigating studio-union activities last year.

Neblett, attorney for the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, alleged Mayer had misrepresented before the committee that the attorney "could use his influence to kill off the union if Mayer would give Neblett enough money to bribe the committee and the investigators."

Text of President Roosevelt's Speech for Governor Lehman

Backs Wagner, Mead Pats Murphy on Back Points to Prosperity

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, Nov. 4.—The text of President Roosevelt's election speech, broadcast from his home here tonight, follows:

On the eve of another election, I have come to Hyde Park and am sitting at my own fireside in my own election district, my own county and my own state.

I have often expressed my feeling that the mere fact that I am President should not disqualify me from expressing as a citizen my views on candidates and issues in my own State.

I have changed my mind about the nature of some problems of democratic government over the past few years as I have had more and more experience with them. I had never realized how much my way of thinking had changed until the other day when I was watching the finishing touches being put on a simple cottage I have recently built—a cottage which, by the way, is not in any sense of the word a "dream house." Just watching the building go up made me realize that there was a time not so long ago when I used to think about problems of government as if they were the same kind of problems as building a house—definite and compact and capable of completion within a given time.

Recalls Taft, Harding

Now I know well that the comparison is not a good one. Once you build a house you always have it. On the other hand a social or an economic gain is different. A social or economic gain made by one administration may, and often does, evaporate into thin air under the next one.

We all remember well-known examples of what an ill-advised shift from liberal to conservative leadership can do to an incompleted liberal program. Theodore Roosevelt, for example, started a march of progress during his seven years in the Presidency but, after four years of President Taft, little was left of the progress which had been made. Think of the great liberal achievements of Woodrow Wilson's New Freedom and how quickly they were liquidated under President Harding. We have to have reasonable continuity in liberal government to get permanent results.

The whole United States concedes that we in New York State have carried out a magnificent liberal program through our State government during the past 16 years. If the continuity of that liberal government had been broken in this State during that time we would be nowhere near the point we have reached today.

Foreign Events Cited

The voters throughout the country should remember that need for continuous liberal government when they vote next Tuesday.

On that day the oldest of modern democracies will hold an election. A free people will have a free choice to pick free leaders for free men.

In other lands across the water the flares of militarism and conquest, terrorism and intolerance have vividly revealed to Americans for the first time since the Revolution how precious and extraordinary it is to be allowed this free choice of free leaders for free men.

No one will order us how to vote, and the only watchers we shall find at the polls are the watchers who guarantee that our ballot is secret. Think how few places are left where this can happen.

For Positive Democracy

But we cannot carelessly assume that a nation is strong and great merely because it has a democratic form of government. We have learned that a democracy weakend by internal dissension, by mutual suspicion born of social injustice, is no match for autocracies which are ruthless enough to repress internal dissension.

Democracy in order to live must become a positive force in the daily lives of its people. It must make men and women whose devotion it seeks, feel that it really cares for the security of every individual; that it is tolerant enough to inspire an essential unity among its citizens and that it is militant enough to maintain liberty against social oppression at home and against military aggression abroad.

The rest of the world is far closer to us than in the day's of democracy's founders—Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln. Comparisons are unavoidable. To disprove the pretenses of rival systems, democracy must be an affirmative, up-to-date conception, It can no longer be negative—no longer adopt a defeatist attitude. In these tense and dangerous situations in the world democracy will save itself with the average man and woman by proving itself worth saving.

"Realistic Necessity"

Too many of those who prate about saving democracy are really only interested in saving things as they were. Democracy should concern itself also with things as they ought to be.

I am not talking mere idealism; I am pressing realistic necessity.

I reject the merely negative purposes proposed by old-line Republicans and Communists alike—for they are people whose only purpose is to survive against any other Fascist threat than their own.

As of today, fascism and communism—and old-line Tory Republicanism—are not threats to the continuation of our form of government. But I venture the statement that if American democracy ceases to move forward as a living force, seeking day and night by peaceful means to better the lot of our citizens, fascism and communism, aided, unconsciously perhaps, by old-line Tory Republicanism, will grow in strength.

It will take cool judgment for our people to appraise the repercussions of change in other lands. And only a nation completely convinced—at the bottom as well as at the top—that their system of government best serves their best interests, will have such a judgment.

Points to Murphy

And while we are developing that coolness of judgment, we need in public office, above all things, men wise enough to avoid passing incidents where passion and force try to substitute themselves for judgment and negotiation. During my four years as Governor and during my nearly six years as President, I am proud of the fact that I have never called out the armed forces of the State or Nation except on errands of mercy. That type of democratic wisdom was illustrated last year by the action of Gov. Murphy of Michigan when he persuaded the negotiators of the employers and employes to sit around a table and thus got an agreement, avoided bloodshed, and earned the praise of both sides of a controversy that had frightened a whole Nation.

With such an approach, the New Deal, keeping its feet on the ground, is working out hundreds of current problems from day to day as necessities arise and with whatever materials are at hand. We are doing this without attempting to commit a Nation to any ism or ideology except democracy, humanity and the civil liberties which form their foundations.

Our economic and social system cannot deny the paramount right of the millions who toil and the millions who wish to toil, to have it function smoothly and efficiently. After all, any such system must provide efficiently for distributing national resources and serving the welfare and happiness of all who live under it.

Like a Factory

The modern interdependent industrial and agricultural society is like a large factory. Each member of the organization has his own job to perform on the assembly line, but if the conveyor belt breaks or gets tangled up, no one in the factory, no matter how hard he tries, can do his own particular job. Each of us—farmer, businessman or worker—suffers when anything goes wrong with the conveyor belt. If our democracy is to survive it must give the average man reasonable assurance that the belts will be kept moving.

Dictators have recognized the problem. They keep the conveyor belt moving—but at a terrible price to the individual and to his civil liberty.

The New Deal has been trying to keep those belts moving without such a price. It does not wish to run or manage any part of our economic machine which private enterprise can run and keep running. That should be left to individuals, to corporations, to any other form of private management, with profit for those who manage well. But when an abuse interferes with the ability of private enterprise to keep the national conveyor belt moving, government has a responsibility to eliminate that abuse.

We do not assume for a minute all that we have done has been successful, but our economic and social program of the past five and a half years has definitely given to the United States a more stable and less artificial prosperity than any other nation in the world has enjoyed.

The very fact that the business slump beginning last fall and running into last summer, did not become a major economic disaser like the slump that ran from 1929 to 1933, is the best kind of proof that fundamentally we have found the right track.

You have just heard the news about the automobile factories and many other industries that are opening up for full employment again. And during the month of October alone overall employment has risen nearly 3½ per cent.

Promises Similar

I have been very happy in the last six months to see how swiftly a large majority of businessmen have been coming around to accept the objectives of a more stable economy and of certain necessary supervision of private activities in order to prevent a return of the serious abuses and conditions of the past. But if there should be any weakening of the power of liberal government next Tuesday, it would resurrect false hopes on the part of some businessmen, now beginning to change antiquated ideas, that if they can hold out a little longer, no adaptation to change will be necessary.

There is no doubt of the basic desires of the American people. And because these basic desires are well known you find all parties, all candidates, making the same general promises to satisfy these desires.

Warns of Evasion

During the weeks before a general election, all parties are the friends of labor, all parties are against monopoly, all parties say that the unemployed must have work or be given Government relief, all parties love the farmer.

Let me warn you now, as I warned you two years ago in my address at Syracuse, against the smooth evasion which says:

"Of course, we believe all these things; we believe in social security; we believe in work for the unemployed; we believe in saving homes. Cross our hearts and hope to die, we believe in all these things, but we do not like the way the present Administration is doing them. Just turn them over to us. We will do all of them—we will do more of them—we will do them better; and, most important of all, the doing of them will not cost anybody anything.

Draws Fine Analogy

But when democracy struggles for its very life, those same people obstruct our efforts to maintain it, while they fail to offer proof of their own will and their own plans to preserve it. They try to stop the only fire engine we have from rushing to the fire because they are sales agents for a different make of fire engine.

New ideas cannot be administered successfully by men with old ideas, for the first essential of doing a job well is the wish to see the job done at all.

Judge parties and candidates, not merely by what they promise, but by what they have done, by their records in office, by the kind of people they travel with, by the kind of people who finance and promote their campaigns. By their promoters ye shall know them.

Complex State

No national administration, however much it may represent the genuine popular will of the people, can in the long run prove enduringly effective if that administration can be cut off from the people by State and local political machinery controlled by men who are hostile.

My own State of New York is to choose a Governor. Ours is the most complex State in the Union—13,000,000 population, great farming areas, hundreds of small communities, one huge city of 7,000,000 people, and many other cities, great and small.

Governing the State of New York requires the skill which comes from long experience in public affairs.

In 1918, when I was 36 years old, I was invited to run for the governorship of this State. I was then Assistant Secretary of the Navy. I declined the offer, because my job required me at that time to sail on a destroyer for oversees service. I am glad I did, for, looking back on that time, I do not think that I had experience and knowledge of public affairs wide enough to qualify as Governor. Besides, I did not think it quite right to abandon in midstream an important public job that I had undertaken.

Governing the State of New York is more than being an Assistant Secretary of the Navy or a district attorney. The Governor of this State is called upon to administer 18 great departments of government and to supervise State institutions that house over 100,000 wards of the State. He must be able to understand and handle the vast and intricate problems of agriculture. He is charged with the supervision of State finance and the maintenance of State credit. He is responsible for its widespread system of roads, parks, canals, and schools. He has to maintain, preserve and improve the great body of social legislation already on the statute books of the State—unemployment insurance, workmen's compensation, social security, help for the needy and the underprivileged; and he must see to it that these recent reforms are made to keep pace with the broadening conception of social justice.

Equal protection of the law—criminal and civil—for human rights as well as property rights; prosecution of criminals in high financial places as well as low places; the preservation of civil and religious liberties—all these precious essentials of civilization are entrusted to him.

New York has State laws matching every progressive Federal measure of the last five years. They were all enacted under the guiding hand and driving energy of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

Recruits in the battle for economic democracy are always welcome irrespective of party; but at a critical moment in the world's history we cannot take the risks of supplanting seasoned leaders like Gov. Lehman with men, no matter how sincere, who have yet to win their spurs or prove what they really know or where they really stand in the fight for social justice. Those who truly and sincerely join the struggle for social justice and economic democracy for its own sake do not throw stones at veteran fighters in that cause.

No one can properly minimize the need of active law enforcement, whether it be in a great city or in the rural counties.

Cites Lehman Record

Certainly Gov. Lehman has never minimized it, and has never hesitated to call to his assistance in law enforcement, young and vigorous prosecutors, irrespective of politics. We need more active law enforcement, not only against the lords of the underworld, but also against the lords of the overworld.

It is right—wholly right—to prosecute criminals. But that is not enough, for there is the immense added task of working for the elimination of present and future crime by getting rid of evil social conditions which breed crime. Good government can prevent a thousand crimes for every one it punishes.

The fight for social justice and economic democracy has not the allure of a criminal jury trial; it is a long, weary, uphill struggle—and those who give themselves unsparingly to it are seldom acclaimed at my lady's tea or at my gentleman's club.

As a resident and voter in the State of New York I urge my fellow citizens and voters, who are interested in preserving good government and American democracy, to vote for Herbert H. Lehman.

Praises Wagner

And just as a Governor is required to be much more than a good prosecutor, so a United States Senator must be much more than a good lawyer. A Senator from New York must do more than merely vote on whatever bills drift by. He must be able and willing to take the initiative—to keep the legislative wheels turning in the right direction.

If you were to list some of the newly recognized major responsibilities of government to meet the complexities of modern life—security in old age, unemployment insurance, protection of the rights of labor, low-cost housing and slum clearance—you would have a virtual resume of the acts of the Congress which bear the name of Robert F. Wagner. So often since 1933 has new legislation been described as "the Wagner act" that the phrase has become confusing because there have been so many Wagner acts. For example, there is not only the Wagner labor relations act; there are the Wagner social security act and the Wagner housing act; and although you might feel uncertain as to which particular act is meant by the phrase, you can feel no uncertainty as to this—that any one of the Wagner acts was an act intended for the benefit of those who need the help and support of government against oppression and intolerable conditions of living. His name stands for courageous and intelligent leadership, constructive statecraft and steadfast devotion to the common man and the cause of civil liberties.

Gives Mead a Boost

With him I hope the voters of this State will send to the Senate an experienced member of House of Representatives—James M. Mead—known through many years for his expert knowledge of three fields whose intricate problems press heavily upon Government today, railroads, aviation and civil service, and for his unflagging support of every liberal measure that has come before the Congress. We need that legislative experience, the temper of mind, that expert knowledge in the United States Senate.

Look over the rest of the names on the ballot next Tuesday; Pick those who are known for their experience and their liberalism. Pick them for what they have done, and not just for what they say they would do.

And one last but important word: Pick them without regard to race, color or creed. Some of them may have come of the earliest colonial stock; some of them may have been brought here as children to escape the tyrannies of the Old World. All of them are American citizens now.

Franklin Quoted

Remember that the fathers of the American Revolution represented many religions and came from many foreign lands.

Remember that no matter what their origin they agreed with Benjamin Franklin: "We must indeed all hang together or most assuredly we shall all hang separately."

Remember that in these grave day in the affairs of the world we need internal unity—national unity. For the sake of the Nation that is good advice and it never grows old.

perhaps, by old-line Tory Republicanism, will grow in strength."

The President stressed the necessity of coolness of judgment in government, gave a pat on the back to Governor Frank B. Murphy of Michigan, who recently was assailed for his failure to call out troops in the Michigan sit-down strikes.

He said he was proud that as Governor of New York and as President, he had "never called out the armed forces of the State or Nation except on errands of mercy."

"That type of Democratic wisdom," he explained, "was illustrated last year by the action of Gov. Murphy of Michigan when he persuaded the negotiators of the employers and employes to sit around a table and thus got an agreement, avoided bloodshed, and earned the praise of both sides of a controversy that had frightened a whole Nation."

"With such an approach," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "the New Deal, keeping its feet on the ground, is working out hundreds of current problems from day to day as necessities arise and with whatever materials are at hand. We are doing this without attempting to commit the Nation to any ism or ideology except democracy, humanity and the civil liberties which form their foundation."

Marriage Knot Tied by Air Pilot Ruled Illegal

Los Angeles, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—A marriage ceremony performed by the skipper of an airliner is not legal, Superior Judge Thomas Gould ruled today in the case of Edward I. von Glatte, 32, and his comely bride, Jane Webster von Glatte, 25.

Last July, they flew three miles up and three miles out from the California coast line in a United Airlines ship and were married by Capt. Richard Bowman, in command of the craft. The county recorder refused to record the license, however, on advice of the county counsel, who held Bowman was not qualified under California law to perform the ceremony.

"We will appeal—even to the State Supreme Court," the couple said. "We believe we are married and we are going to prove it."

They declined an offer of the judge to marry them without fee.

Roosevelt Joins In Tribute to Will Rogers

Speaks Over Radio
Memorial Unveiled
200,000 at Claremore

By the Associated Press.

Claremore, Okla., Nov. 4.—Will Rogers' friends—including cowboys, actors, aviators and President Roosevelt—joined Oklahoma today in dedicating a memorial to Claremore's famous son, who once observed, "I never met a man I didn't like."

More than 20,000 gathered on a hilltop in front of the newly-completed $200,000 Rogers Museum in an unprecedented tribute to a private citizen.

The President broadcast from Hyde Park, N. Y., his "grateful homage to the memory of a man who helped the Nation to smile."

Cantor Has Choke in Voice

From New York to Pittsburgh to Hollywood and back to Claremore, a national radio network switched to pick up pleasant memories of Rogers voiced by friends of stage, screen, business and Government.

"Anytime you gave him a biscuit, he'd want to pay you back with a barrel of flour," said Eddie Cantor with a choke in his voice.

Among G. Carter, Fort Worth publisher and owner of a ranch where Rogers used to play, said he could visualize his old friend, "looking down now and saying, 'Shucks, folks, you oughtn't to have done this.'"

From Jesse M. Jones, RFC chairman, who made the dedicating address, came this summary of the life which ended in an Alaskan airplane crash three years ago:

"Will Rogers was a friend alike to the mighty and the weak—a friend for friendship's sake."

Irvin S. Cobb, Fred Stone, Gov. E. W. Marland of Oklahom, George M. Cohan and Gen. Roy Hoffman, chairman of the Will Rogers Memorial Commission, added their words of praise.

The gray stone structure was dedicated on the fifty-ninth anniversary of Rogers' birth at nearby Ooologah. A statue by Jo Davidson was unveiled by his daughter, Mary Rogers.

It will house Rogers' own collections of the range.

Mrs. Betty Rogers, the humorist's widow, and his sons, Bill and Jimmy, also were present.

Doomed Man Saved by Wild Ride of Counsel

Kidnaper Wins Respite
Execution Delayed
Minutes Counted

By the Associated Press.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 4.—Twenty-nine anxious minutes after a confessed kidnaper was scheduled to die in Missouri's lethal gas chamber, three attorneys arrived at the State Prison today after a six-hour drive through a blinding rainstorm which spared his life for at least 10 months.

By telephone, they had succeeded in having the execution hour for Oscar Ralph Ashworth, 37, delayed from 12:01 to 1 a. m., while they threaded their slippery way by automobile the 225 miles from St. Joseph, Mo., to the prison here. The drive required six hours.

At 12:30 a. m. they arrived with a writ of error, automatically staying execution. The three lawyers had hurried into the Supreme Court Building here at 12 a. m. and obtained a writ of error from Deputy Supreme Court Clerk Guy Silvers. They then left immediately for the prison to serve the warden with copies of the writ.

"I am going to pray all day," the distraught Ashworth mumbled gratefully to Warden J. Frank Ramsey when informed he would not have to die today for kidnaping a 7-year-old St. Joseph girl and attempting to assault her.

The dramatic move of the attorneys, who withheld the nature of the evidence forming a basis for their action, was made after the mother of the unharmed girl victim and relatives of Ashworth failed in attempts to intervene for the condemned man.

The attorneys were Abe Goldman, Leonard Johnson and Earl Borchers. "We ran into a cloudburst," Goldman related. "It was awful. We couldn't even see the road at times because the wind whipped that rain aginst the windshield.

"By the time we pulled into Moberly, it was only 30 minutes before the execution hour and there we were 60 miles away. So we telephoned the prison, pleaded we couldn't possibly make it and the warden agreed to set the time back to 1 o'clock.

Adding to the drama of the night, two crocks which hold the deadly fumes in the death chamber broke during preparations for the execution of another man, Byron King, convicted of slaying George Speer, St. Louis taxi driver, in a $3.50 holdup.

Short-Weighted, Woman Loses Her Own Coal in Argument

Winter heating always is a problem for Mrs. Eleanor Tyree, colored, 5221 Clay street northeast, but yesterday she had to resort to higher mathematics to settle the question. And the result of her calculations left her dissatisfied—and minus four bags of coal in her bin.

Reading of a reduction in price of anthracite at a local coal company, Mrs. Tyree ordered her yearly quota of 28 bags. Soon after she had put in her order a truck arrived and started unloading the coal in her basement. It was then that she invoked her mathematical knowledge—and the trouble started.

As the bags were carried into her bin, Mrs. Tyree kept tally but counted only 24 bags, in all, instead of the required 28. She called the error to the attention of the truckers but apparently they disagreed. After a call to the company they commenced taking the bags out of the bin and reloading it on the truck.

Again resorting to mathematics, Mrs. Tyree kept count as the bags were carried out of her basement, and this time to her intense dismay she found that there had been removed 24 bags of the coal she had ordered, plus 4 bags in her cellar in the first place.

This time it required only elementary calculations to tell her that 28 from 24 left a net deficit of 4 bags. Ceasing to argue, Mrs. Tyree ran into her house to voice her complaint to the coal company by telephone.

The truckers called police. A squad soon arrived and eventually the truckers returned to their headquarters with the 28 bags. But last night the answer still was the same to Mrs. Tyree—4 bags, minus.

Timely Film On View at Metropolitan

Football Is Theme
A Youthful Cast
Shorts Are Good

"TOUCHDOWN, ARMY." Paramount picturization of a story and screen play by Lloyd Corrigan and Erwin Gelsey, featuring John Howard, Mary Carlisle, Owen Davis, jr., and Robert Cummings, with William Frawley, Benny Baker, Minor Watson, Raymond Hatton and Grant Withers. Directed by Kurt Neumann. Reviewed Friday afternoon, by Mary Morris. At the Metropolitan Theater.

With the public full tilt on its annual football spree—crowding stadiums and clustered around numberless radios—the release of this fast and rollicky picture, "Touchdown, Army," has been timed to a nicety.

It's football all the way in "Touchdown, Army"—football training, dugout strategy, clashing personalities tangling up a team, finally a four-star presentation of that greatest football show of them all, the annual Army-Navy battle.

The story follows that tested success pattern of undergraduate life at West Point. John Howard and Robert Cummings are both in love with an officer's daughter, Mary Carlisle. Both are star footballers, but John has a F. F. V. background, takes great pride in the Confederate general who was his forbear. Robert is a boy from the wrong side of the tracks, a fresh, hard-boiled, fast-working young rascal with a gift for getting into trouble.

Something in Names

Incidentally, the names of these lead characters are so smart that they really mean something. John is "Brandy" Culpepper and Robert rejoices in the title of "Hurry-up" Homan. They grate on each other inevitably through every inherent instinct and tradition. "Brandy," as an upperclassman, takes "Hurry-up" for plenty of those rides doled out to plebes, adeptly designed to take out cockiness and self-conceit. But "Hurry-up" is fast and hard to beat, even if he is a plebe, has a gift of giving a wicked turn to apparently respectful rejoinders. The payoff comes when "Hurry-up" enlists a knavish old actor, played by Raymond Hatton, to impersonate a Confederate veteran, tell a rare yarn that makes out "Brandy's" grandfather to have been a hero by pure accident.

That favorite and always good trick of winning a game in the last few minutes of play, is given a new turn by having "Hurry-up" being suddenly declared guiltless in a jam which has caused his confinement to quarters, bringing him to New York by plane to turn the tide to Army.

Mary Carlisle, as the love interest, is (we hate to say it) just another Hollywood leading lady. She plays crisply and her timing is rather good, but hardly with that "lift" needed to give vitality to the story. But this is no real criticism of Miss Carlisle. That would not be fair. She's just as good, in fact, a shade better, than the average Hollywoodette would have been in the same part.

Hatton on Comeback

Raymond Hatton is mighty smooth, indeed, as the semishady character who wears race-track clothes in his normal life, but can also put on a swell impersonation of a tottering veteran of the Gray. Come to think of it, although Raymond has been doing bits for a few seasons in contrast to his former starring comedy roles, he's made the best of every opportunity. Oldster Hatton is ready for a bigger play, we believe; will make good as the perspective opens for him.

A color cartoon, "The Polar Bears," is both endearing and truly comic and indicates that Walt Disney hasn't a monopoly in the field. There's a comedy short that starts with a Turkish bath for dogs, includes an accidental kidnaping and most important, will really give you laughs. The newsreel shows the classic show down between War Admiral and Sea Biscuit, the little Admiral gallant in defeat and the good Biscuit wreathed in roses. But shouldn't Sea Biscuit's name be changed to Hot Biscuit?

Palace

One of the most pretentious films of the season, "Suez," Twentieth Century-Fox's romanticized drama of the building of the Suez Canal by Ferdinand de Lesseps, his desperate and hopeless love of Countess Eugenie de Montijo, later the Empress Eugenie, and the equally hopeless love of a waif of the desert for him, now is in its second week of deserved popularity on the screen at Loew's Palace.

Executed on a huge scale, peopled with players of the first rank and basically authentic, "Suez" is a picture that dedicates itself to entertainment rather than any projected attempt to teach a history lesson. Much that it contains is purely and frankly fictional. But it is fiction that is woven into the warp and woof of a mighty drama that brings to life such figures of history as Louis Napoleon, Disraeli, Mehemet Ali, Said Pasha and other notables who lived in the period of the Second Empire.

The leading roles are played intelligently and effectively by Tyrone Power, Loretta Young, Annabella, Maurice Moscovich, J. Edward Bromberg, Leon Ames and Miles Mander, with a distinguished cast in support, led by Henry Stephenson, Nigel Bruce, Sig Rumann, Frank Reicher and scores of others.

The dynamiting of a mountain and the ravages of a destructive simoon mark the high points of the film's spectacular climaxes. They are scenes of staggering magnitude and terror.

In the supplementary bill, Robert Benchley shows how to enjoy a football game in a typically hilarious short. Popeye wrestles with Olive Oyl in a smartly constructed episode of the spinach-eater's adventures. There is a sugar-coated advertising pill about how wonderful is Hollywood, third largest industry, and there is a flash of Orson Welles in a news clip, a very puzzled and serious young man, who smiled not at all when asked if he anticipated an actual visitation from Mars in the near future. As if to jeer the jittery populace, one spot in the Newsreel had a subtitle, "This is all in fun."

Shirley Temple Finds Prosperity, at Capitol; Earle Presents Aviation in Technicolor

In Romantic Hit 'Just Around Corner' Songs Are Dancy Bowes Unit Scores

"JUST AROUND THE CORNER." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a story by Paul Gerard Smith, adapted to the screen by J. P. McEvoy, Ethel Hill and Darrell Ware, starring Shirley Temple, with Charles Farrell, Amanda Duff, Claude Gillingwater, Bert Lahr, Joan Davis, "Bill" Robinson, Cora Witherspoon, Franklin Pangborn, Mary Forbes, Bennie Bartlett and Marylin Knowlden. Directed by Irving Cummings. Previewed Tuesday, November 1. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

It was all a case of mistaken identity, but it worked!

Which is to say that when Shirley Temple, as the tiny daughter of an impecunious, but once flourishing, architect, confused the crabbed old millionaire, "Uncle Sam" Henshaw, with the legendary national symbol of "Uncle Sam," and set about doing something helpful in his hour of distress, she straightened out the tangled skein of all their lives. You see, it was the patriarch of the Henshaw family who had been principally responsible for the financial plight of her daddy. That plight had compelled them to vacate the penthousee atop the swankiest apartment hotel in New York and remove what was left of their belongings to basement quarters, where Jeff Hale was glad to accept the post of hotel electrician. It was Penny Hale's primary idea to make it possible for the crotchety Mr. Henshaw to do something for her daddy, but, inferentially, she taught them all a lesson in what all of the rest of us might be doing to solve things for the other "Uncle Sam."

It is largely for this reason, one suspects, that Shirley's latest picture, "Just Around the Corner," which created quite a stir at Loew's Capitol Theater yesterday—and more especially last night, when it was given that elaborate "Hollywood premiere"—is being hailed as the most substantial in both subject matter and entertainment she has had to date. While it is not too impressive as a political or economic document, there can be no quibbling about its value as fast-moving, tuneful and enlivening entertainment.

Again Is a Pollyanna

The story contrived by Paul Gerard Smith and adapted to the screen by Ethel Hill, J. P. McEvoy and Darrell Ware is not written "over the head" of its star—although some of her philosophical speeches are a little beyond one of her years—but has been nicely gauged to match the amazing talents of the child actress who for three years has been the world's foremost box-office star.

Shirley, in this one, again is the sweetly thoughtful youngster in whose mind and heart the welfare of everybody else always comes first. Money troubles do not annoy her, but the fact that "Uncle Sam" will not permit her widower-father to marry the girl who is so kind to them both, or complete the magnificent development that had to be abandoned for lack of cash, seems to her a rank injustice that ought to be rectified. So she rectifies it by means that are amusing, original and not without a basis of hard common sense.

Despite the skill of the adult cast surrounding her, the gradually maturing Miss Temple never is hard pressed to dominate practically every scene in the picture. She is a complete match for the crusty "Uncle Sam" of Claude Gillingwater; manages to circumvent the snobbish aims of Julia Ramsy and make a comparatively human being of her small son, Milton, and finally restores her father to happiness and prosperity — which ought to be indication enough of the significance of the title.

Has Songs and Dances

Into the action of the comedy-romance have been woven three pretentious song numbers—not always with complete logic—participated in by the versatile Miss Temple, Bill Robinson, Bert Lahr, Joan Davis and numerous others. They are staged with some opulence and are danced energetically by those already named and an occasional ensemble. Franklin Pangborn, as a distraught hotel manager, has nothing to do with the musical interludes, but contributes a generous measure to the comedy. The romantic interest is sustained by a new young leading woman, Amanda Duff, and Charles Farrell makes it seem just a little ridiculous that his career was shortened because of a false impression that his voice would not record satisfactorily back in the early days of sound. He makes an effective comeback as Shirley's harassed daddy.

Maj. Bowes' "Third Anniversary Revue" provides a brisk stage entertainment quite in the breezy spirit of the feature picture. With Ted Mack acting as orchestra conductor and master of ceremonies, a dozen specialties are introduced, many of them above the average of the Bowes familiar amateur program. The hits of yesterday afternoon's second performance were scored by "Strawberry" Russell, a sepia comedian, one-string cigar-box virtuoso and comedy dancer; the Three Hackett Sisters, precision, military dancers; Bert and Betty, in a novel exposition of rhythm; Dave West, impersonator; the Three Harmonica Dees, rushed to F street from Thursday night's broadcast, and Adele Miller, an especially clever acrobatic dancer and contortionist. The Byron Brothers, dancers; the Concert Serenaders, Neva Ames, xylophonist; Sol Strauss, operatic tenor, and Barbara May, in popular songs, registered only a little less emphatically.

Altogether, a bill that fully justified the evening fanfare that attended its Washington premiere—an occasion, incidentally, that was attended by many Washington notables.

The Heroine of 'Men With Wings'

Flying Stunt Film 'Men With Wings' Rich in Romance Fine Stage Bill

"MEN WITH WINGS." Paramount picturization of a screen play by Robert Carson, featuring Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland and Louise Campbell, with Andy Devine, Lynne Overman, Porter Hall, Walter Abel, Kitty Kelly, Virginia Weidler, Donald O'Connor, Billy Cook, James Burke and Willard Robertson. Directed by William A. Wellman. Reviewed Friday morning. At the Earle Theater.

It is evident that a considerable amount of research and vast effort went into the making of "Men With Wings."

While it does, in a manner, chronicle the "cavalcade of aviation" from the early experiments of the Wright Brothers and their first flight to the present day, and shows accurate replicas of the famous aircraft of all intermediate periods of airplane deevelopment, it accomplishes this aerial panorama of the years, on the Earle's screen this week, in episodic fashion, more as background for a triangular love than as the primary purpose of the picture.

The dominant narrative unfolded in this subject concerns itself in largest measure with the personal experiences of two men and a woman, who grow up together from childhood. One of the lads becomes an eagle, to whom the restraint of tranquil domestic life is a constant burden. He is the one who marries the girl. Always surrendering to the lure of greater adventure in the air, he becomes a flier in the Great War, deserts his wife and small daughter to take part in a lesser war in Morocco and finally loses his life flying over the battlefields of China. His pal, also an airman, but less fascinated by the hazards of the most adventurous of callings, is the ballast and the comfort in the life of the wife and mother, whose understanding of his ardor for the air moves her to condone the marital shortcomings of her husband. The "cavalcade of aviation" is incidental to all this and frequently is recorded on the screen by only the most fleeting glimpses and the time-worn device of indicating the passage of the years by flashing pages from the calendar on the screen.

Not a Technical Picture

This treatment of the double story, at least, has the effect of removing from "Men With Wings" the stigma of being merely a picturized lesson in technical aeronautics. It is no more lisble to that charge than "Test Pilot," to cite a convenient example.

Filmed in Technicolor, the picture affords many sky and cloud scenes that are more beautiful than any of their kind ever before flashed upon a screen. It is against these effectively tinted backgrounds that the "dog fights" of the Great War are waged, with a roaring of motors and whining of falling planes reminiscent of the war pictures of a dozen years ago. Color has been applied to this subject with utmost skill. It is so perfectly done that it serves only as an enhancement of the picture's spectacular grandeur and never as a distraction from its dramatic developments.

The three pivotal roles are played with equal dramatic integrity by Fred MacMurray, as the globe-circling thrill-hunter; Ray Milland, as the saner of the airmen, and Louise Campbell in the heroic and wistful role of the wife. Miss Campbell takes rank with the better of the cinema's actresses by the variety and quiet power of her work in this assignment. A continuous note of rich comedy is lent the action and the dialogue by Andy Devine, cast in the role of mechanic who makes his "grease monkey" a less profound character study than Spencer Tracy's with Gable and Loy in "Test Pilot." The raucous-voiced Mr. Devine is in there to get laughs and he gets them. Lynne Overman adds the weight of his experience to this department, too, and in lesser degree, Porter Hall, as a newspaper publisher with a warped sense of news.

One somehow gains the impression in watching "Men With Wings" that some deterrent may have been imposed upon the producers from official sources, limiting the scope of their revelation of the true inside story of aviation's development—especially as it pertains to fighting ships.

A Diversified Revue

On the stage at the Earle this week, Production Manager Harry Anger has provided a variegated vaudeville bill in the closely knit guise of a "Novelties of 1938" revue. George Lyons opens the proceedings with a brief solo prelude on the harp, which is merged into an especially artistic dance interval by the Earle Roxeyettes. The Condos Brothers, two of the most remarkable tap dancers before the public, dazzle the audience next with the speed of their "hoofing", and Dick and Leota Nash, jest, spin lariets and dance in a comparably novel manner. Ross Wyse, jr., and June Mann again present their extraordinary dancing and acrobatics to score the most decisive hit of the bill and The Gauchos, literally "wizards of the springboard" perform feats of gymnastic daring that have never been paralleled by anyone on a local stage.

The Roxyettes, in the meantime, have been flitting in and out with a succession of their precise routines, this week's novelty being executed on roller skates.

The Paramount News, with a complete and thrilling pictorial running of the match race between Seabiscuit and War Admiral, augments a program that will prove disappointing only to deep students of aviation.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 4.—Ran into Lew Ayres at Metro, and before he could escape I got him to answer a few questions. Hadn't seen him for years, in fact, not since I played his mother in a picture in which I murdered his father. I'd completely forgotten it. But he reminded me. Now, I ask you, was that nice?

HEDDA HOPPER

I wanted to find out to what part of the world he'd wandered during the years he'd been off the screen. "What do you mean, years?" he said.

"Well, until you burst forth with that swell performance in 'Holiday,' I hadn't seen you on the screen for years."

"You know, Hedda, he practically roared, "in ten years I've only been out of a job for nine months. Guess you don't go to see the Bs, Cs and Ds. You can kind of get lost in the shuffle when you keep at those for a long time. Then, too, I did a bit of directing. Still like it, but found it harder getting a break doing that than acting.

"Had to agree to play in two pictures, first. Then saw three pictures through, from writing to final editing, without pay." Lew finally got to direct one, again, for nothing. In fact, worked eight months without getting a cent—living on what they'd paid him to act in the two pictures. He had just about decided his acting days were over, when, at an opening he ran smack into George Cukor whom he hadn't seen for years. George had been dialogue director on "All Quiet on the Western Front." George looked Lew over and was surprised to find that he wasn't an old man with gray hair and a paunch. The next morning George phoned and asked Lew to play Ned in "Holiday."

"Well, was that a lucky break?" I asked. "Lucky? . . . It just proves all over again that an actor is no further away from success than one good part," Lew said. "He can step back overnight with a lucky bit of casting."

At 29, Lew has staged a comeback with a future and is right up there where he was ten years ago, when he crashed the headlines with "All Quiet on the Western Front."

To quote Lew: "After that picture, the tragic importance of Paul seemed to cast a spell over me. The majority of roles I played following that didn't seem important. I had great ideals about acting and everything, but I was only a kid of 19. Now that I'm an old man of 29, I'm a little more conscious of the tremendous financial hazard of this business, and realize we must do things that please the majority of the people and not just a few."

I don't believe Lew's done much complaining about the variety of his recent parts. Since Metro signed him to a long term contract, he's played a slap-happy, muddle-head in "Rich Man, Poor Girl," a serious minded idealist in "Young Dr. Kildare," and he's finished a college student in "Spring Madness.")And is about to put his faith in a pair of skates with Joan Crawford in "Ice Follies." So it looks as though Lew's directing days are over for a long time.

Lew, different from the general run of actors, has a tough time talking about himself, always had, especially if you touch on anything pertaining to his private life. You know, he's had two unhappy marriages—one to Lola Lane, and the second to Ginger Rogers. In fact, they've never been divorced. No need to up to date, because neither of them has felt the urge to repeat that ceremony.

Lew says he's never worked at a finer studio than Metro, where they won't stop till a thing is right. They did three sets of retakes on his last picture, "Spring Madness," the final retake merely to change an inflection.

Lew plays the piano very well and is no slouch at composing. Loves Astronomy. Lives on a hilltop, where his telescope is set up. Knows more about the stars of the heavens than of Hollywood. Loves it up there. Says it gives him balance looking at the heavens and watching mortals below. Not that he's aloof, but he's lived so much alone that he's naturally introspective, and is willing to drift with the tide. But, with his present set-up, it looks as though he'd found a safe anchorage, as well as a new start in life.

Many Famous Writers Busy in Studios

Hollywood is mapping a major offensive on the 1938-39 box office.

In line with the industry-wide "Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment" campaign, all the studios are arming to lay down a general barrage of bigger and better productions—and to reap the benefits of the boom are the scenarists.

At Paramount alone, more than 30 writers of national prominence are at work on assignments for the onslaught.

Harold Lamb, noted novelist; C. Gardner Sullivan, Jeanie McPherson and Jesse Lasky, jr., are putting finishing touches on the script of the forthcoming Cecil B. De Mille opus, "Union Pacific," to feature Joel McCrea and Barbara Stanwyck.

Playwright Preston Sturges, who wrote the script of Frank Lloyd's "If I Were King," starring Ronald Colman, is now doing the screen play of "Lady Eve" for Producer Albert Lewin, who has also signed Talbot Jennings to script "Knights of the Round Table," planned as one of the biggest productions of the coming season.

Jonathan Latimer, well-known mystery writer, and Martin Mooney, topnotch newspaper man and novelist, are collaborating on the spy story, "Men Without a Country," for Producer-Director Fritz Lang.

Gilbert Gabriel, famous author and dramatic critic, is working with Robert Thoeren on "Hotel Imperial," which will star Isa Miranda.

Novelist Charles G. Booth, who wrote "The General Died at Dawn," is adapting his own book, "Caviar for His Excellency," under the title "The World's Applause."

Claude Binyon is completing the script of "Invitation to Happiness," the next Wesley Ruggles production, starring Irene Dunne.

Virginia Van Upp, one of the country's highest paid scenarists, has done "Cafe Society," which will star Fred MacMurray and Madeleine Carroll.

Robert Carson is at work on "The Light That Failed," to be produced and directed by William Wellman following "Men With Wings;" Morrie Ryskind on "Man About Town," for Jack Benny; Ken Englund on "Midnight," for Claudette Colbert; Frederick Hazlitt Brennan on "The Senator's Husband," Nat Perrin on "The Gracie Allen Murder Case," by W. S. Van Dyne.

Twenty-six other well-known writers are at work on advance story treatments.

Rooney Engineer For Film Sequence

Mickey Rooney was the envy of every other 16-year-old boy, not because he's a film actor, but because he was given a chance to drive Union Pacific's Sunset Limited.

When Wallace Beery was doing his scenes along the side of the train, the engineer gave Rooney permission to take his place.

Tidbits Tempting, Players Nibble

Albertina Rasch, who has been breakfasting on the set of "Sweethearts" during dance rehearsals with Jeanette MacDonald, orders triple portions of all dishes from the commissary. By the time Director W. S. Van Dyke, Nelson Eddy and a few other members of the cast have casually dropped by her table and helped themselves to a couple of sausages and a piece of toast, there isn't much left for the ballet mistress.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Nov. 4.

CLIFFORD C. FISCHER: Carmen Torres of your revue at the International Casino stepped to the stage and started to sing "Traviata." . . . Just as she reached for a high note, she glanced toward the ringside table in front of her and keeled over—in a faint . . . She fainted because the ringsider was Arturo Toscanini . . . The maestro was there with Mr. and Mrs. David P. Sarnoff and John Royal . . Carmen's attention had been directed toward Toscanini when he waved toward Band Leader Vincent Travers . . . Toscanini sent a note of regret backstage and offered an autographed photo. The Sarnoffs sent Carmen some flowers.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY GEOGHAN: That bribe in your fur-racket case was passed in the Rumanian Restaurant at 40 Second avenue in Manhattan . . . J. P. Morgan: Your banking firm, in commenting upon the SEC report on the Richard Whitney case—wherein some of your partners were criticised—insists that the stock exchange officials knew about Whitney's embezzlement first. The stock exchange denies that. The Securities and Exchange Commission, therefore, may reopen the case, just to determine whether your firm or the exchange knew about it first.

WILLIAM S. PALEY: The newsreel theaters now are featuring Orson Welles explaining the Martian radio episode. Welles, however, isn't heard from the screen . . . Before Welles posed, one of your C. B. S. representatives cautioned Welles about presenting a calm attitude in front of the camera and not to indicate any worry or nervousness . . . Orson posed and made his speech—but the sound track had to be discarded. It was spoiled because your C. B. S. man, too nervous, kept kicking the sound box.

JIMMY HINES: Despite District Attorney Dewey's announcement that you positively will be tried again on November 14, you positively will NOT be tried again on that date . . . New York Times: You published a story about John Edgar Hoover's catching a huge fish in Florida—a fish which the photographers made look as small as a minnow . . . As a matter of fact, Hoover caught two 12-pound groupers, and I photographed them. His bait was my breakfast of that morning . . . Sidney Franklin: Here's some precedent, if the A. S. P. C. A. won't let you have a bull fight for the fair. In October, 1928, Charles Henderson was given a permit to give a "scientific performance with trained bulls" at the Coney Island Stadium.

THOMAS MANN: When the Nazis came to Vienna and burned Sigmund Freud's books, Freud's family waited before imparting the sad news to him . . . When Freud finally was told the truth he sighed: "Well, this just proves how far civilization has advanced." . . . "Advanced, Dr. Freud?" he was asked . . . "Yes, advanced," was the reply. "A hundred years ago they would have burned me. Now they burn only my books."

SAM RIDDLE: A. G. Vanderbilt didn't offer to bet $10,000 against $20,000 on Seabiscuit. That offer was made by Howard, owner of Seabiscuit—who was using Vanderbilt's betting agent . . . Luther Adler: Your wife, Sylvia Sidney, settled her film contract with Walter Wanger yesterday. She'll pay him $50,000 before December 1 . . . Elsa Maxwell: Brenda Frazier, the No. 1 debutante, is being yanked off to Nassau, because her Ma doesn't like all the publicity she's been getting.

TOM MIX: Sam Behrman, the playwright who wrote "Cowboy and the Lady" for Sam Goldwyn, conferred with the producer, who complained that certain portions of the script seemed phony. . . "Sam," the writer replied, "anything can seem phony—when a Goldwyn and a Behrman sit down to start discussing a corral."

ADOLF HITLER: This week's big story—about the visit of Leni Riefenstahl to this country to sell her movies of the 1936 Olympics—is a laugh to the film industry. Her film has been kicking around the United States movie offices for over a year—with not a single taker.

SPECIAL PROSECUTOR AMEN: Take a look at Robert Barke's story, "Behind the Rackets," in the forthcoming issue of Crime Detective Magazine . . . Tom Dewey: Your sponsors at the Herald Tribune reported that the Morgan report was timed for release this week for political purposes. The truth is that the report was ready in August but was delayed until now because the exchange had to submit its report first.

WPA Mails Talk Lauding It to 9,000

Sent by N. Y. Office Was Schwellenbach's Knowledge Denied Here

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 4.—Officials of the Works Progress Administration said today the New York office had mailed 9,000 copies of a speech praising the WPA to various persons throughout the State, and had done so on instructions from David Kniles, head of the WPA information section in Washington.

The speech was from the Congressional Record, and was made by United States Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), Washington. The officials said the postage on the 9,000 copies mailed in New York was paid for by WPA funds. They said they understood all State WPA offices had been distributing the speech to civic, professional and social organizations.

Works Progress officials disclaimed any knowledge today that State YPA directors had mailed out to various persons copies of a speech by Senator Schwellenbach.

Truman Felt, publicity chief, said a one-page reprint of Schwellenbach's speech in the Senate on June 7, 1938, giving a physical inventory of WPA had been sent to State directors for their information.

The action was taken, he said, on orders from David K. Niles, assistant director in charge of employment and information.

It was for the purpose, Felt added, of providing field officers with routine information. Reprinting copies from the Congressional Record was the most economical way of getting the statistical review into their hands, he said.

Told of news dispatches saying 9,000 copies had been mailed out by the WPA at New York, Felt said he knew of no la wviolation that would be involved thereby.

New York and Pennsylvania have led all States in obtaining outright gifts of 1938 PWA funds, applications for which closed yesterday.

An October count of Public Works authorizations since the beginning of the program June 22 credited New York with $72,765,563 in grants for 249 projects. Pennsylvania received $53,989,641 in grants for 254 projects.

Ohio, according to the resume, received the largest number of non-Federal projects, 482, toward which PWA contributed grants totaling $45,965, 670. Texas ran second with 312 non-Federal projects calling for $16,787,532 in grants.

(PWA grants represent 45 per cent of the estimated construction cost of a non-Federal project. Unlike PWA loans, which may be made for any or all of the remaining 55 per cent, the grants do not have to be repaid to the Government.)

Administrator Ickes announced Thursday that all 1938 allotments have been made except for a few minor projects.

In October Maryland was given grants of $6,773,261 and loans of $20,000 for 31 projects to cost $15,053,338.

Virginia received grants of $11,953,389 and loans of $216,000 for 138 projects to cost $26,554,650.

Production At Peak on Studio Lot

With capacity production at Twentieth Century-Fox studios estimated at 10 pictures working simultaneously on the 225-acre movie lot, studio facilities are completely utilized this week with 10 films before the cameras.

Of this group, three are Technicolor specials. "Jesse James" is now at work on one of the studios huge sound stages with Henry King directing Tyrone Power, Nancy Kelly, Henry Fonda and many others. "Kentucky," a saga of the sport of kings featuring Loretta Young, Richard Greene and Walter Brennan, is also being shot in color, as is the latest Shirley Temple starrer, "The Little Princess," the first Technicolor venture for the tiny box-office champion.

"Tail Spin," Twentieth Century-Fox's contribution to the cycle of aviation films, is before the cameras under Roy Del Ruth's direction, with Alice Faye, Constance Bennett, Joan Davis and Nancy Kelly cast as feminine racing pilots.

The Ritz brothers—Harry, Al and Jimmie—with the help of Don Ameche are turning Dumas' "The Three Musketeers" into farcical film fare under the direction of Allan Dwan, while the satirical "Thanks for Everything," with Adolphe Menjou, Jack Haley, Tony Martin, Arleen Whelan and Jack Oakie heading the star-studded cast, is being handled by Director William Seiter.

Under Executive Producer Sol M. Wurtzel's banner, four films are now in progress. In the final stages are Jane Withers' "The Arizona Wildcat," a story of the West in 1867, with Leo Carrillo, Henry Wilcoxon and Douglas Fowley, and "Up the River," a comedy which Alfred Werker is directing, with Preston Fosfer, Arthur Treacher, Tony Martin, Phyllis Brooks and a host of other.

Completing the studio's busiest program of the season are two tentatively titled films: "Bundle of Joy" with the Jones Family and "Samson and the Ladies," second of the Big Town Girls series featuring Lynn Bari and June Gale.

Room, Food, $3 Weekly for Wife Declared Enough

Food, shelter and $3 a week are sufficient compensation for a wife pending divorce, even if she has no telephone, no newspaper and her husband speaks only "in a hostile manner," Justice Jennings Bailey decided yesterday.

He refused temporary alimony to Mrs. Helen O. Pedersen, of 3337 Rittenhouse street northwest, pending trial of her suit for limited divorce from Askel Pedersen, a patent attorney with offices in the Colorado Building. She said she and her husband still lived in the same house but he refused to speak to her except in a hostile manner.

He gives her $3 a week, Mrs. Pedersen said, food and a luxuriantly furnished home, but dismissed the maid, stopped newspapers and had the telephone taken out.

The court said the $3, food and shelter are enough until the case is settled.

Courteous and Cautious Motorists to Be Rewarded

New York

Lehman. But nearly every one adds, as a careful afterthought, the pregnant word: "Unless——"

Dewey has carved out this record with nothing but his bare hands, speaking figuratively. Four weeks ago he was New York's fighting district attorney, the man who was not afraid of gangsters and racketeers. Tonight the Boy Scout's shadow straddles the dreams of Democratic ward heelers ina nightmare vision in which he appears as Governor next January, carrying a banner on which is emblazoned the oldest, most appealing political cry in American history, "Turn the rascals out!"

This is in direct line with the glorious American tradition that you are half St. George and half Abraham Lincoln on inauguration day, but that a few weeks later you are a bum and hanging is too soft for you.

Drivers for Dewey

To the visitor the sentiment of the man in the street here cannot be anything but amazing. Almost without exception the man in the street believes that Gov. Lehman has been a good Governor, a safe man, but almost as great a majority, in casual interviews, express a desire "for a change."

Of 17 cab drivers, interviewed consecutively and at random, 16 were going to vote for Dewey and one said he would vote for Dewey except he didn't believe votes were counted honestly. But of the 17, 10 predicted that Lehman would win "by a little."

In 21 small business places on the East Side, of 27 men, including grocers, garage men, pool table proprietors and pool table learners on, and so forth, 18 were going to vote for Dewey. But only ten thought he would win.

In three fashionable department stores on Fifth avenue, 14 clerks were divided—eight for Dewey and six for Lehman. Only five thought Dewey would win, however.

Casual surveys are not such profound indictators as the cross-section polls which are the products of carful preparation, examination and analysis. They are only significant in sensing the feel, the emotional attitude of voters at random. In that extent, an almost spectacular preference for Dewey is visible ,coupled with heavy pessimism as to his chances.

This pessimism springs from the deep-rooted cynicism that characterizes the New Yorker, who will argue with the utmost heat for his cause, but who never has faith that his cause will prevail. The belief is strong that the Democratic machines throughout the State—the powerful Buffalo, Schenectady, Rochester and Albany machines as well as the Manhattan and the borough blocs—will march their cohorts to the polls with a thoroughness and skill that will defeat the "Boy Scout."

There is much in this belief. It is no secret that the Democratic machines in some sectors, especially Albany, are bitterly afraid of Dewey. The famous O'Connell brothers—Edward and Daniel, the "thinkers," and Solly, the "leg man"—have vowed to crush the upstart Galahad so that he may never pry into their affairs. For they were shocked to their heels when Dewey opened his campaign with the blast: "We will examine a political racket, a political monopoly—the O'Connell machine in Albany. We will rip the lid off the vicious mess of corruption that exists in the very shadow of the capitol of the State."

Now this is great stuff to rural voters and to the hungry Republicans, their belts clinched around their spines after 16 years out of the feed bag. Its effect on city voters, so many of whom are tied so closely to their local Democratic machines, has been mixed thus far. Many are afraid to be anything but wholly loyal in such a dangerous emergency. But a great many others, who like the sound of a crusade, and who have hailed Dewey's racket-busting efforts the way a cat-caught mouse must hail the time arrival of a cat-hating Airedale, like it very much indeed.

Lehman Is Liked

Behind Lehman is his solid, safe, generally liked record as a sound Governor and good administrator. Behind him is the New Deal in all its ramifications nad power; the American Labor Party in all its local power; labor, local machines, money.

Behind Dewey is his spectacular success against big-time crime and a hard-headed smart young man named Kenneth L. Simpson, who is, in fact, the new Republican Party you've heard about. He is the one who thought it up. A new sort of political engineer, Simpson's credo is still the old reliable one that "the objectives are fine, but we can administer it better."

The reporters say frankly that Dewey 'stank" when he first took the stump a month ago. Some of his courtroom arogance and deliberate showmanship, designed to impress juries, clung to him now, they say.

If so, the more credit to him now. Last night, at the monster rally in the Manhattan Opera House, the demon cow-milker and barytone from the banks of the Shiawasse, Michigan, carried on with the aplomb, the ease and the power of what theater people call " a natural."

His welcome, by 5,000 persons in side and 1,000 jamming the sidewalk outside, was almost frighteningly hysterical. Those people had listened to oratory since 8 p. m. Some, in order to secure seats, had arrived at diner-time. They had clacked and hooted through their noise-makers, applauded and shouted till they were hoarse, for more than a dozen orators, but when Dewey came in they went crazy. It wasn't manufactured noise, for they forgot their tine trumpets and their clackers—they just screamed.

Down the aisle came the fife and drum corps of colored boys and girls from Harlem, startlingly garbed in yellow, while and blue. Then a National Guard band, and then a corps of Dewey Overall Girls—sub-debs in blue denims—and then Dewey, a small man, slender and compact in build, smiling at the thousands as they tried to tear his clothes off.

Lehman Cheered, too

He drew a six-minute ovation, started to speak, and had a three-minute ovation. He made a wise-crack: That he was beginning to feel like one of those Democrats the President tried to purge, and got another three-minute ovation. Then he cut loost, in that strong baritone that was trained for the opera. Half an hour later every ear drum in the House was numb and every throat rasping like a new file

In the meantime Gov. Lehman enjoyed moderate crowds and moderate applause at three stops, Westchester, the Bronx and in Harlem. The Governor is not a sensational campaigner; he speaks carefully and a little ponderously; but his long experience on the hustings has taught him a great deal about timing. He gets everything out of his speeches that he can.

If the groundswell that is now tipping the dope-bucket reaches flood-tide Tuesday anything can happen in New York. The constantly downward-revised Democratic majorities testify to that. In the meantime this is a very tough election to bet on, for that 2 to 1 on Lehman of last week, that 8 to 5 tonight, and who knows tomorrow, looks less bright every day.

If hedging-money goes out over the week-end, in the parlance of this town, there may be a Republican Governor in New York State in January.

Hospital here. Immediately afterward the enucleated optic nerve was ploced in normal salt solution in a sterized jar, sealed with wax and packed in ice, and rushed to Washington Airport, to be placed aboard the 3 p. m. plane.

From Newark Airport the precious package was taken to Presbyterian Medical center in New York by messenger.

But it was all in vain.

The demand for healthy corneas is far greater than the supply. Dr. Castroviejo, who described his surgical technique here a few weeks ago before the American Academy of Ophthalmology, said he has "several dozen" persons on his visiting list.

Dr. Moss is a member of the visiting staff at Episcopal Hospital and of the faculty of Georgetown University medical school.

William A. Van Duzer. They both supported the idea as a new means of promoting highway safety.

The merit award will read:

"Certificate of Service to the Public Safety. In appreciation of an outstanding act of courtesy and caution while driving a motor vehicle in the District of Columbia." The certificate will be signed by Richard W. Griswold, president of the Life Underwriters Association.

The association embodies all insurance companies who in recent years have conducted country-wide programs in the interest of traffic safety.

"I think this is a splendid plan," said Commissioner Hazen.

Meanwhile, Washingtonians yesterday took advantage of public hearings on proposals to ban parking adjacent to playgrounds to voice opposition to the recently revived plan to prohibit overnight parking.

The proposal to limit parking on streets adjacent to playgrounds during hours of their operation, however, received unanimous support. The ban was suggested as a measure to prevent the repetition of juvenile killings last summer.

Committee Named

A committee was appointed to draft a regulation covering this phase of child safety. The committee includes:

Traffic Director Van Duzer, Dr. Thomas Gosling, assistant superintendent of schools; Miss Sybil Baker, director of playgrounds, and Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward W. Thomas.

George Keneipp, manager of the Keystone Automobile Club, and Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the local American Automobile Association Club, favored the playground ban, but added they were opposed to any blanket prohibition until adequate off-street parking terminals are provided."

Speaking for the Federation of Citizens Associations, Harry S. Wender, chairman of the group's traffic safety committee, and Whitney Leary, chairman of the traffic advisory committee, indorsed the plan.

Hearing Slated On Women's Wage

A final public hearing to determine the minimum wage for women office workers will be held next Wednesday by the District Minimum Wage conference.

Miss Gwen Geach, secretary of the wage board, said anyone desiring to speak at the conference must notify the board before Tuesday.

The employe representatives on the wage conference ysterday submitted a budget requesting a weekly pay of $20.60. The employers have already submitted a budget for $17 per week.

U. S. to Refuse to Recognize Japan's Pact Denunciation

State

East has, he said, repeatedly been declared, and this position remains unchanged."

Japan's Reply Awaited

The statement came only a day after publication of data regarding the Brussels conference on the Sino-Japanese war, which showed the conference powers were insistent that settlement of the war must be in harmony with the Nine-Power Treaty.

It came, also, while this country was awaiting from Japan a reply to blunt United States demands, made on October 6, that she cease her interference with American-Chinese trade and relations. Though this country called for an "early" reply, the most recent word from Tokyo is that a reply "may" be sent on November 10. At that time, it was indicated, Japan is considering denouncing the Nine-Power Treaty on the grounds that it is "obsolete."

The October 6 note from the United States charged that Japanese changes in the Chinese customs tariff were "arbitrary and illegal assumptions of authority for which the Japanese government has an inescapable responsibility." It charged, also, that Japan's policies in China "indicate clearly that the Japanese authorities are seeking to establish in areas which have come under Japanese military domination general preferences for, and superiority of, Japanese interests, an inevitable effect of which will be to frustrate the practical application of the principle of the open door and deprieve American nationals of equality of opportunity."

At Press Conference

At his press conference yesterday Secretary Hull said that this country would continue to stand on existing treaties with regard to the Far East situation and, asked whether further action was contemplated now, cited the October 6 note, remarking that he didn't think he had left anything out. Later in the day the State Department statement was issued.

The Secretary denied he was consulting with other powers to induce them to denounce their commercial treaties with Japan and said he had not heard reports that the Nine-Power signatories were being canvassed to determine whether they would abide by the treaty.

Determination of this country to maintain the pact, holding to it both China and Japan, is supported by absence from the treaty itself of any provision for its abandonment by any of the signers. Its legal obliteration, presumably, could be attained only by agreement among all the signers.

22 Cities and TVA To Pay $1,600,000 For Power Firm

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 4 (AP).—Negotiators announced agreement was reached here today for a group of 22 cities and the TVA to buy out the West Tennessee Power & Light Co. for $1,600,000. The TVA will pay $509,000 and the cities $1,091,000.

Joe Swidler, TVA attorney, said the deal would mean a saving of about 45 per cent to customers.

West Tennessee P. & L. is a subsidiary of national power and light, which recently sold its Knoxville distribution system and has agreed to sell the Memphis Power & Light Co. for $13,500,000, with Memphis paying $11,500,000 and the TVA $2,000,000 of the purchase price.

7 Young Robbers To Face Line-up

Seven young robbers, captured two nights ago for the robbery of Harry Woodard, 40, of 3420 Sixteenth street northwest, who was knocked down and robbed of $500 in cash and $1,600 worth of uncashed racehorse tickets, as he was walking along H street northwest in front of Lafayette Park, the night of October 26, will appear in a line-up at Police Headquarters, next Tuesday.

Believed to be the revived "13 gang" which committed a score of robberies and assaults more than two years ago, the prisoners are suspected of a score of recent holdups.

Lindsay Sees Hull; Treaty Held Imminent

By the Associated Press.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, conferred with State Department officials yesterday on the Anglo-American trade agreement.

At his press conference Secretary Hull said the negotiations were in their final stages. Other officials said they believed signing of the treaty was imminent. Some said they thought this would be announced soon after next week's elections.

The trade agreement with Canada is likewise nearly ready and, it is expected, will be announced at or about the same time as the British agreement.

Mirrors Make Old Columns Beautify Store

In the modernization of stores, shops or other commercial establishments, structural obstacles which interfere with good store layout frequently are encountered.

These may be piers or columns which cannot be removed without major structural changes, as they represent building supports. If they can be eliminated without endangering the safety of the place of business, their removal is advisable for increasing space.

If not, they may be converted into points of vantage and become assets rather than liabilities. Attractive mirrors to please customers, reflect light and enlarge the vista may be attached to them with good effect. Shelves or show cases may be built around them for display merchandise.

Awkward angles and corners that cannot be eliminated may often be converted into special departments or wash rooms or else be used for storage, repair, or work rooms.

Dangerous Practice

Reports that Chairman Frank R. McNinch of the Federal Communications Commission has demanded the resignation of Davis G. Arnold, chief examiner, raises two vital issues. The first concerns the dismissal of civil service employes of long standing without a hearing of specific charges against them. And the second concerns the sloppy methods of selecting personnel which seems to underlie much of the FCC's difficulty.

Mr. Arnold is a civil service employe of 17 years' standing. If he can be suddenly ousted from his post in the FCC, without a hearing, the protection which the merit system is supposed to afford will mean very little. Presumably Mr. McNinch has positive reasons for wishing to replace a number of FCC employes. Perhaps these changes would enhance the efficiency of the commission. On the other hand, arbitrary dismissal of civil service employes would certainly have a demoralizing effect upon the entire personnel of the Federal Government.

A court of appeals to hear Federal personnel grievances is under discussion in Administration circles. It is precisely such cases as that of Mr. Arnold which should be carried before such a body. Until an agency of this sort is established, however, officials should be careful not to undermine the civil service system by ousting employes who have not been proved to be unfit for further service.

Of course, it should be recognized that Mr. McNinch is attempting to deal with a very serious problem within the FCC. Some of the commission's examiners are trained and competent men. Others are political hacks. Some of these misfits have obtained their positions through devious manipulation of civil service procedure. No doubt that is a major source of the inferior work said to have been done by some parts of Mr. Arnold's division.

It is absurd to expect the highest type of public service from an agency or bureau weighted down with insubordinate or incompetent politicians. Obviously the civil service system needs to be reformed at the intake end. In this as well as many other governmental agencies the real competitive merit system has never been given a chance. The way to correct this deficiency is not to institute a purge in civil service ranks, which may further weaken the system, but to set up safeguards against its abuse in the original selection of employes.

The Schools Of Dayton

There is more than local significance in the fact that 34,000 pupils attending Dayton's public schools have been temporarily deprived of the opportunity to continue their studies. Its importance goes beyond the fact that for many of the 1,300 teachers and other school employes the vacation enforced by an acute financial crisis will entail real hardship.

The experiences of the Chicago school teachers, forced by gross political and financial mismanagement to receive scrip instead of cash in payment of salaries and to dispose of it at heavy discounts, is still in mind. In all parts of the country, indeed, school closings, shortened terms, nonpayment of teachers or payment at starvation rates have resulted from the depression. However, these misfortunes have been generally due to the financial inability of States and local governments to provide needed funds for financing their educational programs.

The plight of Dayton appears to be traceable to another cause—a well-meant but badly conceived reform plan to finance local education through a State educational foundation into which flow certain earmarked taxes. Unfortunately, the earmarked revenues fall far short of needs and the department of education was forced to issue deficit certificates against which the localities could borrow. After the deficit had risen to $17,000,000 it was decided to discontinue the issuance of certificates, which were adding interest charges to other costs.

So Dayton simply closed its educational plant until money is available. The municipality will vote at next week's election on a special local levy. If approved, that will keep the schools open for another year. But the funds from this tax will not be immediately forthcoming and other communities are reported to be in much the same condition as Dayton. The closing of the schools of this large industrial center may, therefore, serve a purpose in forcing speedy reforms upon the State.

A State function as essential to democracy as education should be provided for out of assured revenues, not financed from the proceeds of earmarked taxes of uncertain yield. Any such system necessitates unforeseen and undesirable economies, and prevents intelligent and progressive handling of educational problems. If Dayton's plight serves to drive that fact home, the deplorable episode will have served constructive purpose.

Seats Or Men?

To some extent next Tuesday's elections have been overshadowed by the recent primary contests. The popular indorsement accorded Democratic Senators who were willing to risk executive displeasure has gone far to insure that the next Congress will not be a mere rubber stamp, regardless of the way the ballots run on November 8. And that question of legislative independence is really the major issue on which the electorate is now called to express its sovereign decision.

The Republicans are naturally encouraged by the failure of the President's effort to purge his own party of "yes, but" men. This failure indicated the strength and extent of potential opposition sentiment. And it is easy to argue that the logical place for opposition is in the opposition party. On this reasoning a vigorous campaign, particularly strong in the pivotal central States, has been waged by the Republican organization. It is counted upon to swing a substantial number of close seats, where the balance of power is held by a small number of independent votes, to the quondam G. O. P.

But even the forecasts most optimistic from the Republican viewpoint do not envisage a loss of the Democratic majority in the House. In the Senate, where only one-third of the seats are contested, continuance of Democratic control is a certainty. Mr. Roosevelt, therefore, need not fear that loss of executive power which is so often a danger in the off-year election of a President's second term. The new Congress will not be preponderantly hostile to his leadership.

The Congress which convenes in January will not be hostile. But that is not to say that it will be subservient. A Democratic Congress, as the primaries strongly indicated, need not be a New Deal Congress. A tacit coalition between a revived Republican minority and the critical Democratic wing could make Mr. Roosevelt, for the next two years, nearly as impotent as was Mr. Wilson after the 1918 elections, or Mr. Hoover after those of 1930. For this reason the Administration has been straining every nerve to stem the obvious swing of independent voters to the Republican standard.

President Roosevelt's address at Hyde Park was essentially a plea for preservation of the New Deal. His fears for the future were summed up in a single sentence: "A social or economic gain made by one Administration may, and often does, evaporate into thin air under the next one." Indeed, he went so far as to predict that fascism and communism will grow in strength "if American democracy ceases to move forward as a living force." The clear implication is that only through the New Deal can our system of government be saved.

In praising Gov. Lehman and the Democratic senatorial candidates of New York the President did not deviate from this theme. Their success s incidental to his larger objective of keeping the New Deal in the saddle.

Reading between the lines of the President's speech last night it is easy to see the great importance which he attaches to Tuesday's contest. There was a clear suggestion that it is to be regarded as a vote of confidence on the New Deal as a unified program, the intimation being that those who vote Republican will thereby serve as an impediment to social progress. In view of the virtual certainty of a continued Democratic majority in both houses of the next Congress the importance attached to the coming election by Mr. Roosevelt might seem a little exaggerated.

The date in the President's mind, however, is not next week but 1940. It is not so much the composition of the next Congress but the bearing of that Congress on the next Democratic nominating convention which concerns the White House. To have that Congress safely acceptable to Mr. Roosevelt, leaving all third-term talk aside, the Administration must in the ensuing months retain legislative power behind its program—whatever this may be. The next Congress, in the President's opinion, must be New Deal rather than Democratic. The failure of the purge makes this not less, but more, essential.

The Republicans equally have their eyes focused on 1940. With them the outstanding need of this mid-term election is to produce potential leadership, in which their party is now so clearly lacking. Numerous representation in the next Congress is less important to the G. O. P. than vital representation. And it is for this reason that the very vigorous campaign waged for the New York governorship by Thomas E. Dewey has attracted so much Nation-wide attention. Mr. Dewey's election would make no immediate difference to Republican legislative strength. But it would be a sign that this party is preparing for a real comeback, under new and constructive leadership, in 1940.

The mid-term election of November 8 is thus destined to be a major determinant in our national politics. And the issue at stake is clarified by the different attitudes of the two parties toward the test. From the viewpoint of the Administration the essential objective is to capture a large preponderance of New Deal seats. From the viewpoint of the opposition the essential objective is to elect outstanding men.

Airport Delay

Continued delay of the Gravelly Point Airport project is causing no little concern to Washingtonians eager to see the hazards of flying in and out of Washington eliminated at the earliest possible moment. It is five weeks since President Roosevelt announced that PWA and WPA funds would be used to develop a model air terminal on the South bank of the Potomac. Yet no formal application for PWA funds has been made.

Major projects of this sort always require careful and detailed planning. Ordinarily it would be unwise to suggest haste in the completion of preliminary arrangements. In this case, however, the work must actually be under way before January 1 if PWA funds are to be used. Moreover, the PWA has only $5,000,000 left in its Federal projects fund. While this sum is presumably being held in reserve for the airport, it is nevertheless to the interest of Washington to have the actual contract signed as quickly as feasible.

Planning of the project has been handicapped by a number of factors. Two small parcels of land in private ownership must be purchased. Funds for the construction work must be drawn from a number of different sources. In addition to PWA and WPA, the Army Engineers Corps and the Civil Aeronautics Authority are co-operating in the undertaking. And, finally, no funds have been available to finance the tests considered essential before actual work begins.

Another factor which complicates the problem centers in the laboratories, being constructed by the Bureau of Public Roads, adjacent to the new landing field. The Department of Agriculture has permitted work on these structures to go forward despite protests. Gravelly Point had not been selected as the Capital City's model airport site when work on these laboratories began. But it was under serious consideration, and the President's preference for Gravelly Point was well known.

Appeals to the President at that time to stop the erection of a potential hazard were unavailing. So the designers of the new terminal have been confronted by the problem of minimizing dangers resulting from the existence of buildings destined to rise 110 feet above the airport level a short distance behind the proposed administration and service buildings. Protests against this hazard have been registered by the National Air Line Pilots Association, the National Aeronautics Association, the Aero Club of Washington and the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Whether or not these buildings must be removed is a question for experts to decide. It would be disgraceful, however, if any of the obstacles that have thus far delayed the Gravelly Point project should continue to deny the Nation's Capital an adequate airport at a time when the entire Administration seems committed to the long-overdue development.

Eyes On Africa

The ceremonial visit of an American warship to the capital of Liberia this week was said to have no international significance. Though it is the first time that an American naval vessel has anchored off Monrovia for ten years the call was said to be a routine affair, prompted primarily by the dedication of the new American legation at the capital of the little African republic.

Coming at this time, however, with the possibility opening up of a redistribution of colonial territory for the benefit of Germany, this manifestation of American interest in Liberia has rather broad implications.

Any repartitioning of Africa, whether involving Liberia or not, might have a vital bearing on American interests. With the westernmost end of the Dark Continent far closer to the easternmost tip of South America than our Atlantic seaboard is to Europe, any changes in the political map of Africa could not be viewed with indifference by the United States.

Thus the routine visit of the Boise suggests a more than routine interest in a corner of the world seemingly remote from our immediate concern.

Learn To Kick

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Signs increase that American democracy does not deserve to continue and will give way to despotism.

Some time ago I waited for three hours for a road test for a driver's permit. Up to noon 50-odd cars had arrived, each with driver and applicant for the permit, and all these cars (except the earliest arrivals) and more arriving in the afternoon, had to wait two or three hours, probably 300 to 400 man-hours of waiting. The victims, when asked if they would make any protest, all said that people had always had to wait and protests were useless. How can democracy survive when the citizens have no more public spirit than that?

No doubt, as the chief examiner told me, I picked an unusually bad day, following a period of rain during which road tests were not given, but the evidence shows that waiting has been excessive. The outcome was by no means discouraging. Convinced that Commissioner Hazen, for example, did not realize the outrageous waste of the citizen's time which was going on, I presented the case to him. The situation was immediately vastly improved and so continues, the block reserved for applicants being nearly empty of cars.

Commissioner Hazen is surely not the only official trying to do a difficult job as well as possible, and if the citizens will learn to kick—politely but firmly—instead of merely grumbling, the administration of public business will improve.

Oil For The Nazis

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A noted historian made a statement last week at a club in Washington, which coming from such a source assumed importance. He stated that he had remarked recently to a friend of his, a wealthy oil man, "I suppose you are selling airplane fuel to Germany?" And his friend replied, "Of course."

The historian, commenting on this, said that if American citizens continue to sell airplane fuel by the tanker load to Germany, who has no oil fields herself, Germany will store the fuel, and when she is ready to put her war planes in the air in actual warfare, America will know that she has contributed largely to Germany's efficiency in laying waste civilization.

If a sentiment could be created in the United States to make is unpopular and an unpatriotic act for American oil companies to supply Germany with fuel for her air fleet, it would be an achievement for the newspaper responsible for starting such a campaign.

Eliminating Germany as a buyer from the Mexican oil fields would be another worthy enterprise.

Blames "Journalistic Demagogues"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The public reaction to that inappropriate broadcast on Sunday night is a sad reflection of the public state of mind assiduously cultivated by the majority of our radio and newspaper commentators. There is hardly a voice among the whole lot that reflects what used to be called "hard American common sense." Political commentators of many years' standing have given such hysterical performances on the radio in the last several weeks that I have listened and turned them off in disgust.

Writers such as Raymond Buell, Walter Lippmann and Dorothy Thompson give similar performances in their newspaper columns. Political demagogues are intolerable, but your journalistic demagogues are even worse. They have produced in the uninformed masses a state of mind which is absolutely at variance with the peace which the statesmen of the world, at least, are seeking.

It matters nothing, now, to these publicists that war was put off by the Munich settlement, although when the crisis seemed most hopeless they were strangely silent on the proposition of declaring war on Germany, which was the only alternative to negotiation. It matters nothing to these people that when there is an element of truth and justice in a country's claims, no democratic, justice-loving country can go to war on the issue. There is only one thing to do and that is to discuss the question over the conference table and make just concessions to just claims, conceding not one whit to unjust claims.

The extent of the discussions at Munich will not be known for years, but it is safe to assume that many of the unjust provisions of the peace "settlement" of 1919 were reconsidered and rectifications proposed. The next few years, or even months, will reveal the results of those discussions.

That there is going to be a war as the consequence of the Munich entente does not necessarily follow. It is an assumption of writers and commentators which is being shouted loudly and long, with the result that the general public is being put into the psychological mood for war, and that mood is being cultivated and strengthened by the public utterances of highest government officials. War propaganda is showing its deadly effects—witness the false alarm of Sunday evening!

There need not be war. The will of the people to preserve peace by doing justice at the conference table can be just as carefully cultivated. That should be the attitude and state of mind of true democracies. It was the state of mind last month before Munich and can still be the state of mind, if people will listen to reason and justice and not to hysterical outbursts which cloud the real issues and only demonstrate the wishes of certain groups, some of whom desire the enforcement at any cost of the provisions of the Versailles Treaty, others of whom wish the destruction of the German and Italian dictatorships no matter what the cost and consequences to the rest of the world.

Justice requires us to admit that other countries have the right to live and to trade abroad to the extent of maintaining themselves at a decent living standard at home, regardless of their form of government and its obnoxiousness to others. Association with Communist Russia has been accepted on that basis, I believe. An examination of the policies of Germany and Italy will reveal attempts to carry on trade in areas which naturally fall within the economic activities of those countries, namely, the Balkan and Danubian areas.

Many of us realize that the clash in 1914 was caused by the economic rivalry of Germany and Great Britain. Germany then had vast colonies in Africa, possessions in the Pacific, and was in close relationship with Austria-Hungary. Today, Great Britain and France—not Belgium — have Germany's African colonies. Germany has Austria and the parts of Austria handed to Czechoslovakia in 1919. She is now seeking her natural sphere of trade in central and southeastern Europe.

Is Great Britain going to nullify the effects of the Munich agreement, and after yielding part of Czechoslovakia to Germany prepare for war against Germany once more because of trade in the Balkans? That is the real question today.

It is time some of our publicists were cutting through the fogs of prejudice and emotion and throwing the clear light of day upon the real bases of foreign policy at home and abroad.

A D. C. Lottery?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The fiscal affairs and needs of the District of Columbia are almost every day shaping up so as to make an official District lottery for relief and other welfare purposes the only reasonable and practicable means of escape.

Does the District want to have the Federal Government or some State or large municipality beat the District to an official lottetry? Such a lottery elsewhere in the United States than in the District would make serious complications in Washington and greatly impair the prospects for a successful lottery of that kind in the District. There are strong movements elsewhere in the country for legalized lotteries, and I understand that the Legislature of one Western State at its next session will take final action on a lottery measure.

The question of morals seems to be the only important difficulty in the way of an official District lottery specifically for public purposes of the most commendable character. The administration of such a lottery would be absurdly easy and inexpensive; its success as a revenue producer and as a remedy for many of the present intolerable conditions would be assured. There would be absolutely no risk of loss to the District government, with a provision, of course, that the receipts must always be more than the total of the prizes. The monthly or quarterly drawings could be so arranged as to attract immense crowds to Washington, with huge benefits to all forms of business.

An official lottery for beneficial purposes would have a very diverting and discouraging effect upon spendings for evil habits. Moreover, it would give many people that better care in sickness, suffering and starvation of which they are now so often deprived.

We must remember that one of the principal reasons urged for the repeal of prohibition was that it would discourage intemperance and violation of law, and the proponents of such repeal are prepared to show that it has had such effects. There is much that could be said against any argument that an official lottery could no more be defended on moral grounds than other forms of legalized gaming or legalized sexual vice.

Senator King, who, as chairman of the Senate District Committee, would have so much to say upon this question, is represented in the press as being against "legalized gambling," but I doubt very much if he has considered the pros and cons of an official District lottery for the specified purposes of public relief and other welfare purposes. I would be as much opposed to any other form of lottery as would the Senator. HENRY A. HAYWARD.

The Post Impressionist

"With Boots On"

THE FLAT lands lengthened behind us, and ahead, a glowering sky promised an equinoctial storm. To Easterners like ourselves, it was a long way between towns in Kansas. We were glad to see the houses thicken and grow into a city, for it meant a hot supper and rest, and perhaps a roof while the storm lasted.

I consulted the map. "Dodge City," I repeated to myself, trying to recall some dim association with the name. I turned to my husband, who is a sort of a peripetetic encyclopedia of historical lore. "Do you remember anything about this place?"

His reply was not as detailed nor specific as usual, but he did recall that it had something of a blood-and-thunder reputation in the old days when it was the end of the railroad. It had once been the gateway to the East, and cattlemen drove their herds from the great Western prairies for shipment to market.

Evidently Time, as well as Carrie Nation and the eighteenth amendment, had done their best to obliterate any remains of the rowdy old days, but we decided to drive around a little, for it was just past 4 o'clock and no restaurant would have the evening meal ready. Looking from time to time at the gathering clouds, we drove up and down streets in no way different from hundreds of streets in hundreds of American towns, seeing nothing of especial interest—nothing that would call up ghosts of pioneers, of swearing gamblers and singing cowboys. But I knew by all the signs that my husband was trying to find some particular spot, and I hoped that the storm would not prevent his locating it.

Presently we came to the courthouse, and he stopped the car. As he opened the door he explained that he had heard that this would be worth seeing. It was. Inside the yard the skeleton of a tree rattled in the wind, with a pair of boots dangling by a heavy rope. "This was the gallows," my husband announced, with the air of introducing me to a grizzly old reprobate whose very age had given him the aspect of a patriarch. I bowed slightly but drew back to avoid a kick from one of the boots that was prancing in the breeze with a debonair attitude probably acquired from its former wearer.

With a muttered "Pray, don't apologize," I turned to face the horrifying sight of what appeared to be a small cemetery peopled with reclining figures. We walked over to the nearest, and I felt rather like a ghoul as my astonished eyes caught sight of a plaster cast face of some long-dead hoodlum who had very likely come to his end dangling from the very limb that sported the boots. The death mask was lying directly under the marker, and some 6 feet down, across the dusty clay, a half-buried pair of shoes pointed their toes skyward in pious resignation.

The black clouds piled up in the East, but a coppery glow penetrated at the horizon line, shedding a weird light over the graves. It was like a Dore drawing that had taken on tone and dimension. All sensible people were under good solid roofs, so there was no one to answer our questions. We wondered what boisterous and unholy imagination was responsible. Was it some old-time sheriff, or a coroner whose frequent association with death had rendered him familiar enough to lose any feeling of awe? Or perhaps it was the outlet for some highly original form of creative talent. Circumstances seemed to point to an interest in dentistry, for some of the masks were equipped with complete sets of teeth, which were displayed in broad smiles.

The epitaphs were enough to send obituary collectors into a frenzy. I wish now that I had copied them, but the wind was rising, and it was growing very dark. My instinct told me to look quickly and be off. The sheriff-coroner-dentist-undertaker-sexton at least was poetically reticent, for most of the lines on the wooden markers were terse. For instance (according to the best of my memory):

Here Lies——
He Was Short on the Draw

Another told a tale of pioneer politics:

Here Lies So-and-So
In 187- He Ran For The Sheriff.
In 188- He Ran From The Sheriff.

There was another about Little Nell, the Dance Hall Belle, with the obvious rhyme unblushingly present.

The dust whirled about us, forming little clouds that blew and scattered and vanished and reappeared, and I had a gruesome feeling that it was giving us an impish sermon about our future. I clutched my husband's arm and pulled him toward the street and the familiar haven of our car. The first big drops of rain splattered down, striking the dust like millions of exclamation points. By the time the car doors shut upon us the clouds had opened and we could scarcely see the gaunt old tree through the curtain of water.

It was not yet 5 o'clock, and we drove on through the rain toward the next town. For some reason we were not at all hungry.

Fair Enough

Ennobling Failure

INSIDIOUSLY, these last few years, there has developed in the mind of this country a sense that success in business or the professions or in whatever field is somewhat a matter of apology and reproach rather than for satisfaction and pride. Of course, hereditary millionaires always did command the contempt of the people, largely because so many of them, being only one or two generations away from the red cloth on the kitchen table and still preserving the old family blackjack with which the original fortune was won, were conspicuous for their frivolity.

PEGLER

One could scan the records of the famous rich families of Newport—the set which, incidentally, popularized casual divorce—and find not a single achievement to the credit of any descendant, offshoot or in-law of any of the original buccaneers who, in some cases, did contribute to the country's development by promoting railroads, mines and industries.

ONCE, IN LOOKING through the clips about a famous fourth-generation scion of New York and Newport of a name always associated with extravagance, snobbery and domestic scandal, I came on an old story which mentioned that the subject of the piece was an engineer of parts who had made a notable contribution to the science of bridge building. There was nothing further on this line, however, and inquiry revealed the fact that some rewrite man in preparing a canned obit some years before had made an amusing mistake.

The subject was an expert on bridge, an amateur card shark, and the writer, apparently misreading his data, had endowed a member of an old and numerous family of parasites with talents that were not in him.

NOWADAYS, however, inheritances are reduced by taxes, so that unless the descendants of a wealthy man keep hustling the wheel comes a full turn and they find themselves approximately where the old man started. Investments wash out, too, so the challenge to the comman man's sense of proportion and economic justice should not be as flagrant as it was in the time of the late Harry Lohr, the memorable hehoyden of the old regime.

Only a few members of the so-called cafe society of New York today would be worth $10 a frisk, and some of them are frankly and commercially on the mooch at resort hotels, trading the prestige of their names, which somehow do carry prestige with people with fresh money, for their room and keep. Some of the more intelligent old-time booties of the speakeasy period who carry on now with joints described as swank could a tale unfold about the impecuniosity of certain scions and scionesses of cafe society and some of the nonsociety pub-crawlers who have just barged in. After all, a society cafe is just a saloon with a band.

IT COULD BE said, however, that there are many energetic and able citizens still trying and doing better than just fair who have no taste for saloon life. The drive is still working in ambitious men, some of whom manage to succeed and under much more stringent rules than governed competition in the old days.

Yet there is a sort of feeling that it is unsporting if not unpatriotic of a man to make good and make some money while so many others lack or cannot press opportunities. If a man does come along, even under the extraordinary difficulties of the time, there is a suspicion that he stole it or that he just happened to know where the body was buried.

PERHAPS HE doesn't deserve to be cheered in the streets, for ideas have changed since Irving's time, but neither should he be put under suspicion on the mere ground of his having done well, as often happens in the political oratory of New Deal statesmen whose indictment is general, with specific exceptions for Joe Kennedy, Tommy Corcoran, Harold Ickes and the President's son, James.

The psychological effort of this is to ennoble not only misfortune but failure, from whatever cause, including incompetence and sloth, and to put a blame and a brake on ambition in men, but for whose enterprise, ability and hard work there would be neither job nor taxes nor any possibility of recovery under capitalism.

Sine Qua Non

If all else were reduced to dust, but free inquiry alone remained, it could rebuild the world. And this is why it is our most precious possession, which men have fought to preserve in every time and place. The liberty of the mind can be abused, not all who cry aloud in its name are true defenders of the faith. We must learn to see through the pretensions of men who wrap themselves in the cloak of freedom. Monopoly Suit Filed Against Columbia Gas

One of Nation's Largest Told by Cummings Calls System Illegal

Attorney General Cummings announced yesterday the Government was filing an anti-trust suit at Wilmington, Del., against Columbia Gas and Electric Corp., one of the Nation's largest holding companies, and its subsidiary, Warfield Natural Gas Co.

The suit, Cummings said, charges the Columbia corporation with conspiring since Febraury, 1930, to monopolize the distribution of natural gas in Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio and Michigan.

The complaint urged the court to issue an injunction compelling Columbia to divest itself of its holdings in the American Fuel and Power Co. and of any control over companies resulting from reorganization of that system.

Cummings charged the Columbia corporation illegally gained control over the American Company and two of its principal subsidiaries, Inland Gas Corp. and Kentucky Fuel Corp., and then attempted to reorganize the system in a way favorable to itself.

Says It Dominates 60 Companies.

Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation dominates the operations of more than 60 subsidiaries engaged in producing electricity and natural, mixed and artificial gas, Cummings' statement said. United Corporation, an investment trust sponsored by J. P. Morgan & Co., has regularly owned from 20 to 25 per cent of its stock, it added. Subsidiaries in the Columbia system serve about 900 cities, Cummings estimated.

"In the judgment of the department," his statement read, "evidence in the present case shows the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation considered the American Fuel and Electric Corporation a 'raider' in its territory, and that the defendants conspired to eliminate the latter company and its subsidiaries as competitors."

(A "raider," in power company parlance, is an independent company which attempts to undersell gas or power in territory controlled by a holding company).

The Justice Department decided to take civil rather than criminal action against the Columbia system, Cummings said, because "the fact that the principal overt act occurred eight years ago makes it inequitable to institute criminal proceedings at this date."

Replies to Action

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation, replying to the civil and antitrust action brought against it today by the Department of Justice, fully defended its natural gas policies, which, it said, "has always been in the public interest."

The statement said:

"The declared purpose of the suit filed is to require Columbia's system to divest itself of the control and ownership of securities of American Fuel & Power Co. and the subsidiaries of that company, Inland Gas Corporation and Kentucky Fuel Gas Corporation. The purchase of such securities was made in 1930. These properties have been operated in receivership or bankruptcy under the jurisdiction of the Federal court ever since 1931, and no earnings therefrom have ever been included in the consolidated statement of Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation and its subsidiaries.

"The total investment in the securities in question is now carried by Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation, at less than one-fourth of 1 per cent of its total assets. The contention of the Government is that this acquisition by Columbia was for the purpose of preventing competition in natural gas operations and was in restraint of trade.

"The policy of Columbia's system has been to maintain and increase its operating reserve acreages as necessary to assure to its present and prospective consumers an adequate supply of gas for all present and prospective increasing demands in the future.

"This policy has been followed consistently and is essential for the maintenance of the service and stability of the company in its operations."

Ford, Chrysler Ready to Settle Financing Case

Say U. S. Will Accept Action to Be Dropped Accused of Coercion

By the Associated Press.

Informed persons said yesterday the Ford Motor Co. and the Chrysler Corporation would file consent decrees at South Bend, Ind., Monday, providing for regulation of certain trade practices in the auto financing industry.

Simultaneously, these persons said, Attorney General Cummings will advise the court that the Justice Department agrees to the settlement.

The consent decrees, reached after five months of negotiations, are expected to result in the Government's withdrawing anti-trust charges now pending against the Ford and Chrysler companies.

These firms and General Motors Corporation were indicted by a Federal grand jury at South Bend May 27. They and their affiliated finance companies were charged with coercing dealers into favoring those finance companies over independent ones.

The Ford and Chrysler decrees, which would become effective 120 days after being approved by the court, are unusual in that they would be voided automatically if the Government failed to win its pending case against General Motors.

The proposed agreements require that both Ford and Chrysler "shall permit any finance company or other person to pay for any automobile shipped or otherwise delivered by the manufacturer to any dealer upon written . . . authority of the dealer." The manufacturers also agree not to give their affiliated finance companies any competitive advantage over independent finance firms.

Another agreement is not to coerce any dealer into favoring the manufacturer-affiliated finance companies by threatening to cancel his contract, and further, to abandon any payment of "rebates" to dealers for steering customers to them.

Group Health Jury Ponders Maze of Records

A towering maze of records, letters and memoranda yesterday occupied the extraordinary grand jury which for three weeks has been hearing Government claims that the American Medical Association and the District Medical Society conspired to destroy Group Health Association, Inc.

For the first day since the jury began the inquiry, no witness was heard. The data studied was understood to include correspondence exchanged in the period when G. H. A. charges the physicians' organizations were coercing its staff members to quit, under pain of professional reprisals if they refused.

Also studied, it was understood, were records of the A. M. A. and of certain District hospitals.

Student Poll Favors O'Conor

Results of a campus-wide straw vote indicate that University of Maryland students favor Attorney General O'Conor over Gov. Nice for the Governorship.

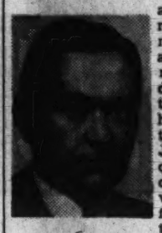
Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Mr. Chamberlain And Mr. Hull

WITHIN THE PAST week a situation has been developing in the Far East which may easily cause the American Government acute embarrassment in the near future and in the long run a serious danger. Three things have happened. In the face of the Japanese conquest of all the doors to China, we have reaffirmed our treaty right to the Open Door.



LIPPMANN.

The Japanese have replied by proclaiming the establishment of what is in effect a greater Japanese empire. And in the House of Commons Mr. Chamberlain has in effect recognized this empire and has expressed his desire to have British capital give "some help" in the reconstruction of China.

Thus we find ourselves at the moment opposed to Japan on a question of fundamental principle and diverging from Great Britain in theory and in practice. It will be prudent to take stock, and to make sure that we know what we are doing and that we have weighed the consequences.

IN THE YEAR 1922 we convened an international conference in Washington at which two far-reaching agreements were arrived at. One was a pledge by nine powers, including Japan and China, Great Britain and America, to respect the territorial integrity of China and the Open Door. The other was an agreement limiting the size of the American Navy and the development of naval bases in the Far Pacific to a point avowedly designed to make it impossible for the United States to wage war in Asiatic waters.

It was obvious at the time to many observers that the naval disarmament meant that China would have to defend herself if she were attacked by Japan, since neither Great Britain nor the United States could effectively intervene. Whatever rights we possessed under the Nine-Power Treaty were in fact made unenforceable under the Naval Treaty.

NINE YEARS LATER, in September, 1931, the radically new situation created in 1922 was put to the test. Japan invaded Manchuria; by this act she violated the territorial integrity of China and obtained the power to close the Open Door in one part of China. We took a firm and uncompromising stand upon the principles of the treaty. But in the last analysis we knew and Japan knew that we would limit our attempt to enforce our rights to a mobilization of world opinion. Not only were the American people opposed to a war about China but the condition of the Navy prohibited any action which might have led to war. Thus it was demonstrated at the beginning of Japan's great campaign for empire that we would not intervene to oppose her.

We did, however, refuse to recognize the conquest. This signified that we hoped the Chinese would resist and would eventually reconquer what they had lost. But having taken an attitude which encouraged the Chinese to fight on, we then adopted a new philosophy of neutrality which, as it happened, suited the Japanese very well indeed.

NOW THAT THE Japanese have taken possession of all the main ports of entry, now that the Chinese resistance is so much more difficult than it ever was, we have made another uncompromising affirmation of all the rights that, since 1931, we have not been willing or able to enforce. What we must note particularly is that whereas seven years ago in the Manchuria affair, whereas even one year ago at the Brussels Conference, we at least had Great Britain with us in our protests, it looks very much indeed as if this time we may be standing quite alone. For Mr. Chamberlain's remarks in the House of Commons this week would seem to indicate that he means to make the best bargain he can with the new Japanese empire.

The immediate question for us is how, if we are going to antagonize the Japanese on an issue which is a fighting matter for them and not a fighting matter for us, we are to emerge from the controversy with dignity. The second question is how, if we challenge Japan in China when Japan is in miltary possession of the strategic centers, we are going to protect effectively such interests as we possess in China. For such protection as we can now give to American lives, property and cultural interests in China, we can give only at very long range.

BUT THERE IS a much more important question involved, though it affects the long future rather than the immediate present. It is the question of our relations with the British Empire in the Pacific. The divergence between Mr. Chamberlain's attitude and Mr. Hull's is fraught with such tremendous implications that one wonders whether the two governments are fully aware of them, and whether they realize what it may mean to the English-speaking peoples.

Before they go further, on separate, diverging and conceivably even on opposing lines, both in London and in Washington, men ought to stop, look and listen. Admittedly the problem presented to both countries by the Japanese conquest is enormously difficult and disagreeable. But before London or Washington commit themselves irrevocably to dangerously different policies, they should at least make the effort to see the problem in the same perspective. If they do that they will recognize that Anglo-American relations are infinitely wider and greater than the profits of the China trade can ever be to Englishmen or than the sanctity of an unenforceable treaty can ever be to Americans.

THE TWO GOVERNMENTS have responsibilities that far transcend their interests in China, responsibilities that run parallel in both the oceans. Now, of all times, these responsibilities should not be forgotten, and they should not be sacrificed or confused by the notion that a statesman is "realistic" when he is short-sighted or that he is "idealistic" when he promises more than he can perform.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

AND NOW in this silly season, an unnamed correspondent writes the Justice Department to investigate where the Naval Academy gets its goats, claiming that one man has a monopoly. The Justice monopoly experts passed the query to the Academy, which passed it on to the Navy Athletic Association, which, for all we know, may be wondering now why they don't pick on the Army's mule. It was the first aspersion cast at the Navy under the present national Administration—which is supposed to defend the Navy against all waggish fingers.

FROM THE Munitions Building, that too dimly lighted environment that now holds a contention over facilities in the so-called welfare rooms, comes this communication:

". . . in the days of our enlistment we could get minor treatment in the Navy Dispensary and there was also maintained an emergency room for the civilian (women) employes. I never heard of one for the men. Recently the emergency room has been abolished and, as far as I know, there is no place of its kind in the Navy Department. The civilian personnel cannot use the Navy Dispensary, only getting treatment upon the written request of the Chief Clerk in one's Bureau. Extreme emergency treatment will be given, but is not encouraged. The Navy Dispensary is for the officers and their families. With the addition now being built to the Navy Department, possibly an emergency room has been taken into consideration. I hope so, for while the majority of employes never need such a room, it is quite necessary to every working establishment."

CHAIRMAN McNinch, of the FCC, is taking the current tribulation more personally to heart than most Federal officials who find their agencies embroiled in contention . . . "Mountain Magic," an illustrated lecture, will be given by Earl A. Trager, chief, Naturalist Division, NPS, at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Departmental Auditorium, Constitution avenue between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets northwest.

Trager is as interesting, personally, as is the address he will give. From 1917 to 1932, he was associated with well-known oil companies and in old Mexico made the strike that opened up the Limon Pool in the Panuco region. This pool, which consistently gave 5,000 barrels a day, was among those recently expropriated by the Mexican government. He is a first-rate amateur photographer. His Kosaslides in natural color will be used Wednesday to conduct the audience to some of the wilderness areas in the national parks. He was graduated in science and geology from the University of Chicago. The lecture will be free.

The New Deal Tide Recedes

By Mark Sullivan

Conclusive Signs

OF ELECTION predictions there are plenty to choose from. I do not wish to add to the abundance. But I think it may be interesting to set down some condsiderations by which interpretation of the results can be made after the results are known.

SULLIVAN

My notion has been that the New Deal reached the height of its tide in the election in November, 1936, when Mr. Roosevelt carried every State except 2 and the Democrats elected 328 members of the House out of a total of 435. It is perfectly safe to bet that the election next Tuesday will not parallel that. I think the tide began to recede, or at least to break into the troubled foam that precedes recession, in January and February, 1937. One cause was Mr. Roosevelt's introduction of his measure to change the Supreme Court on February 5, 1937. Another cause was his tacit condoning of the sit-down strike, of which the earliest conspicuous example was at Flint, Mich., in January and February, 1937.

A POLITICAL TIDE does not change direction instantly. There may be months during which it is difficult to say whether there is any motion. It is a period of ripples at the top which give no convincing sign of direction. That condition lasted until spring of the present year, when the Democratic primaries began.

In one of the earliest, in Florida, a hundred percenter for Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal, Mr. Pepper, was renominated by a strikingly large vote. This Florida outcome was held to be proof that Mr. Roosevelt still had his hold on the people. But one Democratic primary in one Southern State is not, standing alone, a conclusive sign.

SOON AFTER the Florida primary came others which in their aggregate were convincing. In State after State, Democratic Senators who had opposed Mr. Roosevelt's court measure were renominated, in most cases overwhelmingly—in Iowa, Gillette; in Missouri, Clark; in Indiana, Van Nuys; in Colorado, Adams; in Nevada, McCarran; in Connecticut, Lonergan. In three States Mr. Roosevelt made direct appeals to the people to defeat Democratic Senators who had opposed his court measure—in Georgia, Senator George; in South Carolina, Smith; in Maryland, Tydings.

The three were renominated by heavy majorities. The success of all nine of the Democratic Senators who opposed the President's court measure can hardly fail to be interpreted as a recession of the tide.

THE INTERPRETATION might have various refinements. It might mean that the Democratic voters, while still liking Mr. Roosevelt, nevertheless like also the Democratic Senators who showed independence of him. It might be interpreted as preference for the orthodox Democratic Party in distinction from the New Deal. It might be interpreted as a phenomenon within the Democratic Party.

These Democratic voters, added to the mass of Republican voters, practically every one of whom felt the same way even more strongly, seems clearly to be a shift in popular opinion, fairly to be interpreted as a tide underway.

IN ANY TIDE, at the beginning, the momentum is slow. The question next Tuesday is how much momentum the tide has acquired. Democratic leaders say that the number of House seats the Republicans will gain will be only about 25. That would mean that the tide had got very little momentum. Indeed, if as few as 25 seats pass from the Democrats to the Republicans, it would hardly be a tide at all. Perhaps this Democratic prediction is a counsel of hope, or possibly a gesture meant to influence the election. The expectation of the Republican leaders, 50 seats or more, is more consistent with the indications.

The tide exists. The question is how much momentum it has acquired. A successful speculator I knew years ago had a saying: "A bull market always goes higher than you expected, and a bear market always goes lower than you expected." It is so with political tides.

SOME RESULTS next Tuesday will have a relation to specific issues. A large block of Mr. Roosevelt's strength has been the Mid-West, the farm belt—Ohio, Indiana and Illinois east of the Mississippi; Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Missouri and the Dakotas west of the Mississippi. By the way these States go, we can know whether Mr. Roosevelt still holds the farmers. If he does, it is a case of hope triumphing over experience.

Five years ago the twenty-second of last month President Roosevelt, in the third of his radio "fireside talks," assured the farmers that he was going to raise prices of crops—"if we cannot do this one way we will do it another; do it we will." Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Wallace have tried many ways; but today prices of farm crops are lower than when Mr. Roosevelt made his confident promise.

IN MICHIGAN the outcome will be in large part an expression of public opinion on the sit-down strike. It was in Michigan that the first important and the most conspicuous sit-down strike took place. And it was Gov. Murphy, more than any other candidate anywhere, who is associated with tolerance of the sit-down, with failure to co-operate with the decree of a court against it.

Changes In Europe

By Barnet Nover

Toward A New Balance Of Power

THE BALANCE of power that obtained in Europe before the Munich settlement has been upset beyond any possibility of restoration. Germany bestrides the Old World like a colossus; there is none to oppose her.

France and Great Britain have washed their hands of central and eastern Europe, at least for the time being. Soviet Russia has been hurled into enforced isolation. Italy continues to be a willing ally of the Third Reich. The little nations are all, to a greater of lesser degree, climbing on Hitler's bandwagon.

For the first time in many years there is nothing now resembling an equilibrium of forces in Europe, for the very concept of a balance of power involves a determination by one group of powers to resist the ambitions of any nation or group of nations intent on upsetting the status quo. But the situation obviously cannot last indefinitely. Sooner or later an attempt will be made to establish a new balance.

STEPS IN THAT direction are already being taken. Some of them are obviously feeble; others are ill-considered and may have the opposite effect from that intended. But the numbness that took possession of the statesmen outside the Berlin-Rome axis after the surrender at Munich is passing.

It is interesting that the nation which during recent weeks has made the strongest attempt to re-establish some sort of balance in Europe was not a great power but the largest of the smaller powers — Poland. Until Munich, Poland was in a position to sit on the fence and capitalize that difficult position. Her diplomacy was a straddle between her French alliance and German friendship. But once France gave up Czechoslovakia, the Franco-Polish alliance ceased to have any meaning. Warsaw knows this, but so does Berlin!

No wonder, then, that in the scramble for Czechoslovak territory that followed the Munich agreement Poland advanced claims of her own and claims that sometimes had no relationship whatever to ethnographic factors. In particular, the demand for the partition of Ruthenia between Poland and Hungary could be justified only on strategic grounds, namely, that with their frontiers adjoining, Poland and Hungary could serve as a nucleus for a new barrier against a German thrust farther south.

IT IS SAID that Italy was not opposed to this Polish-Magyar claim for the easternmost part of Czechoslovakia, indeed that she favored it. But at Vienna, where the German-Italian mediators met to consider the Magyar territorial demands, this plan of a joint Polish-Hungarian frontier was turned down. The German press is now declaring that the new borders of Czechoslovakia are definitive and unalterable.

This is a defeat for Poland, which, more definitely than at any time since the ten-year pact of nonaggression was signed with the Third Reich, finds herself under Hitler's guns. It is also a defeat for Italy. But the assumption that, having again had to give way to her partner of the Berlin-Rome axis, the Fascist government will now begin seeking alternative friendships is badly grounded.

AS LONG AS AUSTRIA existed the Berlin-Rome axis was, in a manner of speaking, an arrangement of equals. The buffer state on the Brenner helped block German expansion to the south and the southeast where Italian commercial and political ambitions were once considerable. And because of the French-Czech alliance, the Czech-Soviet alliance and the interlocking alliances of the Little Entente all of which also aimed to bar the way to Hitler's Drang Nach Osten (push to the east) there was always the possibility that Italy might pool her strength with France and the French system of alliances.

Once Austria disappeared, however, Italy's European policy underwent a profound modification. Seeing that the damage was done, Mussolini decided to accept Anschluss as an unchanging fact and continued to adhere to the axis for what it was worth. In return for the free hand given Germany in Europe, Italy hoped, with German support, to secure compensation in the extra-European sphere, beginning with North Africa.

IT IS TRUE, of course, that from the purely Italian point of view the creation of any new barrier capable of effectively holding Germany in check so that she might be blocked from the Adriatic and other areas of Italian interest would be all to the good. But with Great Britain and France in their present mood, such efforts must seem futile to Rome.

The British and the French governments, however, realize that the policy of surrender which they have pursued so consistently during the past few years cannot go on forever. So in their own way they are seeking ways and means of establishing a new balance, if not in Europe as a whole, at least within the four-power concert which came into being at Munich. And they are doing so by offering concessions to Mussolini.

FRANCE HAS already gone one step in the direction of winning over the Duce by sending an Ambassador to Rome accredited to the King-Emperor, thus giving full recognition to Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. The Chamberlain government has followed this move by getting Parliament to ratify the Anglo-Italian agreement of April 16. Both nations may now agree to sacrifice the Barcelona agreement to make a Roman holiday.

In so doing they hope to appease Mussolini and win him over as an ally against German enroachments outside the orbit turned over to Hitler's tender mercies. They are thus pursuing once more the old policy of trying to break the axis by playing one end against the other.

It has not worked in the past. It is doubtful if this policy will meet with any greater success now. For while neither Great Britain nor France can do very much to restore Italy's or their own shattered interests in central and eastern Europe, Germany is still in a position to help Italian ambitions in the Mediterranean. And those ambitions may be considerably advanced by a Franco victory.

Should they betray Spain as they have betrayed Czechoslovakia, Messrs. Chamberlain and Daladier would simply be piling one disaster on top of another. But this is what goes for statesmanship in Great Britain and France these days.

The Big Issue

("A Republican for 35 years, he declared he would quit the party this year because every attempt to secure low auto license numbers had failed."—News item)

I

My party's platform may be weak
And dodge all issues grave;
It may not for the people speak—
Its chiefs may misbehave;
But I will stick to it, you bet,
And tote its flag afar . . .
Up to the time when I don't get Low numbers for my car!

II

Its principles I hold my own—
I've battled for them long;
No other party I condone—
To do so would be wrong.
I'm for its platform and its men—
My ardor ne'er abates . . .
Unless, of course, it fails me when
I want low number plates.

III

I give indorsement to its planks
And cheer the candidates;
I do not ask for any thanks
In fighting for its slates;
A red-hot party man am I
With party faith aglow . . .
Until I get a number high
Instead of one that's low.

IV

I love my country yes I do,
With all my heart and soul;
My state and city I love, too—
Their welfare is my goal.
When all the issues are defined
Upon election day
I'll do my duty . . . if I find
My license plates okay.

V

My father was a party man—
He never changed his vote;
All opposition he would pan
And o'er its losses gloat.
I stand as he did, you can state,
All down along the line
Unless I get this auto plate:
1-8-6-5-5-9

VI

Grave issues every day arise—
Great dangers are in sight;
I cannot overemphasize
The need for voting right.
My party knows I'll go to bat—
My Country 'tis of thee'—
If I obtain a marker that Is like this:
003.

Autumn

The lake is blanketed today
In autumn tones; a gay array
Of yellow, brown and russet hue

With oars drawn in; the lovers sigh . . .
I wonder if they see at all
They're floating on a Paisley shawl.

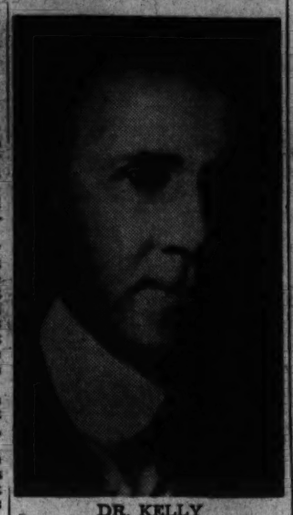
3 Pastors, One a Native, To Begin Work Here

Dr. Kelly Is Returning To Be in Georgetown Dr. Gould Arrives Mr. Black the Other



DR. KELLY

Dr. John Kelly, native Washingtonian who made good in distant fields, returns tomorrow morning as the new Georgetown Presbyterian Church pastor, one of a trio of recently-appointed clergymen preaching inaugural sermons.

Prior to assuming the presidency of Emporia College, Kansas, a post he relinquished to return to the ministry, Dr. Kelly was District Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, and later was general director of the department of Missionary Education of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education.

William Allen White, Emporia editor, lauded Dr. Kelly in a recent editorial in the Emporia Gazette, which said, in part:

". . . He has done a fine piece of work. He leaves Kansas with the good wishes of a host of friends. He has brought to us the stimulating influence of a quick and gracious mind, a kindly heart and a high purpose. Kansas and the college will hold him in grateful remembrance."

Dr. Kelly, a graduate of Central High School and later of Princeton, was the son of the late Dr. Joseph T. Kelly, former pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church here. One grandfather, John Bailey, served for 30 years as chief clerk of the House of Representatives, while his other grandfather, Moses Kelly, was once assistant secretary of the Treasury.

Holding degrees from Auburn Theolgical Seminary and Hastings College, Dr. Kelly occupied the pulpits of the Saranac Lake, N. Y., First Presbyterian Church and the First Presbyterian Church of Plattsburg. He was twice moderator of the Champlain Presbytery, and also is on the board of directors of Auburn Theological Seminary.

At Francis Asbury

Francis Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will welcome the Rev. Robin Gould, D. D., and his family, from Clinton, Okla.

Most of Dr. Gould's ministry has been spent in Missouri, where he served as pastor in the towns of Hannibal, Mexico, Richmond and Moberly, and later as presiding elder of the St. Joseph District. He will preach at 11 a. m. on "The Guest" and at 8 p. m. on "The Open Door."

Dr. Gould, who attended the University of Missouri and Chicago University, and who received a D. D. degree from Central College, Fayette, Mo., has been a member of two general conferences and was on the board of Missions for eight years.

The family has taken a residence at 3226 Nineteenth street northwest. His wife and two sons, Robin, jr., and Warren, are with him here.

The former pastor of the Rockville Christian Church the Rev. J. Lloyd Black, will come to Park View Christian, speaking at 11 a. m. on "The Attractive Christ" and at 8 p. m. on "A Way of Life."

He succeeds the late Rev. Walter F. Smith, who died after a pastorate at the church of 33 years.

The Rev. Mr. Black attended the College of the Bible, Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., and Lynchburg College, Lynchburg, Va., receiving his B. A. degree from Lynchburg in 1926. He was ordained in the First Christian Church, Bluefield, W. V., while a member of that church in 1921.

He served for two years as pastor of the Covington Christian Church, Covington, Va., when he was called to be promotional secretary of Lynchburg College. He served there until called to be minister at Rockville in January, 1931.

Dedication Set Tomorrow for Cathedral Organ

The newly installed great organ in Washington Cathedral will be dedicated next Thursday at 8 p. m. by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of Washington.

Following the formal consecration, Robert George Barrow, cathedral organist and choirmaster, will give a dedication recital.

No cards of admission will be required, and 2,500 chairs will be open to the public.

Bishop Freeman, who has just returned from the annual meeting of the House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Memphis, will preach at the People's Evensong service at 4 p. m. tomorrow.

The Rev. William Murray Bradner, newly appointed canon precentor of the cathedral, will preach at the celebration of the Holy Communion at 11 a. m. The Holy Communion will also be celebrated at 7:30 and 9:30 a. m. in the Bethlehem Chapel. There will be the usual group pilgrimages after the 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. services.

Bible Class Rites Set in Arlington

Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich, pastor of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, will deliver the main address at the second annual Bible Class service at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier tomorrow at 3 p. m.

Howard M. Stackhouse, president of the Box Bible Class of Emory M. E. Church, South, is chairman of the program, the sponsors of which are the D. C. Organized Bible Class Association and the National Federation of Men's Bible Classes.

Page McK. Etchison and George E. Harris will place wreaths on behalf of the National Federation of Men's Bible Classes and the D. C. Organized Bible Class Association, respectively. The Rev. S. Carroll Coale will give the invocation.

Christian Science Topic 'Adam and Fallen Man'

"Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from John 3:31: "He that is of the earth is earthly, and speaketh of the earth: he that cometh from heaven is above all."

Dr. J.T. Huddle To Address Lutherans

At St. Paul's Tomorrow Is Pastor Emeritus Sunday School Service

Dr. John T. Huddle, pastor emeritus of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, will deliver the sermon tomorrow morning on "The World's Supreme Need."

The ninety-sixth anniversary of the Sunday school will be observed in a service at 8 p. m. Lindley G. Schmidt, superintendent, will receive greetings from three former superintendents, Charles B. Bateman, Abner Y. Leech and Henry C. Brunner. L. Russell Alden will speak on "The Days of Yore."

St. Stephen's. Miss Marie L. Gerlach, of the Salem Hebrew-Lutheran Mission of Baltimore, will be guest speaker at the 11 a. m. service.

Reformation. At the evening service Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor, will continue his sermon series on "Making God Real to the Modern Man," using for his theme, "Is It Healthy to Share with Others One's Conquered Sins?"

"The Meaning of Forgiveness" is the subject chosen by the Rev. Ralph William Loew, assistant pastor, for the Matin service.

At morning worship Dr. Blackwelder will speak on "The Inward Test."

Luther Place. Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen will return in the morning from his participation in a series of pastor's institutes for ministers of the Maryland Synod of the United Lutheran Church, of which he is president.

He will discuss the American divorce rate and the effect of the emancipation of modern womanhood on the stability of marriage, in presenting the theme, "The Spirit of Successful Marriage."

Christ. The Rev. J. Frederic Wenchel, pastor, will begin a series of sermons in the morning on "Perils of Life."

Tomorrow he will speak on "Perils of Youth." At 8 p. m. he will give another talk on "European Experiences," showing 600 feet of film.

Georgetown. "At the Point of Death" will be the subject at 11 a. m. of the Rev. Harold E. Beatty, pastor.

St. Mark's. "A Call to Youth" will be the theme of the sermon by the pastor, the Rev. J. Luther Frantz, at the 11 a. m. service.

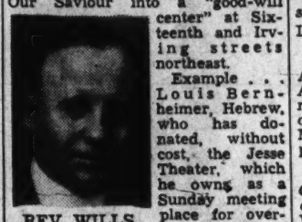
Friends Aid Church of Our Saviour

Some of Other Faiths Solve Space Problem 400 Members Enroll

Co-operation by members of various denominations has helped to develop the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour into a "good-will center" at Sixteenth and Irving streets northeast.



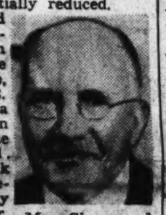
REV. WILLS (rector)

Example . . . Louis Bernheimer, Hebrew, who has donated, without cost, the Jesse Theater, which he owns as a Sunday meeting place for overflow classes of the Episcopal Church school.

Another example is J. L. Sherwood, a Baptist, manager of the Brookland branch of the Hamilton National Bank, and often a financial benefactor of the church.

The use of his office at 2001 Rhode Island avenue northeast for the Men's Bible Class, is the contribution of Dr. J. Bounds, a member of the congregation.

Inadequate space is the church's most pressing problem at present, enrollment having leaped from 300 to over 700 during the five-year pastorate of the Rev. Alvin L. Wills. Before building larger quarters, parishioners are anxious to liquidate the church's outstanding debt, already substantially reduced.



Mr. Sherwood benefactor)

For this, and to pay for renovations now in progress, the Men's Club, headed by C. E. Speake, staged a magic session last night in the parish hall. Houdini's "trunk trick" was presented by George Farmer, of another congregation assisted by A. B. Neilson, of Our Saviour.

The Woman's Guild, under the leadership of Mrs. Maynard M. Hanson, served a turkey dinner Thursday. Mesdames A. F. Middleton, Joseph Hiscox and R. H. Doyle were on the committee. The Junior Guild, headed by Miss Helen Hunt, plans a rummage sale next month. Mesdames Robert Lee Sartain, Wharton Bruce and William A. Davitz are on the "sale" committee.

The church takes pride in its adult choir, of which Harman Nicodemus is organist and leader, and its Junior choir, lead by Mrs. Charles E. Channing, organist. Nicodemus, music instructor at McKinley High, has sacrificed lucrative positions elsewhere to remain at Our Saviour.

Organized five years ago, the Junior choir is an integral part of the Junior church, where on Sundays at 9:30 a. m., the youngsters conduct services modeled on the adult programs, with the Rev. Mr. Wills preaching a brief sermon.

Other organizations in the church are the Altar Guild, Mrs. Harold Wright, president; the Woman's Auxiliary, led by Mrs. J. W. Grange, which meets next Thursday at 1:30 p. m. at the rector's home, 1328 Webster street northeast; the Young People's Fellowship, lead by Robert W. Frech, convening tomorrow at 6:30 p. m.; the Daughters of the King, under Mrs. R. H. Doyle, and the Boy Scouts, troop 87, who had a "workout" last night under the leadership of Rowland Linger.

Petworth Church to Open Joash Chest

Tomorrow will be Joash Chest day at Petworth Methodist Church. The chest will be opened for the gifts to the building fund of the new Sunday school house. At 11 a. m. all departments of the Sunday school will join with the church congregation in the Joash processional. At 8 p. m. the drama, "The Lost Church," will be presented.

Hamline. "Jesus in a Formative Age" will be the subject of the Armistice Sunday message at 11 a. m. Tomorrow marks inauguration of Hamline's "Church Devotions Movement," an attendance campaign from now until Christmas.

Chevy Chase. The Rev. Edward Gardiner Latch will begin a series of sermons on "Minor Prophets With Major Emphasis" in the morning. His particular subject, "Zechariah, the Prophet of Encouragement."

Calvary. At 11 o'clock the Rev. Orris Gravenor Robinson, pastor, will conduct a special Armistice Day program on the theme, "The Undimmed Hope."

At 8 p. m. Mrs. Elizabeth Curtis deCervantes, of Mexico City, will show motion pictures and lecture on Mexico.

Metropolitan Memorial. The Rev. William Andrew Keese will preach at the 11 o'clock service on the theme "Beyond Respectability."

Eldbrooke. The Lord's Supper will be administered at morning worship. Dr. Walter M. Michael will deliver a meditation on "Things to Remember."

At evening worship the pastor will discuss "Give Us This Day."

Union. Dr. John R. Edwards' theme at the 11 a. m. service will be "A New Covenant in Religion," and in the evening will discuss "A Redeemed Israel."

McKendree. "The Test of Devotion" is the communion meditation which the Rev. Samuel E. Rose will give at 11 a. m.

An informal song service begins at 8 p. m. with a message by the Rev. Mr. Rose on "A Peace Offensive."

Wesley. "What Is Sin?" will be the topic of the Rev. J. Luther Neff at 11 a. m.

Foundry. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris will speak on "Religion, a Force or a Form?" at 11 a. m. and Dr. Chesteen Smith will describe "Vision and Life" at 8 p. m.

Metropolitan Baptist to Mark Armistice

Special Rites Slated War Mothers to Go Savage Ordination Set

The twentieth anniversary Armistice Day service will be observed at the Metropolitan Baptist Church tomorrow.

The War Mothers of the District will be present, led by Mrs. Irving Fairmother, the National president.

Mrs. Gertrude Lyons, of the board of directors of the National Federation of Music Clubs, will sing "Taps," assisted by Buglers Joseph Humperson and Edwin Moran. Salutes to the American flag will be led by Miss Dorothy Koons, and to the Christian flag by John Perry.

Dr. John Compton Ball, pastor, will preach on "After Twenty Years—What?"

At the morning hour the Rev. H. H. Savage, D. D., of Pontiac, Mich., will bring the message.

On Monday evening Robert Savage, son of Dr. Savage, will be ordained. Dr. Savage will preach the ordination sermon, and Dr. Ball will offer the ordination prayer.

First. Taking an Armistice Day theme, Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden will speak in the morning on "A Working Program for Peace."

In the evening four student members of the church who attended the Quadrennial Southern Baptist Student Convention at Memphis will tell of what they saw and heard at this gathering of 3,000. Those who will speak will be the Misses Martha Moss, Arlena Bolling, Alma Daugherty and Lila Mae Jerman.

First. Dr. John E. Briggs, pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. on "Contrasted interpretations," and at 7:45 p. m. on "Needed Preparation." A large number of recent converts will be baptised at the evening service.

St. Paul's Plans All Saints' Day Celebration

To Honor Parish Dead Rites at St. John's Other Special Services

The Festival of All Saints, to be held tomorrow morning at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, takes on peculiar significance this year.

It is the custom in St. Paul's to read from the altar the names of all members of the parish who have died during the year, requesting the prayers of the congregation. One of the names to be called out tomorrow will be the name of Harry Lee Rust, for many years senior warden of the parish. In keeping with the quiet and simple life he led, no eulogies will be given at the service.

At 8 p. m. there will be a service of solemn evensong and benediction.

St. John's. A special service will be conducted on Armistice Day from 10:55 to 11:30 a. m. by the Rev. Oliver J. Hart, D. D., former chaplain of the First Division, A. E. F. Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Tomorrow Dr. Hart will preach on "The Challenge of Immortality" at both 9:30 and 11 a. m. services. Holy communion will be celebrated at 8 and 11 a. m.

At 8 p. m. members of Sigma Nu fraternity will be guests. The subject of the Rev. Mr. Nathaniel Acton's sermon will be "Christian Joy."

All Saints. The Rev. Henry Teller Cocke, rector, will speak on the theme "God Is Love" at 11 a. m. holy communion.

The ministers of the Protestant churches of Chevy Chase are planning a special Armistice Day service to be held in this church at 8 p. m. Friday.

Epiphany. There will be a celebration of holy communion at 8 a. m., which will be a corporate communion for the Girls' Friendly Society. A second celebration of holy communion with sermon by the Rev. Z. B. Phillips, D. D., is set for 11 o'clock. This is the sixth sermon in the series on "The Opportunities of Life in Our Present Day Civilization." The special theme for tomorrow "Is the Answer to Life's Question Proposed by the One Who Believes in the Worthwhileness of Life?"

At 8 p. m. there will be a special musical service of choral evensong and the choir will sing the cantata by Dr. Matthews, "The Life Everlasting."

Chapel of the Redeemer. There will be a special memorial service at 9:30 a. m. for those lost from its membership in recent years.

The Rev. M. M. Perkins, vicar, will preach the sermon and also administer holy communion.

Transfiguration. The Rev. J. J. Queally will officiate and preach at holy communion celebrations at 7:30 and 11 a. m.

Be Bold in Job Ventures Is Advice of Miss Pope

New Wage-Hour Aide Had Interesting Career 'Mother of the Balkans'

By Genevieve Reynolds.

STATISTICIAN by trade. Mother of the Balkan countries by chance. Foreign correspondent through expediency. This in brief describes the colorful career of Miss Eugenia Pope, dynamic administrative secretary of Elmer F. Andrews, Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the United States Department of Labor. She collects the interesting jobs that other women want but never get.

First to apply for her present position, she was hired on the spot, thus becoming the first employe of the recently created Wage and Hour Division. The day she was called for an interview she had worn what she calls her most unbecoming outfit. During the day she snagged the hem of her dress. So when the call came, she hastily repaired the damage, powdered her face and rushed over to interview Mr. Andrews.

"Many women fail to obtain the positions that they most want because they are afraid to leave the grooved security of their jobs," said Miss Pope. "They are too afraid to take a chance. They fail to see the opportunity of advancement when it presents itself. Furthermore, they are so riveted to sure paying positions that they do not recognize a good chance when it comes along."

The woman who would advance today must be a person of quick action, pointed out Miss Pope. Dreams must be carried out by definite practicality or else you stand still or retrogress in a job.

Harris & Ewing.

MISS EUGENIA POPE

Never Too Busy To Aid

Watching the clock, shirking responsibilities and a lack of initiative are other deterrents of advancement, according to Miss Pope, who herself works enthusiastically and tirelessly at any task.

Not only does she give her best to the job in question, but she is never too busy to lend a helping hand or give a word to her employes and co-workers. Even the maids and charwomen find her an understanding confidant and counselor.

It is this helpful, understanding attitude, plus efficiency and tact that brought Miss Pope the title, "Mother of the Balkans."

Miss Pope first went to Greece as secretary to the American delegation of the International Institute of Statistics. After the conference she went to Germany as a foreign correspondent for a shipping company. Then she was recalled to Athens by the Near East Foundation to conduct a survey of crippled children 16 years or less of age.

"Mother of the Balkans"

As a result of this painstaking survey in 1937-38, the first hospital for crippled children was organized in Athens. Since then the Greeks have spread Miss Pope's fame and reverently refer to her as their "mother."

"People thought and told me that I was crazy to take the responsibility of the statistical survey in Athens, for I did not know the Greek language—but I took a chance," she said. "Soon after I arrived in Greece I enrolled in one of the Athens schools. And when I became foreign correspondent in Germany I had to learn that language, too. My duties took me to Alix, Leipsig, Berlin, Brussels and London."

The will to learn to atempt new things, to take a chance on unknown and untried jobs that give one daily contact with interesting people and unexplored ideas, that demand resourcefulness and initiative is what Miss Pope means when she advises women to be alert for the opportunity for advancement.

"Don't keep a job you don't like if you want to advance," she advises. "But before you attempt to change jobs or seek a promotion be sure that you are equipped for the transition or that you have the ability and willingness to master unfamiliar technicalities and to adjust yourself to new surroundings."

A pleasing personality, good grooming and consideration for others are also nedeed qualities for a successful career, according to Miss Pope.

Women who complain there is no chance to advance in the Government would do well to consider Miss Pope's rapid advancement in that field. While working secretary to Dudley Field Malone in New York, she was offered a job in Washington. Her first Government job, which lasted 2½ years, was that of statistician for Harry L. Hopkins in the Social Research Bureau. From there she went to Greece on a Government assignment. Returning to Washington last March she acted as technical aid to John D. Biggers. And from there she stepped into her present position.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Nov. 4.

AS THIS is the day of the annual clambake of the Superannuated Fashion Reporters Sodality, I have asked the helpmate, old Len Hall, a retired glassblower, to take over this gaping space for the day. I disclaim all legal responsibility for accidents that may occur. From here he's on his own.

As a seldom-silent partner in this modest newspaper enterprise, it seems to me that the other partner, Miss Hughes, or "the Murray Hill Madonna," has all the better of the job. For instance, this is all she does to eke out a miserable existence. She is responsible for a daily column in a great metropolitan journal; she digs up and exploits a beauty page for the Sunday edition; she gets jobs for dozens of worthy friends; she has her contribution in this vivid daily dispatch; she inspects young Martin twice daily and she tries her little best to keep me out of bowling alleys, pool halls and corner cigar stores. Trifles.

My reportorial jobs, on the other hand, are almost more than flesh and blood can bear. For instance, here are a few of the items I have ferreted out today: Every day an average of eight and a half business men are knocked down and trampled by young ladies fighting to the cocktail bars in the Grand Central area alone. Soigne young men watching Vera Zorina in "I Married An Angel" are still wearing rapt looks, while the swishy girls with them are wearing upswept pouts and three strands of fake pearls. Edwina Atwell, the beautiful postdeb with whom I am in love at a distance, still wears her hair on her shoulders. Elsa Maxwell, the authoress, also plans parties for Park Avenuisances. Barbara Hutton is known to her chums as "Barbara." Ah well, it's a woman's world, after all. Collecting items like these take me from dawn to dusk, and Miss Hughes thinks she suffers!

MAIN STREET JOTTINGS—Wives and fiancees of the Nation would do well to begin at once accustoming their men-folk to the current clothes-consciousness — now epidemic. Such a course will broaden their minds, permit them to take a general part in the post-dinner conversation and prevent them from huddling in the corner where the decanter is, to lie about their golf scores and the business larceny they have committed during the day. I date my social success in the Hughes circle from the time, several years back, when I learned what a "peplum" is, and today I can speak familiarly of the "dirndl," the "boufant skirt" 'and such esoteric materials as "lame."

Such an attempt to "broaden" your gents will bring you closer together and make your home happier—or else knock it to pieces.

One of the chief glories of this town is its amazing cookery—name the national vittles you want to sample—we have it. One of our favorites is the grub of the Near East, and a place to get it good is at the new Constantinople Restaurant on West Fifty-second street, where the spitted lamb and things are superb. The place used to be on Thirtieth street, and Miss Hughes and I used to eat there often when we were courting, because we found an Armenian waiter who couldn't add a check for two higher than $1.37.

Cary Grant, the movie actor I like best as a man to know, ducked in and out of town the other day, probably to dodge the girls. On the other hand, movie dolls like Garbo, Ann Sothern, Mary Brian and so on can lurk

Hundreds of New York's chic women are having their faces redone for the World's Fair of '39. The new up-swished style is favored, as giving them a jollier look, especially around the grim mouths.

After closely observing the local parade for two months at balls, routs, tea-fights, fashion shows and first-nights, it is one man's mere opinion that ladies' clothes were never more beautiful than they are this fall, both in line and especially in the profusion and richness of color. The revived hoop-skirt, for example, is both lovely to see and functional as well. A devoted mother can smuggle at least two minor children into an evening party under a hooper.

Shirred Date Dress

A dress with a purpose is this black winter sheer, for it is designed to make escorts puff up a bit at its sophisticated simplicity and its unquestioned taste for all daytime needs. Rows upon rows of shirring give it a flourish and its shrugged shoulders and severe neckline give it subtlety. Its double banded bodice and fillip of bows make it flattering even to uninspiring figures. This sheer, along with other frocks including chic winter chiffons and several unusual gowns of monastic caste, was shown at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday during the luncheon hour. Charlotte Parker gowns and Anne Carver millinery were presented

Cold Prevention Experiments Favor 'Regional Vaccination'

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

VACCINES as a preventive of colds have been praised and condemned by one party or another ever since they were introduced. My own feeling would be that they are of no value. Then just as I am sure of that, I hear of some person who has taken a series of "shots" in the fall and has gone all through the winter without a cold, and I have to modify my position.

There is really no reason why vaccines should prevent colds. For a vaccine to work it must be made of the dead germs of the disease you are trying to prevent. These dead germs, injected in the body, are dissolved by the blood and an immunity is set up against them just as if they were the live germs of the disease. We can produce immunity to typhoid fever this way because we know the exact germ which causes typhoid and because its chemistry is so stable that one set of germs will confer immunity against all the typhoid germs in the world.

Don't Know Germ

None of these things is true of the cold vaccines. We do not know the germ that causes cold. We are certain, in fact, that the germs used in cold vaccines are not the primary cause of the common cold. The common cold is probably caused by a filterable virus. After the virus has entered the mucosa of the nose, that mucosa is more easily invaded by a number of secondary organisms. Those are the ones that cause the secretion and other late manifestations. Those are the ones that are in cold vaccines. They may confer immunity to the secondary infections, but not to the primary one.

Perhaps, however, we have been going about the thing entirely the wrong way—by injecting the vaccine underneath the skin. Perhaps the place to confer immunity is on the membrane of the nose itself. Perhaps, if we create a local immunity in the nose, we can prevent colds and other respiratory infections.

Such an idea is suggested by Walsh and Cannon at the University of Chicago.

What They Found

Working on rabbits with Type 1. pneumonia germs, they found that by introducing virulent germs into the nose, they produced a fatal result in 90 per cent of the cases. When, however, they used a killed culture of pneumococcus Type 1. over and over again, and then introduced the virulent germs, they had no deaths. They had produced complete immunity against intranasal infection..

The investigators are inclined to interpret these results as meaning that in many respiratory infections, the real immunity which prevents the invasion is a local one developed in the nasal mucosa. They conclude that "regional vaccination would seem the preferable method of elevating the level of resistance of tissue at the portal of entry to the body."

All this is still in the experimental stage, but it gives food for thought.

Roast for 45 minutes.

Apiarists Report Larger Honey Crop This Year

The national honey harvest is estimated larger than the 1937 crop, which was the smallest in recent years. In the white clover belt, many bee keepers have the largest honey production in history, with some individual hives yielding more than 400 pounds. In the same section, other bee keepers report extremely light crops.

Those important mountain States, Idaho and Montana, had a fairly good yield, but the output of the remaining area is believed below normal. California's orange sage and buckwheat harvest proved small, and even the thistle crop was lighter than expected. Honey crops along the Eastern seaboard are unusually scanty, while in the Southeast the yield has been irregular and often short.

The quality of this year's honey runs extra fine, well above normal. The main flow, according to the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics, has been white to water-white in color and of an unusually heavy body.

Beauty

Girls Should Seek Hidden Beauty Feature

Every Person Has One It May Be Hair Or Perhaps Skin

By Ida Jean Kain.

EVERY GIRL has some feature that is beautiful, or could be. Most girls give their beauty points special care. For example, beautiful hair is so meticulously kept that it becomes a shining glory, whereas the average-looking topknot may be so stinted on attention that it gradually becomes noticeably drab and lifeless.

In extenuation, let's talk about little Arleen Whelan, currently Hollywood's "Cinderella girl." She herself is no ugly duckling, but that halo of red gold hair was what first caught a director's attention, and gave her a chance in pictures.

An endowment of red hair, it seems, is every bit as good as a silver spoon. But although Arleen started out with better than average locks, she has taken time every day for 30 minutes of rousingly good brushing, which massages the scalp and keeps the circulation up and doing. She even brushes her hair when it is wet, because she is convinced that this is the best treatment she can give it. The rest of her routine consists of shampooing, which she likes to do herself, and drying in the sun.

Washes Face Often

One of the old-time actresses, famous for her exquisite skin, makes it a rule to wash her face every time she comes into her home—an average of about six times a day—in the belief that skin cleanliness is next to beauty. The average woman sometimes lets her face go all day without a cleansing, and then dispenses a lick and a promise.

A motion-picture star with a tiny waistline—10 inches less than the bust measurement—admits to 45 minutes of exercise a day, either in the form of sports or calisthenics. Her waist is smaller now than when she was in her teens.

It seems, when all angles are considered, as though this thing called beauty might be largely the result of consistent care, and the "average looks" are often the penalty of too little effort at improvement.

Will Show Improvement

You may be without a single beauty point, and yet if you are willing to work you can have attractive hair, a good skin and a lovely figure. There are three beauty points which will make any girl stand out, and they can be achieved. Your skin and hair will show improvement in texture and luster in a few months. Your figure can be very much better in a few weeks, even if you can spend only 15 minutes a day in exercise instead of 45. It's all up to you.

Fur Is Used In Many Ways This Season

Paris, (U.P.).—Better start getting the furs out of storage because frosty days are here. Parisian stylists have designed this year's winter clothes with luxurious fur trimmings. Capes, coats, suits and even dresses boast of furs.

Fur-trimmed capes are enjoying great popularity in current winter selections. They are shown in three lengths—short, long and three-quarter, and usually complement either a sports or dress suit. The 1938 fur coat is lined in material matching the skirt or dress worn beneath it. This idea is especially good for town and informal country wear. The matching lining also is shown in cloth coats, sometimes carrying out the color scheme of the bag and gloves.

House in Adam Town

"Now I want you to come to see us right away—you know we've taken this old house in Adam Town . . . Oh, didn't you know? . . . Well, it's the most precious thing you ever saw. It's in a VERY old section and it's only 15 feet wide. . . . Yes! Only 15 feet! And it has a back yard with the sweetest garden—it's only 12 feet deep, but that's plenty of room for Koko to take his exercise. It's terribly soggy right now, but just as soon as we get it landscaped I simply expect to live in it. And it'll be so wonderful for parties next summer.

"The inside's simply adorable. Why, the doors are so low that Charlie has to duck every time he goes through one. Don't you love that? And it's all heated by latrobes . . . yes, with isinglass . . . real isinglass. And it's got these funny little old windows and the stairs are the quaintest thing you ever saw. They aren't that wide! They say there's a secret passageway somewhere about the place—at least that's what the man said who leased it to us—but nobody's ever been able to find it.

"It's really a very interesting old house. All sorts of marvelous people have lived in it—some old Timothy somebody who had a big lawsuit with the government . . . and then there was some rich old widow who was shot by her son—I think he was hanged or something—and then I tell you who had it before we did! The Irvington Trotters! . . . What? . . . Well(I guess they had to move. At least that's what I gathered from the man that leased it to us.

"It's the most fascinating neighborhood. You know it's in this VERY old section and on one side of us are two old maids, real old cave dwellers, you know—and they've got six Angoras—one of them's not quite right, I mean the old maids, and then on the other side is this family.

"Well, I never saw anything like it! The man is on WPA and then there are these nine children and the two oldest daughters—well, neither of them works, and there are cars driving up at all hours of the day and night. You never heard such carryings on. It's all right under my window and it just seems like I'm up all night.

"The children are perfect brats. One of them threw a ball and broke my window and then they threw mud balls on my new paint . . . but then, of course, I suppose you have to make allowances in Adam Town.

"There are lots of lovely people in the neighborhood, though. The Bilkton-Smythes have an adorable house just up the street and the Chuck Brindles are just across; she was a Buffington, you know, and then further up in the street are the Fixit-Marbles and they have a perfectly enormous Great Dane . . . and then there's a Mrs. Simpler on the other side of the old maids, who has a darling dachshund. Everybody on the street has the nicest dogs, except, of course, this family I was telling you about. They have some kind of an old hound, but then there's a fence between, and anyway we never let Koto out.

"Well, I do want you to come to see me now just as soon as mother's up again. . . . Oh, no, it's nothing serious. She just turned her ankle on one of the cobblestones. You see, she wasn't used to them. Well, anyway, just as soon as I get a few more things done—I'm having the man with the exterminator tomorrow—I want you to come and see the house. You'll simply love it—especially after living in an apartment."

Learn to Budget Your Income

THE WARNERS' budget plan has met the test! It's fall, when everything comes at once—clothes, coal, Sister's school—but the Warners meet their bills on the 1st of the month.

What a contrast to last fall, when they were left with bills taking all winter to pay.

Luckily, no major operation's needed to solve money troubles. Instead of haphazard spending, you just take your total income, divide it as you'd slice a pie.

If you have a family of four or five, you give your food fund the biggest piece (about 30 per cent), the next largest to the rent fund, about 20 to 25 per cent. Split the rest among clothes, operating, advancement, savings.

Often you find you must spend lots on one item. If you must dress well, your clothes will take more than the usual 11 per cent. To keep on an even keel, cut another item.

Sometimes every big item is just as it should be. Why, then, are you always in debt—with never enough for what you want?

Your money probably trickles away in little things. Be a dime detective for a month.

Amazing to see how much goes for such items as Sister's library fine Cousin Jane's birthday gift, rubber heels for your shoes.

Get these little things into line. Charge Sister's library fine to her allowance. Let your advancement fund take care of gifts—your colthes fund, little repairs.

Yes, you have "everything under control" when you budget. Our 40-page booklet, "How to Budget Your Income," gives you a plan easy to follow. Sample budgets from real life show how to get a home, education, a car.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "How to Budget Your Income," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

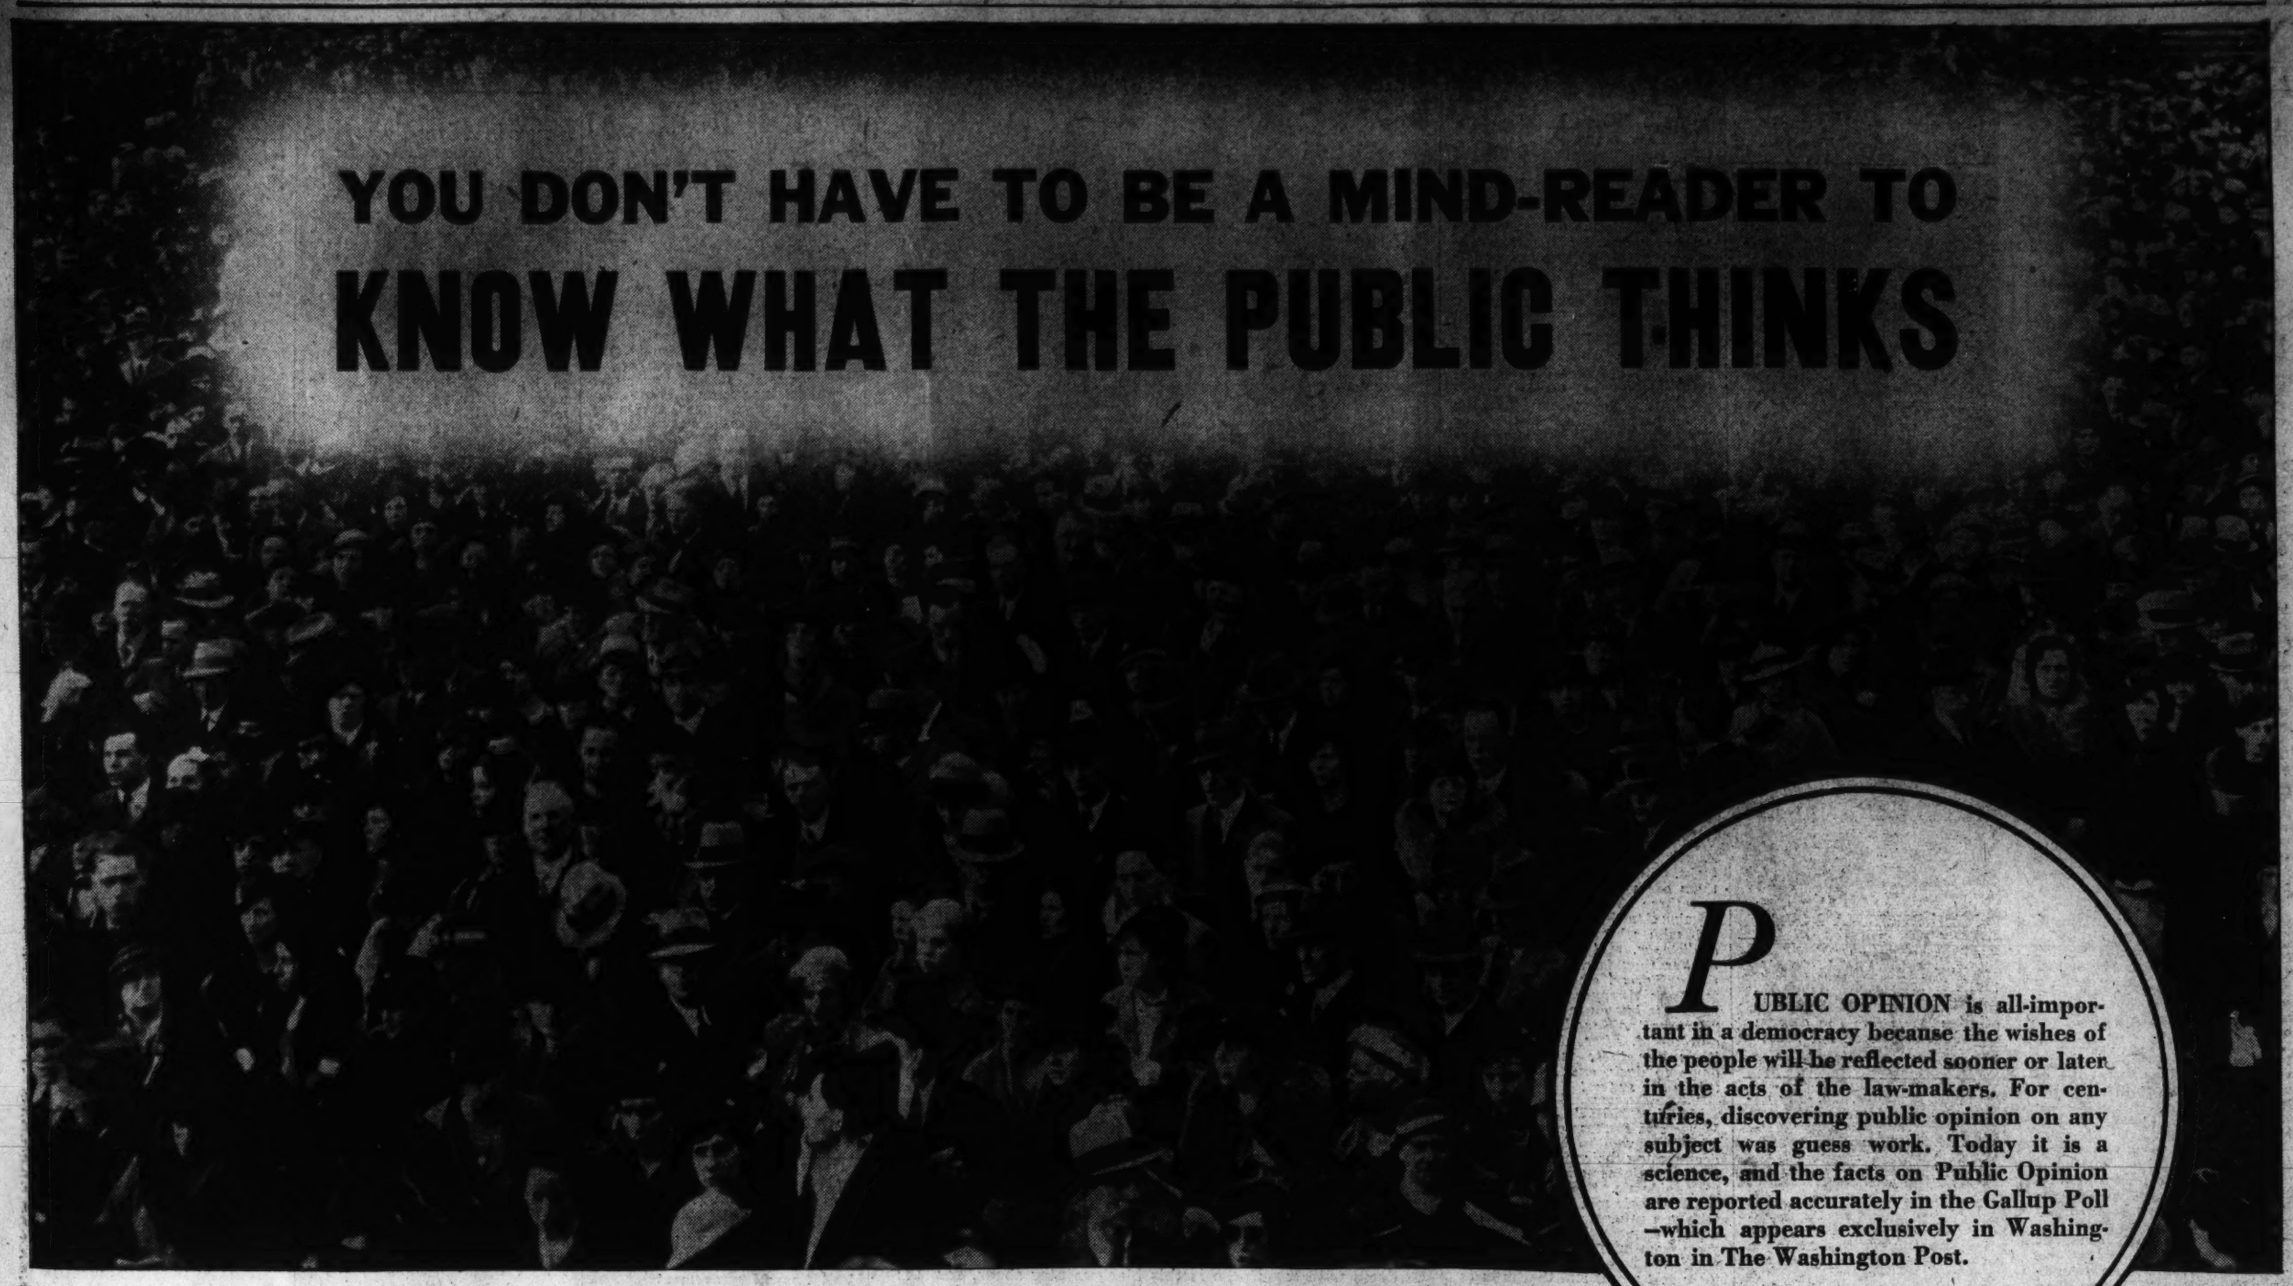
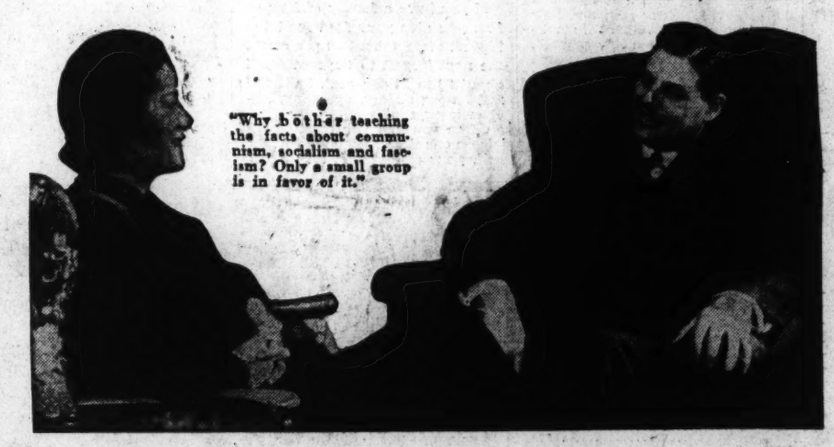
YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE A MIND-READER TO KNOW WHAT THE PUBLIC THINKS



PUBLIC OPINION is all-important in a democracy because the wishes of the people will be reflected sooner or later in the acts of the law-makers. For centuries, discovering public opinion on any subject was guess work. Today it is a science, and the facts on Public Opinion are reported accurately in the Gallup Poll—which appears exclusively in Washington in The Washington Post.

"That's only your opinion. You should read The Gallup Poll. 62% of the public is in favor of the schools teaching the facts about communism, socialism, and fascism."



"Why bother teaching the facts about communism, socialism and fascism? Only a small group is in favor of it."

"There's no question about it: Italy started this whole mess of re-armament."

"You're close. According to the Gallup Poll the public thinks Germany is more responsible than is Italy."

The accuracy of the Gallup Poll has been proved time and again. In 58 out of 64 local national elections, the Gallup Poll correctly predicted the results.

"Most accurate barometer of public opinion," says Newsweek. "Unique . . . authoritative," says Life Magazine. And colleges and teachers, too, praise its value. "When I was teaching at St. John's College, I had my students follow the weekly studies of the Gallup Poll as published in The Post. I am now teaching at Babson Institute and I think the analyses of the Gallup Poll are so valuable that I have subscribed to The Washington Post and am using them each week in my classes," says Julius S. Duncan.

Students, colleges, libraries have all wanted a summary of the Gallup Poll surveys. Now such a summary is available—reprinted from the Public Opinion Quarterly. Send for your copy today.

"I wonder what the public thinks about the Federal Government spending millions to help control venereal diseases."

"The public's all for it. A Gallup Poll survey revealed that 79% of the public favored Congress appropriating $25,000,000 for such a campaign."

This Booklet Gives You Summary of 100 Gallup Poll Surveys

This booklet—a reprint of an article which appeared in The Public Opinion Quarterly for July—tells you what the public thinks about re-armament . . . about social issues . . . about Government spending . . . about Government control of radio . . . about old-age pensions and many other vital subjects that are discussed everywhere . . . every day. Send for your copy today. Enclose ten cents in stamps or coin.

WASHINGTON'S HOME NEWSPAPER

New Fabrics For Decorating Are Tubfast

Raw Silk Is Used
Many Odd Textures
Chintzes Fewer

By Elizabeth Macrae Boykin.

LET THE fashion writers flutter over the new doll hats and the strapless gowns of quilted faille. Let the beauty editors moon over upped hair and tiny waistlines. It's the new decorating fabrics that are spinning me around. Because—

The washable fabrics are actually here to stay. By spring even the cheapest slip cover material will be vat dyed so it can be tubbed, predicts a stylist for one of the most important lines of fabrics. In the meantime, there is a galaxy of enchanting new fabrics already shown among the washables:

Practically Pretty

For the fall debutantes in the fabric world are as pretty as they're practical. There are ever so many unexpected textures, no end of delicious new flowers and many a subtle faded tone to lure you on.

The texture story starts with the plain toned silken texture materials. A light, loose, spongy weave looks awfully new—one of these actually has quite a bit of stretch to it. There are lots of nice textural effects achieved by the use of raw silk. And many crinkled taffetas are about, as well as combinations of satin and velvet stripes. Fabrics woven in small quilted effects are still to be seen, but there's not much elaborate quiltings in formal materials.

The better decorators will still outline floral designs in chintz with quilting, but you'll see very little fringed and fancy tufted fabrics. Satins with shaded printed designs in the same color as the ground tone give a feeling of a modern damask or brocade, but the patterns are so contemporary they'll refresh you just to see. Embroideries are having their day once more and look very new for decorative fabrics. Metalics are worth a bit of watching.

New Cotton Weaves

In the cottons, the news is the inclination away from an all-chintz picture. Chintzes there certainly are—and beauties—fast in color, permanent in glaze; but you'll find many experiments in new cotton weaves that take printed designs gracefully, too. There are several ticking textures that are handsome indeed, and quite a new small waffle weave that has a soft pleasant quality.

Sateen in a fine sheen and weave is being offered in the old chintz type of patterns and people are liking it especially for slip covers because of the way it can be done up. They're not calling any of the new things cretonne, but that's the idea of the variations, even though the weaves are more interesting.

Irish Envoy Attends Bnaquet in New York

Robert Brennan, the Irish Minister, attended the banquet given last evening at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York in honor of the horse show teams competing in the National Horse Show opening today at Madison Square Garden. The Irish team is among the contestants for the trophy.

Mr. Brennan will return to Washington on Monday.

Blocks Will Entertain For Guests Next Week

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Block will have as their guests next week-end Misses Frances and Elizabeth Ross, of New York, who, like the Blocks, summer at Nantucket.

Mr. and Mrs. Block will give a cocktail party for the visitors Friday and a dinner in their honor the following evening.

To Fete Miss Fraser

The English-Spaeking Union will entertain at tea Monday, from 4:30 to 8 p. m., in compliment to Miss Helen Fraser, of London, who will arrive in Washington tomorrow.

For Bright Silverware

Silverware will stay shiny and untarnished if it is used daily, washed thoroughly and stored carefully. Use hot soapy water for washing, hot clear water for rinsing. Wipe the silver carefully with a lintless soft cloth. Don't pile silverware; that is likely to scratch it. To remove tarnish from silver, use a polish that is very soft and is free from grit.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

The Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki, was among those on hand for the opening meet Wednesday of the Piedmont Foxhounds. The group gathered at Grafton, the home of Archibald Cary Randolph, M. F. H., and Mrs. Randolph. For those who were early for the meet, trays of sherry, biscuits, coffee and hot sausages were served on the lawn.

In addition to Count Potocki, others were Mrs. William Beverley Mason, jr., of Washington; Dulany Randolph, and Archie Cary Randolph, jr. Also, Mrs. Diana Guest Savestapoulo, who has just arrived in the hunt country for the season; Mrs. Amory Carhart, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McGrath, Dick Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Fontaine, and Mr. and Mrs. Rigan McKinney. Mr. McKinney left immediately after the run as he rode at Pimlico on Thursday.

Still others on hand were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Young, Mr. and Mrs. Turner Wiltshire, Mrs. Eva Stewart Spilman, Mrs. Charles Sabin, Mrs. Norman Toerge, Mrs. James Va Alen, Dr. Carey Langhorne, Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips, Harry Frost, Winston Frost, George Robert Slater, Richards Peach, Miss Jane Stevenson, Harry Worcester Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Compton Smith.

Miss Ellen Witt, of Richmond, who is visiting Mrs. George Slater, attended the met with Mrs. Slater as a spectator. Also there were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Long, of St. Louis, Mo., whose wedding took place October 1. Mrs. Long formerly lived in Upperville.

A number returned to Grafton for coffee and eggs while others collected at Harry Worcester Smith's hunting box for a bite to eat.

Bedtime Story

The Hurricane

Wind and water none may stay.
None may stop their given way.
—Old Mother Nature.

Harder and harder the wind blew. It drove the rain before it in gusts. It became violent and more violent. The air was filled with leaves and twigs and even branches torn from the trees. The trees themselves swayed and bent and rocked. The strength of the wind increased. There were loud reports like the sharp crack of rifles. They were from huge limbs breaking, and the very trunks of trees snapping under a pressure that was more than they could stand against. Trees that for more than a hundred years had defied the power of wind and storm, of ice and the stress of bitter cold, now were forced to yield, torn up by their earth-bound roots. A little at a time, defiantly, they lost their hold and with slow reluctance yielded to the strength that knew no mercy, finally crashing to the earth that had for so long been their support.

There was fear in the homes of men, for this was a storm the like of which never before had visited this section. It was a hurricane, a hurricane out of bounds where no hurricane was supposed ever to come. And if there was fear there what must there have been among the people in fur and feathers in the Green Forest? Tommy, Sue and Sammy, safe in Farmer Brown's house, remembered them.

"What do you suppose the birds and the animals do in a storm like this? Do you think there will be any of them alive when it is over?" Sue asked anxiously.

"Yes," replied Tommy. "Probably some will be killed and some will be hurt just as some human beings will be killed and some hurt, but most of them will come through somehow. I don't know just how. Animals that can get into holes in the ground are safe enough. Reddy Fox and Old Man Coyote are probably safe under ground and I guess Peter Rabbit is too. Very likely Jumper the Hare has crawled into a hollow log. Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel and Chatterer the Red Squirrel probably are in hollow trees, and so is Bobby Coon and perhaps Unc' Billy Possum."

"I hope their trees don't blow over," exclaimed Sammy as a tree in the yard fell.

"I hope they don't," agreed Tommy. "I have an idea that if one of those trees starts to go whoever is living in it will sort of feel the danger in time to get out before the crash. I guess they kind of sense things like that in time. It is the birds I wonder about most. It certainly is hard on them."

"Where do you suppose they go, Tommy?" This was from Sue.

"Into all sorts of places that promise shelter," replied Tommy. "I suspect that Tommy Tit the Chickadee and Drummer the Woodpecker and Yank Yank the Nuthatch are in holes in trees, or perhaps in come of my birdhouses. Some birds will get into buildings. But I guess most of them are over in the Green Forest, where there are spruce and hemlock and cedar trees with spreading branches low down. Some creep into and under piles of brush. I guess they use any sort of place that offers shelter. As soon as the storm is over you will see them out again just as if nothing had happened."

It is even so. Fright is only for the time being among the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. The danger over, the fright is over as a rule. It is well that it is so. During the hurricane it had not seemed that any bird or animal could survive, but when it was over only a few were missing. It was the trees that suffered, not the birds and animals.

Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy came out from their den in the Old Pasture. Peter Rabbit and Mrs. Peter came forth from the old chuck hole in the dear old Briar-patch. Jumper the Hare issued from a hollow log.

The Integrity of the store from which you buy is of Importance.

Md. to Vote Tuesday on Legal Lotteries

Lottery

last night. "I don't think it will pass."

Marylanders already enjoy chance-taking privileges residents of most other states are denied. Horse racing has brought millions of visitors and dollars—no small amount of them, from from the District of Columbia.

Pin ball machines were legalized as a means of piecing out revenue needed for relief. By decision of the Court of Apepals, it was ruled that slot machines were not legalized by this rule because they represent pure chance-taking and call for no application of skill.

In Prince Georges County the grand jury ordered slot machines removed from places of business by November 1.

Prince Georges County and the Baltimore area are the sections which stand to benefit most from changes in the lottery laws. Long a refuge of gamblers, and especially since District laws have been tightened, the county takes a lenient attitude toward gambling law enforcement.

Headquarters for the District numbers racket, which police term one of the most pernicious problems to handle, are located most in Prince Georges County.

Sweepstakes Suggested

If widespread lottery privileges are bestowed on the State, Maj. E. W. Brown, chief of police, said last night, District promoters in all prohability would be induced to move "out where they can be licensed."

"It might make our enforcement duties lighter, probably, and it doubtless would create a demand for more gasoline," he said.

Most of Prince Georges' customers, of course, are from the District—where the income is both high and stable.

While no specific form of lotteries has been proposed officially, everything from a Maryland sweepstakes modeled along Irish lines to the simple expedient of collecting license fees from the numbers promoters already in operation have been suggested by sponsors.

As a member of the Legislature said: "Our people gamble, and we know it. Laws hvae never prevented them. Why not bring it into the open, as we did prohibition, and get the revenue from it—and also be honest with ourselves about it?"

Socialist at Greenbelt

Officials of the Socialist Party in Maryland anounced last night Miss Elizabeth Gilman, candidate for United States Senator, would speak at 6 p. m. tonight in the square at Greenbelt, Md., and at 8 p. m. at the Hyattsville Masonic Hall.

New Registrar Named At Western Md. College

Westminster, Md., Nov. 4.—Miss Martha E. Manahan was appointed registrar of Western Maryland College to fill the position made vacant by the recent death of Mrs. Anna H. Isanogle, who held the office for the past 18 years.

Miss Manahan, who graduated from Western Maryland in 1923, returned to the college this fall in the capacity of assistant registrar.

Miss Cora V. Perry, a graduate of the class of 1936, will take over the duties of assistant registrar.

Oysterman Held For Possession of Out-Season Ducks

Out of windswept Tangier Island, Va., with a load of oysters, Capt. Austin Daily nosed his deadrise work boat, the Josephine D., into the municipal wharf Thursday. Yesterday he was held under $200 bail by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Capt. Daily had pleaded guilty to "possession in closed season" of 51 wild ducks.

When his boat docked he was arrested by United States Game Management Agent Earnest Atkinson and Webb Midyette, of the Virginia State game commission. The agents had organized surevillance of incoming boats on the basis of reports that Chesapeake Bay oystermen and fishemen were supplementing their incomes by sale of trapped wild fowl.

of Baltimore into the very heart of Washington.

"There will be no delay to the even and rapid flow of traffic. Cross-traffic will be cared for by underpasses or over-passes. This road will be lighter at night and will be guarded by every safety device known to engineering for the rapid and safe handling of the great load it will carry.

"Over this route traffic will move from the outskirts of Washington and continue directly to Route 40 in Baltimore City without once meeting a traffic light or a cross-road. It will stand, when completed, as the most modern example of high-speed road construction in the entire country."

O'Conor Gets Check

The headquarters of Attorney General Herbert O'Conor, Nice's Democratic rival in the gubernatorial race, was cheered tonight by the receipt of a check for $500 and a letter from a man who is a key figure in the political picture.

This was Howard W. Jackson, there times mayor of Baltimore, whose long ambition to be Governor was thwarted when O'Conor beat him in the Democratic primary. Jackson's political machine is the most powerful in Maryland, and what it will do in Tuesday's election has been one of the big question marks in the campaign.

Jackson was tentatively scheduled to make a speech for O'Conor tonight. He couldn't do that, so he sent the $500 check and the letter instead.

Attitude Unchanged

"I am inclosing herewith a check for $500, as my contribution toward the expenses of the candidates on the Democratic ticket," Mayor Jackson wrote to Clarence W. Miles, chairman of the campaign committee. "It is, of course, unnecessary for me to say that, despite rumors and reports printed in the daily newspapers, my attitude, as expressed by me at the Democratic State convention, has not changed."

Mayor Jackson was referring to the speech he made when, knowing that O'Conor had the votes to defeat him in convention, he arose and moved to make the nomination unanimous, saying in part:

"It was a good fight and no one, whether victor or loser, should regret the part he played. I propose that all rivalries, all differences of opinion and all antagonisms be buried on the battle field. The time has come to heal the wounds, to close up the ranks."

The Republicans, counting heavily on the Jackson-O'Conor fued to re-elect Gov. Nice, have preferred to think that Jackson's speech was the usual compaign gesture of a defeated candidate. Gov. Nice, bidding for the votes of disgruntled Democrats, has ben praising Jackson lavishly and picturing him as a man with a just grievance.

Having tourned the counties, Gov. Nice and Attorney General O'Conor were concentrating on Baltimore as the campaign roared to a close. Each went on the air tonight and each made a half-dozen or more appearances in different parts of the city.

Pennsylvania Race Doubtful, Farley Concedes

New York, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Postmaster General Farley said today that he expected the Democratic Party, exclusive of the Pennsylvania situation, would not lose more than 28 seats in the House of Representatives in Tuesday's election.

The Pennsylvania election is doubtful, he said, but if the Democrats lose the Governorship they may lose from five to ten additional House seats. He said Republican predictions of a gain of 80 seats were preposterous.

New York State Democrats will lose two seats in the Congressional race, he said, but in each instance they will be replaced by pro-New Deal members of the American Labor Party.

Democrats may gain one or two seats in Massachusetts, Farley continued, but may lose three in California, one in Colorado, one in Connecticut, one in Delaware, four in Illinois, three in Iowa, one in Michigan, two in New Jersey, one in Nevada, six in Ohio, one in South Dakota, and two in Wisconsin.

Prehistoric Oyster And Shell Found Near Suitland

The oyster cocktail that some prehistoric man dreamed about and never found came to light yesterday in an excavation for a well near Suitland, Md.

The oyster, measuring about 10 inches wide, was petrified, and at first the finders threw it away along with other stones.

Later a fragment of shell was discovered, and its resemblance to the discarded oyster was spotted.

George M. Beltey, on whose farm the discovery was made, cracked the shell of the stone oyster and found inside the meat, turned to stone and darkened, but with the characteristic "heart" proving its identity.

The oyster was found about 20 feet below the surface at a point several miles from the nearest stream large enough for present-day oysters to call home.

Governor of Kiwanis Makes Appointments

The Rev. Miles S. Reifsnyder, governor-elect of the Capital district, Kiwanis International, yesterday announced that Lewis T. Breuninger, of Washington, had been appointed member of the Boston 1939 convention program committee.

Appointment of the following Leutenant Governors for Virginia to take office January 1 also was announced: Lyman M. Keller, Arlington; Lynwood H. Wilson, Crewe; W. S. Jordan, Radford; George E. Parker, Portsmouth, and Humes J. Franklin, Waynesboro.

Gas Fumes Are Fatal

Baltimore, Nov. 4 (AP).—Policemen broke into a gas-filled apartment today and found David Miller, 36, dead on the floor. Neighbors called the officers after smelling gas fumes.

Tutor Tells All About Film Voices

Has Coached Stars Few Can Sing How He Does It

By Frederick C. Othman.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Hollywood, Nov. —One of the bravest men in all Hollyood is Al Siegel, the music coach, who told all today about the voices—if any—of his celebrated pupils.

Siegel is the man credited with turning Ethel Merman, a $35-a-week stenographer, into a $5,000 per week singing star.

"And I did that simply by taking advantage of what other people had called her most serious fault," he said. "She had a loud and brassy tone. It was like a cornet.

"So when she sang with an orchestra, I merely made her into one of the horns. It worked beautifully."

Lombard's Larynx

"Only I shouldn't have said sing," he continued. "Miss Lombard can't sing a note. She just talks with a singing tone and she gets away with it. That's because it's a lot pleasanter listening to an actress trying to sing than to a singer trying to act."

Dorothy Lamour, another customer, he called "a nasal singer."

"But it fits her personality and she does all right," he said. "Miss Lamour has more feeling in her soul than comes through in her voice, but enough comes through at that. Only I would hate to have to listen to a blonde nasal singer."

Siegel taught Grace Moore, the opera diva, how to sing "Minnie the Moocher." He coached Shirley Ross, who, he said, had done more with her voice than anyone else he knows.

Currently, he's working on the vocal chords of the Misses Helen Kane and Nancy Carroll.

"Helen Kane is the boop-boop-a-doop girl," he said, "and what she's got is a pouty-sounding voice. That was the secret of her first success. Now she's due for a change of style, but I still haven't decided what it'll be. She's got a babyish voice, really, and you'd laugh to hear her sing an ordinary love song. Right now I'm trying to get her to sing ballads, plainly.

"As for Nancy Carroll, she's got an old-time sweet soprano voice. But that's out of style, so I'm trying to teach her to tell a story with her songs. I think she'll be okay."

And we only hope Siegel will be okay, when as and if his customers read what he thinks about 'em. He really likes them. But he believes the time has come to quit making a mystery out of singing.

Siegel said he had done all his work with feminine singers, never with a man.

"I can't stand men singing," he said. "It's women's work and no barytone can tell me differently."

Wall Space Needs Careful Attention

Decorators have ascertained that two-thirds of the interior of a home is wall space. The importance of appropriate and pleasing treatment of walls deserves the serious consideration of every home owner.

The wide range of materials and patterns that may be utilized in decoration offers an opportunity for every home owner to achieve the effects he wants within the range of his purse.

Steel Casement Doors Produced

Steel casement doors that are particularly designed as entrances to sun rooms and as exits leading to porches, terraces and gardens, are now produced as standard units by manufacturers of the metal window industry, according to an announcement of the group's trade association. Both inward and outward swinging styles are available.

These doors are made to harmonize with the casement windows manufactured by the Industry. Panes are in the same proportions as those of corresponding styles of windows. If desired, they may be glazed with leaded glass or with special glass that permits the health-giving ultraviolet rays to penetrate into the room.

Many modern homes have inside communicating doors of the casement type. They find a special use in doorways leading from the hall to living and dining room and may be used in other parts of the house as well. Single and double doors to match are available.

2 Electric Circuits Serve Small House

An electric wiring system with two branch circuits should be sufficient for the needs of a small dwelling containing two bedrooms, bath and a single other room that accommodates the remaining functions of the house.

Care should be exercised that these branches are not overloaded. In a house where electric cooking facilities are used, or where other similar heavy loading may occur, the owner should assure himself that service entrance wires are of suitable size and that a special circuit of suitable capacity is run to the range or other appliances.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

CAMPAIGN CAPERS: If the G-men investigate, they'll find that Democrats who complained about the racing data distributed by a Pennsylvania GOP leader are avid bettors at the race tracks . . . If nothing else, superstition should deter Republicans from using the same speeches they used in 1936 . . . At this stage of a campaign I always wonder why we don't elect officials by drawing straws.

Hu Shih . . . old slogan?

Besides the extra mouth of FDR III the young Franklin Roosevelts have to feed, they also have a Great Dane and an Irish setter, and Ethel Roosevelt spends most of her time taking care of the three of 'em while FDR II is at his law classes. The Great Dane (as big as a calf) often eats 4½ pounds of meat a day.

• • • •

CAPITAL CHATTER: At the Willard bar: "I don't know which is the greater nuisance, the Communists or Congressman Dies." . . . At the Mayflower Lounge: "American Communists are snobs; they import their ideas from Europe as dowagers import their gowns." . . . At the Shoreham Blue Room: "Why don't the cameramen ever let Jimmy Roosevelt pose with his wife?" . . . Bets are even that the new Chinese ambassador will use the same slogan as the old one: "The Chinese may lose battles, but never wars."

"—sans cameras, no Army post"

SPIES WITH CAMERAS: Once that sardonic explorer, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, observed that if a man's accustomed to a front yard with a red cow in it, then no lawn is a front yard unless it has a red cow in it . . . It's almost as true that if it has some rollicking merry-makers with cameras scattered around, it's a navy yard or Army post.

• • • •

This solemn thought popped into my mind as I watched a Navy plane being catapulted into the air . . . Scattered about were big men and little men, blond and dark, playfully snapshooting with their little cameras . . . A Jap general or a German admiral would have had kittens on the spot if this happened in his bailiwick, even if the pictures were worthless and revealed no secrets.

• • • •

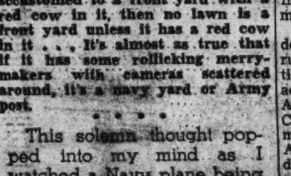
On the theory that "to the victors belong the spoils," how clean a sweep has the Roosevelt regime made of Federal offices? This question is naturally raised by a discussion of the spoils system in Hugh Russel Fraser's excellent new book, "Democracy in the Making," a lively account of the Jackson-Tyler era. By way of precedent: Jefferson had ousted 254 of 739 officeholders; Jackson (unjustly famed as the complete spoilsman), 919 out of 11,000 possible jobs, and Abe Lincoln, 1,457 from the 1,639 jobs within his gift.

• • • •

When Mr. Roosevelt entered the White House there were about 17,000 jobs under Presidential appointment, including 14,798 postmasterships.

Exact figures are difficult to obtain. It appears that in ousting and appointing, Mr. Roosevelt has been somewhat less lenient and indulgent than even Honest Abe, if you use percentages; Roosevelt and Farley have replaced just about all of GOP's 1932 incumbents.

For example, there were 18,637 appointments and reappointments, among the 14,798 postmasterships of the Presidential class; which include, of course, quite a few reappointments.



"—one-seventh acre per heir"

Western yokels like me who come to Washington are gratified to find the Maryland and Virginia countryside surrounding the Capital so rural. Half an hour from the big dome are landscapes deceptively like the most bucolic sections of Ohio, Kentucky or Minnesota, until you see the brilliant green of tobacco.

• • • •

In this locality a peculiar phenomenon is what's called "heir property"—land which has been passed down for 300 years by inheritance, through increasingly ramifying families, until the title is so hopelessly complicated that the only solution is to sell the land and divide up the proceeds among 40 or 50 heirs, some of whom may own as little as a seventh of an acre. This is great for the lawyers, but the heirs and heiresses are scarcely as effigent as the heirs of fiction.

• • • •

Incidentally, within 30 miles of Washington, on the Maryland peninsula bounded by the Potomac and Patuxent rivers and Chesapeake Bay, I saw a dusky belle all dressed up, at 3 o'clock of a Sunday afternoon, in a pink silk nightie airily superimposed on her gray gingham weekday dress; it gave the village scene an air of gala.

Hughes Urges New 'Spirit' In Judiciary

Justices Open Parley
Senator King Speaks
Independent Bench Continues Today

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 4.—A letter of greeting from Chief Justice Hughes stressing the necessity of a new judicial "spirit" for the proper interpretation of the new rules of civil proceduremarked the opening yesterday of a two-day Judicial Conference of Justices of the United States Court of Appeals at the University of Virginia. The letter was read by D. Lawrence Groner, chief justice of the appelate tribunal.

The letter said in part: "The rules will not accomplish all that is desired unless the judges are animated b ythe spirit which pervades them and deeply cherish the desire for simplicity and effectiveness in procedure which led to their adoption. More than ever, the success of administration now lies with the judge as he enjoys the increased freedom from technical requirements.

Senator King Speaks

The judges know better than anyone else where defects lie and they should be the first to suggest available remedies."

Principal speaker was Senator King, of Utah, who spoke in the absence of Judge J. Parker, senior circuit judge for the Fourth Circuit, who was detained in Washington because of the serious condition of his son, injured in an automobile accident.

Saying that he had at first not been in favor of the new rules, Senator King yet pointed out their potential values in speeding up civil procedure. The avoidance of delay in the prcesses of the law was necessary if the courts were to preserve their independence by avoiding such criticism as had arisen in the past.

Continuing his plea for an independent Judiciary, Senator King cited Jeffersonian principles advocating the independence of the States and their courts as against the prejudicial influence resulting from a centralization of government.

The afternoon conference was devoted to a discussion of the new rules of procedure in their relation to the Federal rules recently adopted by the Supreme Court. After a dinner at the Farmington Club, Thomas Benjamin Gay, chairman of the house of delegates, American Bar Association, addressed the justices on the subject of Vanishing Rights of the States and the People."

Series to Continue

At the concluding session of the conference tomorrow morning, problems relating to the organization, administration and interrelation of the District of Columbia courts will be discussed.

In addition to President John Lloyd Newcamb, of the University of Virginia; Dean Dobie, Assistant Dean F. D. G. Ribble, of the university law school faculty, invitations to the conference were extended to avid A. Pine, United States attorney; Robert E. Freer, president of the Federal Bar Association; William Barron Kerkham, president of the American Patent Law Associationm Godfrey L. Minter, president of the District of Columbia Bar Association; Wilbur L. Grey, secretary of the District of Columbia Bar Association, and F. Regis Noel, the new court building; J. Spaulding Flannery, Percy H. Marshall and Joseph C. McGarraghy, all chairmen of District of Columbia Bar Association committees.

Gaithersburg Man Crowned 'King' of Biscuit-Makers

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 4.—E. B. Lipford, of Gaithersburg, was crowned "King Hot Biscuit Man" today at a biscuit-baking contest closing the three-day meeting of the Southern States Co-operative.

Lipford, paired with Golden Davis, of Rising Sun, defeated the team of W. H. Carroll, of Lutherville, and W. S. McConnell, of Lynchburg, Va., in a contest among the co-operative's field men.

Declared the winner after he had overcome a balky flour sifter, Lipford was crowned by Miss Jean Rymkean, an employe of the Farmer's Co-operative.

Carroll, who fumbled his rolling pin at a critical moment, won the "booby prize" for his baking, but for his trouble he received a kiss from Miss Rymkean.

"Whoopee!" shouted Carroll, "I got the best prize."

The contest was held after H. E. Babcock, of Ithaca, N. Y., president of the G. L. F. Food Products Corporation, gave a demonstration on biscuit-making under the supervision of Miss Lucille Brewer, also of Ithaca, food specialist who refereed the match.

Babcock left early in the meeting for Washington to confer with Department of Agriculture officials on the co-operative program as it relates to human foods.

Plans for the organization's spring program were discussed by approximately 100 field men. Co-operative officials attending included:

W. G. Wysor, of Richmond, general manager; T. K. Wolf, of Richmond, director of distribution; L. E. Raper, of Richmond, director of membership relations; George A. Jackson, of Richmond, manager of the seed department; W. V. Fielder, of Baltimore, manager of the farm supply department, and M. C. Mann, manager of the Farmers' Co-operative Exchange, Raleigh, N. C.

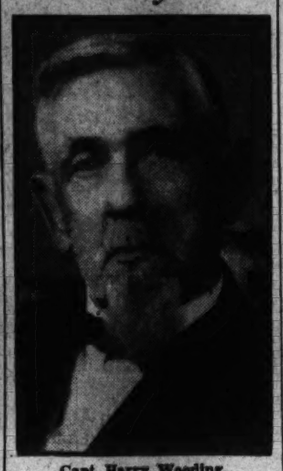
Capt. Wooding, 94, Mayor of Danville, Is Critically Ill



Capt. Harry Wooding.

Danville, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—The condition of Capt. Harry Wooding, Mayor of Danville for 46 years, was described by his physician, Dr. H. A. Wiseman, today as extremely critical.

Dr. Wiseman said the condition of the veteran mayor was graver today than at any time since he became ill after attending the joint reunion of Union and Confederate veterans at Gettysburg in July.

His condition first became alarming yesterday when he was forced to retire to bed, and his heart action became irregular. Capt. Wooding was 94 years old last April.

Oyster Prices Ruinous, Claim Md. Dredgers

Warm Fall Bemoaned
Fine Quality Stressed
Fleets Becalmed

By the Associated Press.

Princess Anne, Md., Nov. 4.—Somerset County oystermen reported today bivalves in these waters were the fattest and finest flavored they had seen, but continued warm weather has ruined the market and lack of wind has becalmed their dredge boats.

The Deals Island and Crisfield dredge fleets have been practically becalmed since the dredging season opened November 1. The few dredgefuls brought up disclosed luscious oysters, but watermen said prices offered for them were "ruinous."

"I never saw better quality, bigger or fatter oysters than the first catches of the present season, landed at Crisfield," said L. Cooper Dize, county commissioner of Crisfield. "But there simply is no market for them because of the warm weather this fall.

"The highest price now is only 40 cents and the general price is 30 to 35 cents a bushel—and that's ruinous and outrageous for the fine quality stock we have this year."

Robert Webster, "admiral" of the Deals Island fleet, confirmed the quality and low prices and added:

"It has been so calm we can't sail our boats to catch anything at any price.

"It takes a good breeze to drag our heavy dredges and it simply isn't blowing. Our island captains say when they put their dredges overboard they might as well have dropped anchor."

Quick Thinking By Boy, 5, Saves Dangling Chum

Snow Hill, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—Five-year-old Vernon Truitt was lauded as a life-saver by townfolk today.

The youngster, by quick action, saved the life of his 7-year-old companion, Jackie Dill, while playing in a partially constructed house.

Jackie, hiding from his companion, squeezed his body between two boards in an effort to climb from the basement. His chin caught on the boards, leaving him dangling 4 feet above the basement floor.

Vernon couldn't help. But he didn't fail his chum.

He rushed next door and called his mother.

Mrs. Truitt lowered Jackie to the floor. A physician said he would recover. His throat and jaws were badly bruised.

U. S. Attacks Farm Surplus On 2 Fronts

Export Study Launched
Wilcox Goes Abroad
2-Price Plan Weighed

By Robert C. Albright.

Immobile, price-depressing farm surpluses yesterday were attacked by the Administration from two tangents—supersalesmanship in a tight world market and new studies of low-income outlets at home.

F. R. Wilcox, vice president of the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, was dispatched to Europe to explore foreign market possibilities, while Secretary Wallace held in reserve his "two-price" plan for American consumers.

Wilcox was sent to Europe after October marketing records showed the wheat export subsidy program making slow headway against stiff foreign competitors. In England, France, Norway, Sweden, Belgium and The Netherlands, and perhaps in Germany and Italy, Wilcox will study market possibilities for other far surpluses.

Renewed AAA interest was evidenced here in domestic "two-price" possibilities as pessimistic trade prospects continued abroad.

Wallace Dickers With Rails

Wallace has been dickering with railroads for reduced rates on surplus shipments of citrus fruit, after indicating he may launch the plan with "two-price" grapefruit. From the processed commodity angle, a special committee will meet here next Friday to discuss methods of distributing reduced-price cotton bedding to low income users.

A clew to how the plan might function in practical operation, how low income beneficiaries might be selected, and rudimentary mechanics for distributing and selling selected products, meantime was provided in an AAA reprint of an old study of the LaGuardia New York milk distribution system.

Wallace referred to the 1937 study by Consumers' Guide,and to the LaGuardia experiment, at a recent press conference.

The study pointed out that under the New York plan, family heads to qualify for purchase of special priced milk must first sign a statement that neither he nor any member of his family can afford to pay the regular retail price for the amount of milk the family needs. He also would state the number of people in his family, family earnings and the number on welfare or home relief.

"No Out-and-Out Charity"

No investigation into family finances would follow except on complaint. In return for the signed statement, the family head receives a numbered identification card, which is good for three months. Each time the holder made a purchase, a hole would be punched.

"This is no out-and-out charity plan, nor a straight commercially operated method of distribution," the Consumers' Guide study said. "It comes between, but much nearer to the second."

The New York milk sales were handled through special stations, usually set up in stores that had been vacant and whose owners were willing to "loan" them, thus effecting one saving. One attendant provided by the city—usually a WPA worker—punches the customers' card, and another provided by the distributor, sells the milk. The stations were kept open only between 6:30 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. to lessen competition with regular retail stores that open later.

"Who are the customers?" said the study. "Well, to start with, they are not in the upper income brackets. None drive up in sport roadsters. People bothered by heavy income taxes won't stroll down at 6:30 in the morning to save 10 cents on 2 bottles of milk. But there are a lot of people who will, some on relief, some with jobs."

It said distributors co-operate because the plan "provides sure sales to people who would otherwise not be in the market or would not purchase as much" and "farmers get a break, too, because the city has increased the market for their product."

Reprint Considered Significant

"The city's cost for handling the milk," the study said, "is: rent, nothing; service, nothing; accessories, nothing. And like all established dealers, it passes these charges on to the consumer."

Wallace has steadfastly declined discuss the mechanics of operation of his proposed plan, how those to receive the favored price would be selected, whether they would be given special cards, whether regular retail dealers or the Government itsel would retail the product. The AAA reprint of the Consumer's Guide article therefore was regarded as a signficant indication of some lines the Wallace proposal, if and when it is put in operation, might follow.

Stylist Sees Newspapers Picking Up Modern Trend

Cites Streamlining as Indication of Aims
Farrar Addresses Intercollegiate Press Forums Scheduled Today at Lexington

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, Va., Nov. 4.—Gilbert P. Farrar, New York newspaper stylist, asserted today that "presentation of the news has not kept up with the progress of the world," but that an increase in "streamlined" newspapers was an indication of the publishers' desire to modernize their pages.

Farrar addressed scholastic journalists gathered at Washington and Lee University for the fourteenth Southern Interscholastic Press Association convention.

Speaking at the afternoon session, Farrar illustrated the progress of streamlined typography of newspapers and said the trend was toward making papers easier to read. He also pointed to an increasing use of color pages in the daily newspapers and predicted that more color and larger body type would be used during the coming years.

Registration for the convention reached 279, which S. I. P. A. officials said was perhaps the largest number to attend any of the conference meetings.

A "journalism workshop" will be the feature of tomorrow's sessions as three newspaper men conduct model copy desk roundtables. They are William L. Thomas, assistant city editor of the Baltimore Evening Sun; William T. Christian, assistant general manager of the Richmond News Leader, and Harry Nash, managing editor of the Waynesboro, Va., News-Virginian.

Following the workshop meetings, members of the Washington and Lee journalism faculty will conduct criticisms of papers, magazines and annuals entered in the publications contests.

Darkness Halts Hunt for Cruiser Sunk Off Md. Shore

Ocean City, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—Darkness forced Ocean City Coast Guardsmen tonight to abandon until tomorrow their search for an unidentified cruiser reported submerged in the Atlantic Ocean about 4 miles offshore.

Meanwhile, the guardsmen were endeavoring to learn whether any craft or persons were missing along this section of the coast.

The search started after Capt. A. J. Lombard, of Ocean City, reported sighting a vessel of the sailing cruiser type submerged about 4 miles off the inlet. He said the vessel was about 75 feet long.

Capt. Lombard said he managed to get a line on the boat, but was unable to tow it because of rough seas. The spot was marked with buoys to guide the guardsmen when they continue their search tomorrow.

Dr. France Told to Pay $300 Monthly Alimony

Elkton, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—Judge J. Owen Knotts granted Mrs. Tatiana France $300 a month alimony today pending court of appeals action on her divorce from Dr. Joseph I. France, former United States Senator.

Dr. France, who lives at Port Deposit, was granted a divorce from his Russian-born wife in Cecil County Circuit Court last spring on grounds they had been separated five consecutive years. Mrs. France filed an appeal decision in September.

Hagerstown Removes 'Loop' Trolley Rails

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Nov. 4.—The city is removing another reminder of the days when trolleys operated around the "Loop." Street department workers, using a new type torch which does not necessitate the tearing up of streets, began removing trolley tracks on Mulberry street, one of the most traveled thoroughfares in the city.

Trolleys on the route were abandoned some years ago and the tracks, said city officials, have proved a hazard to motorists during rainy weather.

Officials Hunt 'Pension' Aides At Frederick

Self-Styled 'Agents'
Offered to Sell Stamps
Scheme Called Fraud

By the Associated Press.

Frederick, Md., Nov. 4.—Search by police and board of welfare officials for two smooth-talking men who offered "pensions" in Frederick at wholesale rates proved unsuccessful today.

After finding three persons who had been interviewed by the "pension agents," traveling in a car with Pennsylvania license tags, police received no more information leading to identity of the two men.

So fas as could be learned today, no persons were victimized.

J. Sheldon Turner, executive secretary of the Frederick County Welfare Board, termed the scheme "unquestionably fraudulent." Turner said he learned the pair had offered in exchange for payment of $20 for "necessary stamps, etc." to provide residents with pensions paying $60 monthly. The only condition, they were quoted, was that the money must be spent as soon as it was received, "to get it in circulation."

No Government agency, Turner pointed out, is authorized to make any such guarantee as the men offered upon payment of a lump sum.

Va. Co-operative To Energize Line

South Hill, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Gov. James H. Price and John M. Carmody, Administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration, have been invited to attend the celebration here tomorrow marking the opening of the Mecklenburg County co-operative power lines.

The ceremony will be climaxed when power is turned on to the 145 miles of lines which will serve about 300 farm families. Construction is under way to extend the power facilities to approximately 100 more farm families.

Postmasters In Va. Favor Salary Basis

Report Due Today
Woodrum Speaks
Lauds Service

By the Associated Press.

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 4.—The Virginia Chapter, National Association of Postmasters, in the opening session of its annual convention this afternoon proposed to its resolutions committee that all Virginia's 1,600 fourth-class postmasters be put on a salary basis.

The committee, appointed by W. Nelson Page, of Winchester, president of the association, will report along with other committees at the closing session tomorrow morning at which time new officers will be elected.

A banquet climaxed the opening day's program. It was addressed by M. J. McAuliffe, manager, fourth civil service district, and S. W. Purdum, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, both of Washington, D. C.

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, in a short address, paid tribute to the work of the Postoffice Department. He spoke at the opening session along with William J. Dixon, superintendent of postmasters, and G. W. Trexler, a representative of the Fourth Assistant's bureau.

Woodrum referred briefly to the civil service bill, effective last July 25, for postmasters and which occupied the delegates this afternoon.

"The idea that there is no politics in the postoffice or in civil service is all humbug," Woodrum asserted. "Why should a person give up his political party just because he holds an office?"

"I have always been interested in a real merit civil service," he declared. "I hope that some day we can get it, where men and women can go into Government service with a feeling that an honest career will be rewarded."

Committees announced are as follows:

Constitution and by-laws: M. W. Foster, Williamsburg, chairman; S. S. Stallings, Suffolk, and W. M. Bayliss, Opequon; resolutions, T. M. Warner, Lawrenceville; B. N. Kibler, Luray; Rufus G. Roberts, Culpeper, and Robert E. Fifer, Staunton; auditing W. S. Crockett, Hampton; Mrs. Francis B. Beale, Bowling Green, and W. R. Bailey, Quinton, and nominating, T. E. Chambers, Blackston, J. J. Patterson, Chatham; G. Fred Switzer, Harrisonburg, and Henry L. Munt, Hopewell.

Jackson Repeats Democrat Stand, Contributes $500

Baltimore, Nov. 4 (AP).—Mayor Howard W. Jackson, who was defeated for the Democratic nomination for Governor, today contributed $500 to the party's general election campaign fund.

In a letter to Clarence W. Miles, chairman of the Democratic campaign committee, the mayor said in part:

"It is, of course, unnecessary for me to say that, despite rumors and reports printed in the daily newspapers, my attitude, as expressed by me at the Democratic State Convention, has not changed."

At the convention Jackson pledged to work for success of the party's ticket against the Republicans in the general election.

60,000 to See Navy-Irish Tilt in Baltimore Today

This Is the Starting Notre Dame Lineup That Faces Navy in Annual Grid Classic Today

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

California and Southern California will be playing for a $125,000 purse today at Los Angeles . . . inasmuch as the winner will be the West Coast's Rose Bowl entry, and the Rose Bowl game is always worth 125 grnad to each of the teams selected . . . California this season is reported even stronger than the California team that licked Alabama last New Year's Day . . . Of that team it was said that California's backs gained 5 yards before they hit the line of scrimmage, so fast did the California linemen charge . . . George P. Marshall has posted a bulletin in the Redskins' clubhouse warning that any player making a horse bet will be fined.

It was no mere coincidence that War Admiral and Seabiscuit raced for a $15,000 purse in their Pimlico match . . . Sam Riddle at first declined the matche because he would have to forego two $7,500 stake races in New England which he expected to win with War Admiral . . . Young Alfred Vanderbilt clinched the macth race by giving Riddle and the Admiral a shot at the $15,000 on one afternoon at Pimlico . . . Despite War Admiral's defeat the son of Man o' War would bring a better price than Seabiscuit by far at any public auction . . . War Admiral's stud book for 1939 is already filled . . . He will service 15 mares at a $1,500 fee . . . foals are not guaranteed unless $150 additional is paid as insurance . . . Don Meade has been reinstated by the Florida Racing Commission after a two-year ban . . . but the New York Racing Commission still refuses to permit Meade to ride on New York tracks.

The new ball to be recommended to the major leagues after Bureau of Standards tests at Griffith Stadium will be a composite of the best features of the American and National League balls of last season . . . it will have the National League's wider stitches and the American League's cover, which is thinner by one one-thousandth of an inch . . . a synthetic rubber center instead of a genuine rubber center will take some of the "rabbit" out of the ball . . . tests showed that the experimental ball traveled only 94 per cent as far as the 1938 ball . . . in other words, the same swing that sent the 1937 ball 400 feet will drive the new ball only 376 feet . . . which can mean considerable difference in a ball game . . . with the wider stitches, American League pitchers will be afforded the same good grip that the National League hurlers had on the ball last year.

The best football run seen in New York this season was illegal . . . it was a 65-yard dash by Earle Brown, Notre Dame end, against Army . . . Brown shook off a half dozen tacklers, picked up blockers and twisted to the Army 3-yard line before he was hauled down . . . Brown belonged in somebody's backfield on the basis of that run, not at end . . . but it was wasted effort inasmuch as he had picked up a fumble and the ball was dead at the spot where he recovered it . . . Coach Elmer Layden, of the Irish, denies that he is deviating from the Rockne system by using a short punt formation . . . "Fifteen years ago, that was one of Rock's favorite plays," declared Layden, as if any variation of the Rockne system were some sort of a heinous offense . . . Joe Savoldi, wrestling here, predicted that Notre Dame would beat Navy today, barring overconfidence, but that the Irish figured to lose to Northwestern.

An unofficial list of American League players who will be on the block at the annual winter trading meeting at New York next month follows: DETROIT—Rudy York, Tommy Bridges, Dixie Walker. WASHINGTON—Cecil Travis, Rick Ferrell, Zeze Monura. CLEVELAND—Earl

Victory Gives Central Lead in Inter-High McKinley Falls to 2d Place Tie With Riders

High School Elevens Stage Fierce Grid Battle

Two touchdowns in the opening period paced the way to a 27-6 victory for Central yesterday over its ancient rival, Tech, before more than 5,000 spectators at Central Stadium.

The triumph earned Central undisputed lead on the inter-high series and set McKinley's forces back to a second place tie with Western. It likewise increased the Mount Pleasant margin in the 35-year-old rivalry to 18 victories against 14.

INTER-HIGH STANDINGS

Team.	Won.	Lost.	Tied.
Eastern	0	1	2
Wilson	0	2	2
Anacostia	0	2	2
Roosevelt	0	3	0

Central was momentarily stopped in a scoring effort before actually taking the lead. From the opening play, however, it was evident Central gridders were out to win as they ripped enormous holes in the T-street defense. Harry Martin, fullback of Central, received the opening kickoff on his own 25 and stepped to the 32 before being downed. A quick succession of three first downs, plus the added advantage of a 15-yard penalty for holding aginst Tech, brought the ball to Tech's 6, and Central was already conceded a lead. On the third play, though, Benny Steiner found trouble finding a receiver on a reverse and the ball was knocked from his hands across the goal. A Tech back wisely knocked it out of bounds, giving the school a reprieve with a touchback.

Three First Downs Made

The momentary halt did nothing to Central's will to win. On came the advance, this time picking up three more first downs starting on Central's own 45. Dick Farr, spindly end, accounted for two as he took passes from Martin and Steiner. An end-around play featuring Jimmy Clark picked up 16 yards to Tech's 1-yard line and Martin plunged over for the opening score. Steiner converted the first of three successful extra points out of four attempts.

Even then things weren't too hopeless for the McKinley lads. Harold Berry, Tech quarterback, promptly re-kicked Central's kickoff, attempting to give his team a breather, but the effort was wasted.

One of the few ball-carrying attempts of Fullback Jim Porter of Central on the next play brought the Mount Pleasant lead to 13-0. Porter started inconspicuously around left end and was almost bottled when tackler after tackler flew at him as he suddenly reversed his field. He went the width of the field to cross the goal in the right-hand corner.

Kicker Is Hurried

From that point until midway of the second period, Central made repeated threats. When his chance came to relieve the strain on his teammates by kicking, Berry was hurried too much for distance. His boots were far from the perfect spirals they usually are.

Central's second period tally resulted from the neatest pass of the game. Steiner spread the club in place-kick formation on Tech's 20, took the pass from center and hurled it over the heads of Tech secondaries into the waiting arms of Jim Clark. The latter merely fell across for the score.

The third period was the only one in which woe-begone Technical lads functioned as expected. Holding Central scoreless and minus a first down, Tech made two firsts and at one time found itself in possession on the Blue 10. Steiner fumbled a boot to cause the break, but Central held and took the ball on downs.

Steiner accounted for Central's final points as the game closed with a pass to Sam Di Blasi, substitute end. The latter caught the aerial around his shoestrings across the goal and sat down to score.

Tech broke into the scoring column a few minutes later. Passing attempts fairly littered the field until Don Cochrille, lanky substitute, desperately hurled to Jack Swarr. Swarr caught the ball with five Central players around him on Central's 10 and stumbled over. Cochrille's placement went under the cross bar.

Catholic U., DePaul Meet

Their 3d Meeting Moutenot Out Lineup Stands

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 5.—Hopeful of scoring their third victory in five starts, Coach "Dutch" Bergman's Catholic University gridders square off against De Paul University on Wrigley field at 2:30 p.m. today.

It is the third meteing between the two schools, with honors even. In 1935, the Washingtonians were on the wrong end of a 9-6 count, but came back to even the series in 1937, 12 to 7.

With several of its dependables suffering from injuries, and with its star sophomore, triple-threat, Charley Moutenot, out for the season, C. U. goes to war with the Blue Demons under a definite handicap.

G. W. High's Eleven Rallies To Beat Little Hoyas, 18 to 7

Ed Dove Leads Alexandrians to Victory Score Three Touchdowns in Second Half

George Washington High School's eleven came back in the second half to score three touchdowns and upset Georgetown Prep at Garrett Park, 18 to 7.

Let by little Ed Dove, the Alexandrians put on a rally which saw them score on the hitherto unbeaten and unscored on Little Hoyas. Dove made two of George Washington's three touchdowns, one on a 14-yard run around his own left end in th ethird quarter and another in the last quarter after taking Frank Boyer's punt on the enemy 40, and racing down the field behind perfect interference to pay dirt.

The Little Hoyas were the first to score, making a touchdown at the beginning of the second period, when Devine took Eckerich's pass on the 22-yard line to cross the line standing up. Becker converted making it 7 to 0. The half ended with George Washington in possession of the ball.

Georgetown Prep kicked off to the Alexandrians to open up the second half. After a couple of line bucks, Taylor made a first down by going through center for 8 yards. Taylor and Dove in four plays carried the ball to the Prep 14, where Dove went over for the Alexandrians' first score. They failed to convert when Georgetown batted down their pass. The Hoya Prep received and failed to gain lost the ball on downs, and on George Washington's first play chunky Ed Williams made 25 yards around his own right end. Taylor went through center for 3 yards, putting the ball on the Georgetown Prep 11-yard line as the third quarter ended.

The Little Hoyas line held, and George Washington lost the ball on downs. After two line plunges, Georgetown's Boyer kicked to Dove, who returned the ball 40 yards for his second touchdown. George Washington failed to convert. Georgtown Prep took the kick-off and returned it to their own 40, after making a first down, they lost the ball on downs. After Williams picked up 6 yards, Ed Dove went around left end for 33 yards, from where Ji mTaylor carried the ball over for the Alexandrians' third touchdown, making it 18 to 7 in favor of George Washington.

The game ended a few minutes after with the Prepmen in possession of the ball. In the Georgetown Prep line, Harper and Devine were outstanding, and Capt. Harold Payne played well for the Alexandrians. Little Marty Kunts and Bud Eckrich played a good game for the losers.

Warrenton Tied, 13-13

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 4.—Warrenton's grid team earned a 13-13 deadlock with the grid forces of Culpeper today in a thrilling game. Right End Hodgkin and C. Booth, quarterback, were the stars of the host team, each crossing the Culpeper goal for a touchdown.

The opening period of the game saw Culpeper take a 7-0 lead and hold it until the next period. Warrenton knotted the count, and in the final quarter both teams scored but each missed the placement.

Wash-Lee Wins, 20-12

Fredericksburg Bows Lege, Anderson Star Boner Helps Victors

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 4.—Washington-Lee High, of Clarendon, defeated a stout Fredericksburg High eleven, 20 to 12, here this afternoon before a crowd of 2,000. Lege and Anderson starred for the visitors.

Frustrated by Fredericksburg's line in the first period, Washington-Lee's backfield began clicking in the second quarter and scored their first touchdown when Ledge swept around Fredericksburg's left end for 48 yards and the score. Anderson's kick made the score 7-0.

Fredericksburg fought back. Their attempts to break through the Washigton-Lee line were meeting with resistance when, with a minute to play in the second period, Buddy Ingalls, Fredericksburg back, sank back from Washington-Lee's 31 to the 35 and heaved a pass into the arms of George White as he stepped into the end zone to make the score 7-6 as the half ended.

Washington-Lee struck twice in the third period as their bulk of reserves stood them in good stead. The litlte Generals, working steadily in Fredericksburg territory, moved to the ten from where Lege swept around end for the second touchdown.

A flourishing football feud that has raged unabated since 1927 will be resumed this afternoon in Baltimore's rickety municipal stadium, where an unbeaten Notre Dame eleven faces a stubborn and surly Navy squad before an anticipated audience of more than 60,000 fans.

Colorful pre-game ceremonies will precede the opening kick-off, scheduled at 2 o'clock, featuring a parade of midshipmen who will trap on the field to the stirring strains of Navy's battle cry, "Anchors Aweigh," at 1:15 o'clock. And the ensuing battle is confidently expected to be one of the best manufactured in the Monumental City this season.

Confident almost to the extremes of being cocky, the Irish stopped off here yesterday for a workout, spending the night at Wardman Park Hotel. This morning the team will be on its way at 11:30 o'clock, dining on the train and arriving at the stadium an hour before game time.

Layden Sees Tough Game

Coach Elmer Layden was one of the few Notre Damers who appeared to have a respectful opinion of Navy. "The Middies are always tough," the quiet Irish mentor said. "You can't figure on an easy game with them, regardless of what either team's past record is, because they play for keeps. When those boys hit you your teeth rattle, and you can score a thousand points on them without affecting their enthusiasm. Navy always gives us a hard afternoon and I see no reason for expecting an exception this time."

With Minnesota and Northwestern following Navy on the Rambler's schedule Layden was asked if he would try to save his men for those games.

"Definitely and emphatically, no," he answered. "Today and tomorrow we're thinking only of Navy—nothing at all but Navy. We'll think of those games when we come to them. Wouldn't it be a fine thing to overlook this game, pointnig for next week's, and then lose it? No sir. We're not going to try to coast or ease up one iota. My gang is going hit hard, as hard as Navy—I hope, and roll up as many points as possible. We don't let up until the final whistle—and—wait a minute. I'm not sure we're going to win. Let's say we're going out to do our best—and hope we win."

"Spy" Watches Irish

A Navy "spy" attended the workout in the person of Commander J. H. (Babe) Brown, an all-time Navy grid great, who spent a few minutes with Layden. Brown would not venture a prediction on the outcome of the game, except to say he expected to see "60 minutes of real football."

At Annapolis, meanwhile, Navy completed preparations for the fray with its customary casual Friday drill. Punting, passing and the usual signal practice comprised the program. Head Coach Hank Hardwick kept the squad on the field only a little over an hour, and gave the players a short blackboard instruction after leaving the field.

Navy's hopes have been dealt a stunning blow by "Pumpkin" Wood's back injury, which will permit him to play only briefly today, if at all. Wood remained in the infirmary overnight, but was scheduled to rejoin the squad this morning before it cast off for Baltimore. Lou Mayo, a light but heady back, will take Wood's place at fullback

Georgetown University preserved its undefeated record last night at Griffith Stadium by turning back a surprisingly strong Bucknell eleven, 13-0, on touchdowns in the first and final quarters.

Before 15,000 fans, largest crowd of the local season and one of the largest ever to see Georgetown play here, the Hoyas hung up their sixth victory, en route to what Hilltop followers are now almost certain will be the first unbeaten campaign in the school's history.

Joe Mellendeck, fifieet 165-pound halfback, again was the spark of the Georgetown attack. In the opening minutes of the first period, he led a sustained march of 58 yards which was climaxed when Elmer Moulin plunged over left tackle from the 5 for a touchdown.

Joe Shorts Pass

And then in the waning minutes of the hard-fought, bruising battle which possibly brought serious injury to Bill Lane, Bucknell's co-captain and quarterback, Mellendeck shot a touchdown pass to quarterback Lou McFadden who stood in the end zone.

To make his evening a complete success, Mellendeck then accounted for the extra and thirteenth point by scooping up McFadden's blocked placement and running around right end to cross the goal line standing up.

Bucknell, with a line averaging almost 200 pounds, provided stubborn opposition throughout the game, and with the exception of Georgetown's two sudden scoring drives made a real battle of it. The Bisons rolled up plenty of ground between the two 20-yard stripes but were unable to click arother first down or a gain or even 5 yards might have resulted in a touchdown.

Bisons Move Down

In the third quarter Bucknell, taking advantage of a Georgetown fumble, moved all the way to the Hoyas' 3 before the alert Georgetown line smothered four running plays to end the threat.

Several other times in the second, the Bisons were making scoring gestures but always Georgetown's powerful line and a tight secondary defense smashed running plays and covered pass receivers so closely that Tomasetti often was unable to rid himself of the ball.

Statistics show that the game was much closer than the score. Georgetown outdowned the visitors only 9 to 7; gained 113 yards by rushing to their 70, and 141 yards by passing to their 35.

FIRST PERIOD

Georgetown started three second stringers, Frank Meglen at fullback, Elmer Moulin at right halfback and Al Matuza at center.

Georgetown won the toss and elected to receive, defending the west goal. There was a slight breeze blowing from the east, giving Bucknell an advantage in punting.

Bucknell took the kickoff on its own 35 and on first down Louis Tomasetti quick kicked to Joe Mellendeck on the G. U. 25, Mellendeck got back to the 42. The Hoyas started a spread formation attack which carried the heavier Bucknell line before it in a 58-yeard sustained drive to a touchdown. Two end runs by Mellendeck, a pass, Mellendeck to End Joe Daniels plus smart off-tackle smashing by Moulin moved the ball to the 6. And then Moulin catapulted over right tackle for the touchdown. Joe McFadden's placement, Mellendeck holding the ball, was good, but the point was nullified when Georgetown drew a 15-yard penalty for holding. From the 17, McFadden's second attempt was short.

Score: Georgetown, 6; Bucknell, 0.

SECOND PERIOD

There was no scoring in the second quarter, although Bucknell threatened several times. With Tomasetti and Klick ripping off lengthy gains through the Georgetown line, the Bisons moved to the Hoyas' 26 midway of the period, but an alert secondary smothered Tomasetti's passing attempts and the attack was stopped on the 20.

On another occasion Tomasetti took a Mellendeck punt on the dead run on the Bucknell 20 and with a dazzling burst of speed eluded five or six Georgetown players and continued down the side lines to the G. U. 41 where Joe Frank, only defender between him and the goal, threw him outside. There was at least four Bucknell blockers standing by, but none bothered Frank, who averted a certain touchdown by his half-block, half-tackle.

Georgetown, after its surprisingly easy march to a first-quarter score, was unable to penetrate the Bucknell line with any degree of success. Mellendeck got away for several nice gains on end runs and once was temporarily in the clear, only to be hauled down from behind.

Punting by Mellendeck, for Georgetown, and Tomasetti, for Bucknell, was excellent. Most of Mellendeck's low, end-over-end boots traveled out of bounds, thus preventing the elusive Tomasetti from getting loose in the open field.

Score: Georgetown, 6; Bucknell, 0.

THIRD PERIOD

The teams continued to battle on even terms, with frequent penalties preventing either from staging a sustained offensive.

Bucknell received the first real break of the game in the waning minutes of the period when Grieco's punt, apparently destined to go over the Georgetown goal line, took a weird bounce and was downed on the 5. Then Fullback Jim Castiglia, after breaking away for a 15-yard gain from a punt information, tried to lateral to Moulin and Rhodes recovered for Bucknell on the G. U. 20.

Tomasetti picked up a first down on the 7. But here the rugged Georgetown line arose as it has so often done this season when a foe threatened, and smeared four running plays, ending the danger on the G. U. In this goal-line stand, the play of Daniels and Castiglia was outstanding. Daniels threw Tomasetti for a 7-yard loss on an end run and that was the blow that broke Bucknell's spirit.

After one running play, Mellendeck kicked out of danger, Bucknell receiving the ball on the G. U. 35 as the quarter ended.

Score: Georgetown, 6; Bucknell, 0.

FOURTH PERIOD

Georgetown capitalized on a Bucknell fumble into its second touchdown with three minutes left of the quarter. Jones, a sub Bison halfback, fumbled on his own 31 and Francis (Red) Daly, only local boy in the Georgetown lineup recovered. After Moulin and Mellendeck corroborated in moving the ball to the 3, making a first down, Mellendeck faded back and shot a strike to Lou McFadden in the end zone for the score.

McFadden's placement try was blocked but Mellendeck scooped the ball up and behind fine blocking swung around right end to tally the point.

Final score: Georgetown, 13; Bucknell, 0.

Mellendeck Gains 8 Yards Against the Bisons

Joe Mellendeck, star of Georgetown's football team, picked up 8 yards for the Hoyas in this play in the first period, carrying the ball to the Bison 5-yard line. Georgetown scrode shortly afterward. Mellendeck is No. 52. The game was at Griffith Stadium.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Greenville, S. C., Nov. 4.—George Washington University's football forces face an uphill battle tomorrow when they clash with Clemson's roaring Tigers in an intersectional game here. Clemson, one of the South's surprise elevens this season, is rated an 8-to-5 favorite to hand the Colonials their second straight defeat.

A powerful, diversified attack and burly, fast forward wall brought Clemson victories over Presbyterian, Tulane, South Carolina and Wake Forest and is expected to overpower George Washington in much the same manner Mississippi employed last week.

Don Willis, all-Southern fullback, and Shifty Shad Bryant will head Clemson's attack with Willis in the lead, this human ram last week accounted for 103 of Clemson's 106 yards gain against Wake Forest. Another all-Southern choice, Capt. Charley Woods, leads the Tiger line at center.

George Washington's 30-man squad arrived in sound shape yesterday and worked out briefly, with Coach Bill Reinhart again emphasizing the aerial game he hopes will surprise Clemson tomorrow. Vic Sampson and Billy Richardson top the Colonial pitching corps which includes about five tossers. The outstanding G. W. ends, Bob Nowaskey and Sam Babich, will be the targets for most of these passes.

There will be two changes in the G. W. lineup. Tom Grady, sophomore, will start his second game at quarterback in place of big Frank Merka. Hal Schiering will be at right guard, relieving Guy Renzaglia, who is favoring an injured shoulder.

Hoyas' Frosh Beat Temple's

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 4.—Taking up where the Hoya varsity left off a week ago, Georgetown University freshmen walloped the Temple freshmen, 25 to 0, here today. The Hoya varsity beat Temple, 13 to 0, here last Friday.

The visiting yearlings scored in the five minutes when Dick Johnson went off tackle, deversed his field and scampered unmolested 40 yards to the goal line. Eddie Hopsic caught a pass from Jack Bulwin for th eextra point.

Temple elected to kick off instead of receiving. Jerry Basuglici took the ball on his own 30 and ran 65 yards for another touchdown. Bulwin failed to convert.

The Owl yearlings rallied to hold the visitors scoreless in the second period, but after the second half kickoff, the Hilltoppers scored again on a 51-yard forward pass with double lateral. Bulwin first passed 28 yards to Lemke. The latter lateraled to Falcone, who, in turn, tossed to Basuglici for the score. Bulwin again failed to kick the extra point.

Helen Dettweiler's 78 Wins Army-Navy Turkey Tourney

The first tourney at Army and Navy, and last of the season, produced a course record yesterday as Helen Dettweiler showed little respect for women's par over the Service Club layout with a fine 38-40, 78, to win low gross in the Turkey Invitation tournament sponsored by the host club. Miss Dettweiler broke the mark of the chairman for the day, Mrs. George Hussey, NBC winner, who had played the course in 80 strokes.

Miss Dettweiler's score was the feature of the day but the biggest bird went to the low net winner, Mrs. W. B. Vogel, Indian Spring, who shot her finest competitive round of the season, a 50-, 46—96, and deducted a 23 handicap for a low net of 73.

Play was over the regulation 18 holes, that Miss Wettweiler played, and over the first and third nines. Prizes over the former layout included low net, Mrs. P. L. Ransom, Army and Navy, 95-17, 78, and a five way tie for second low net that produced winners in the following order, via draw; Miss D. Fronheiser, Manor, 99-19, 80, Mrs. Jack Scott, unattached, 85-5, 80, Mrs. L. P. Haugen, Army and Navy, 101-21, 80, and Mrs. C. P. Medley, Indian Spring, 90-10, 80.

Over the first and third nines Washington Club Champion, Mrs. Wilda Martin, won low gross with a 49-42, 91, while net winners were, Mrs. Vogel, Mrs. P. N. Salavan, of the host club, 117-36, 77, and Mrs. H. Hagenbuckle, Washington, 94-15, 79.

Prizes or the non-District handicap players went to Mrs. J. R. Redman, Army and Navy, and Mrs. Jac. Stewart, with net 83s. A special nine-hole event was won by another of the many service club members that dotted the prize list, Mrs. E. T. King, with 50-10, 40.

High gross on the regulation 18 went to Mrs. F. Morrill, unattached, with 127, while Mrs. D. S. Patterson won high net with 117-18, 99.

Mrs. N. H. Callahan, Manor, won high gross on the 1-3 nines, with 135, while net went to Mrs. Charles Mead, Kenwood, 123-22, 101. She won in a draw from Mrs. O. M. Reed.

Miss Dettweiler putted well to record the score that is likely to stand for some time over the toughest layout. She played regulation golf on virtually every hole, had no three putt greens, and only one six, on the thirteenth where she pushed her second shot to the right of the green.

Prizes for the low net and gross won turkeys, 11 in all, while other awards were chickens and pies, and cakes.

Diffenbaugh, Peacock Win Manor Event

One of the finest pro-amateur scores of the season officially closed the District professional golfer's committee card yesterday as George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood mentor, and Roger Peacock, his former amateur protege from Indian Spring, paired a 64 at Manor for first place in the pro-am play by a two-shot margin.

Peacock was the individual star of the twosome as he cracked par by a pair of shots with a 68, and Diffenbaugh, who matched regulation figures with a 70, helped by four snots, with pars on 9 and 17 and a birdie on the twelfth where Peacock was over par with a five.

Cliff Spencer and Turner Smith, newly crowned Belle Haven Club champion, were second in the pro-amateur with a 66, going out in 34, with Smith bettering Spencer's score by a stroke, and coming back i n3 under 32, with Smith's brides aiding Spencer's par 9.

Four teams divided third-place money in the tourney with like scores of 67, including Al Houghton and two partners, P. W. Calfee and his brother, Billy Houghton. Levi Yoder, Washington Invitation champion, was the only amateur to finish in the money twice, scoring 67s with Diffenbaugh and Leo Walper as partners.

Diffenbaugh and Peacock were out in 33, two strokes better than regulation, with birdies on the fourth and sixth holes. They started back with four consecutive threes, birdies on 10, 12 and 13, and added a birdie on the long fifteenth for the 31 and 64.

Extra Point Can Be Tricky Play—Baugh

Often Confusing Play Explained Spectacular Score

By "Slingin' Sammy" Baugh,
Forward Passing Champion, National Football League.

No play is more confusing to football spectators than the try for point-after-touchdown if it is complicated by a blocked kick. In fact, I have played in games in which many of the players, themselves, were not positive when, and if, the ball is still in play.

SAMMY BAUGH.

But I have seen at least a half dozen points after touchdown scored despite the fact that kicks were blocked on the play. It can happen.

The point at which the kick was blocked decides the fate of the play. If the kick went across the scrimmage line before it was blocked, it is dead and the try for the point, of course, was a failure. But if the kick was blocked before it reached the scrimmage line, it is still in play.

Can Recover Ball

If a player on kicking team recovered that blocked kick which was batted down before it reached the scrimmage line, then he is entitled to run with it and if he can lug it across the goal line, the point still counts.

The defensive team, however, cannot advance the ball after blocking a kick on the try for point. When recovered by the defensive team, the ball is dead and the try-for point is ruled a failure.

One of the most spectacular plays I ever saw in a football game was during a try for the point after touchdown. A place-kick was being attempted and the center made a wild pass over the kicker's head. The ball rolled nearly to the 40-yard line and the defensive linemen who were rushing the kicker set out after it.

But the man who had been set to make the kick, beat the defensive players to the ball and picked it up on the dead run. Then he wheeled and threw a long pass over the goal line. It was a desperate chance, but one of his ends was down there and caught the pass, and that point after touchdown counted just as much as if he had booted it squarely through the posts.

There is apt to be confusion, too, among the spectators, when a play involves the goal posts. Any kicked ball from the field of play which strikes the posts or crossbar is a touchback unless on an attempt for a field goal the ball bounces through after striking either the posts or the crossbar.

Pro Angle

College football can have no situation wherein a ball kicked from the end zone strikes the goal posts, but the situation can arise in professional football because the posts are on the goal line. In our league, a defensive player recovering a ball kicked from behind the goal and striking the posts, scores a touchdown if he recovers it in the end zone. If an offensive player recovers the ball in the end zone and fails to advance it, it is ruled a safety.

The same applies in the case of a forward pass thrown from behind the goal line and which hits the posts.

It may not be generally known, either, that the offensive team is permitted to move the ball if the presence of the goal posts interferes with a line play. If a team discovers that its favorite off-tackle play is endangered by the fact that a post is blocking the usual path of the play, the quarterback may request permission of the referee to move the ball five yards to either side and it must be granted, according to the pro rules.

Hampden-Sydney Faces W.-M. Today

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hampden-Sydney, Va., Nov. 4.—Two Colonial colleges will add another chapter to a 43-year-old football rivalry when Hampden-Sydney meets William and Mary tomorrow at Williamsburg.

In the rivalry, which has been intermittent, Hampden-Sydney holds a 20-to-9 edge in victories. However, Tiger triumphs in recent years have been sparse.

The last was a 1936 upset.

Anticipating a heavy aerial attack, Coach Charles Bernier has been pointing up his Tiger pass defense this week. In other games this aerial thrusts have been telling against the Tigers.

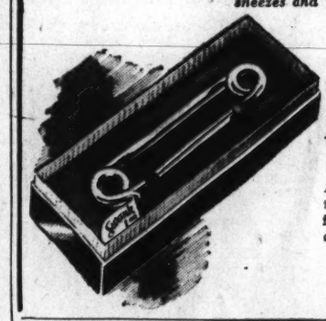
ARE YOU A *C.P.F.?

*Collar Pin Fiddler

The Fable of the Man Who Was Afraid to Sneeze!

Once upon a time there was a man who was afraid to have the pleasure of a hearty laugh or a good sneeze or even a satisfying yawn. He was afraid the spasmodic expansion of his neck would knock loose the collar pin holding his shirt points in place. He was afraid that his collar pin (an ordinary one, of course) would dangle from one end and let the other end stand out straight like a hunting dog's tail.

Moral: Now he wears one of these new Safe-T Pin collar holders by Swank and laughs and sneezes and yawns all he wants to.



A New Collar Pin by Swank

A bit heavier and larger than the usual pin. Perfect with the more rugged clothing worn today.

BAREFOOT COMFORT IN RUFF CREPES

Fall weather . . . rainy weather . . . winter weather . . . snowy weather . . . it makes no difference to "Ruff" Crepes. They, like Old Bruin and your Postman, take rough and tumble weather right in stride. "Ruffs" are made to take it and "don't burn up" on warmer days. If you've worn crepes this summer, you know the comfort they give. Now try a pair of these newer, tougher brothers for Fall and Winter Campus and Classroom wear. They're "honeys" at only five berries.

District, Virginia and Maryland Horses in Big New York Show

By Hotspur.

New York, Nov. 4.—Washington and its great surrounding horse country of Maryland and Virginia will be ably represented when the spotlight of national and metropolitan sporting life is focused upon the horse here at Madison Square Garden tomorrow. That the horses of the D. C. area will play a prominent part in the National Horse Show's nine-day program is conceded. They will vie for national and international honors against the elite of the horse world.

Gladiators could pack the coloseum of ancient Rome; bull fights in Madrid used to play to packed houses, our college stadiums display the S. R. O. signs on big game days; we have had our $1,000,000 one-night fight gates but for a show of 16 continuous performances over a nine-day period, the horse seems to be out in front as an attraction. Madison Square Garden's 15,000 seats are sold out for every performance of this, the greatest of horse show held in America. So, 500,000 spectators will pay tribute to the horse, which was supposed to become extinct with the advent of the automobile.

Gathered from 18 States and six nations, the entry list is composed of more than 250 hunters, jumpers, military chargers, saddle and harness horses and ponies. The program is one of the best ever arranged for this annual classic.

The feature of the show will be the international military team jumping. Five nations have sent their teams to compete against the United States Army team for army team jumping supremacy. The Canadian team, which won the trophy last year, lead by Capt. Stuart C. Bates, has eight superb jumpers entered. Ireland's Army team, always a threat and particularly so this year, has come from across the pond to worry the others in this event. They have just completed a continental tour successfully competing against the best French, German and English horses.

The Army Teams of Chile and Mexico, which performed so brilliantly at the Inter-American in Washington and made so many friends, will be hard to beat with such superior riders as Maj. Yanez of the former team and Capt. Villarreal of the latter. The Cuban Republic for the first time is entering its Army Team, which is reported to be composed of some of the best jumpers in the nation. Maj. Coles' United States Army team, which squeezed out a victory by the narrowest of margins in the Inter-American, will uphold the honors for the stars and stripes.

Fadeley on Hand

Among those from the D. C. section who will compete for civilian and jumping honors are Fenton Fadeley Jr's great open jumper, Lacquer Lady, which has performed at the "Garden" with success in previous shows and is well-favored to take ribbons in the jumping stakes; Margaret Cotter's spirited Rocksie, a consistent winner; Margaret Hill and her reliable Questionnaire; W. Carlton Eacho's handsome hunter Drill and Lieut. John R. Pugh, 111 of Fort Myer will show his Sir Conrad and Clipped Wings of the Fort Myer Horse Show Team.

There are many renowned hunters and jumpres from the Old Dominion that have vanned to New York for the show. Among the exhibitors are the celebrated Greenhalgh Stables with an outstanding string including Merry Prince, hunter champion of the Inter-American; Brown Bruin, Hunter's Choice and Protest. Mrs. Norman K. Toerge of Middleburg is showing her champion hunter, Champ, along with her Not So and Cheramy. Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Llangollen Stables will be represented by The Bear, Airy Sprite, Bon Diable and others. The Watt Hills' Quail Stables of Norfolk, Virginia, have entered their impressive Iny and Luck Buck. U. S. Randle will exhibit six of his top-notch string of jumpers and hunters headed by that winner of many championships, Sport Marvel, and the great open jumper Radle's Way.

Fort Myer Absent

A keen disappointment to the horse fans of the District of Columbia is the decision of the Fort Myer Horse Show team not to enter this year because of a silly ruling of the International Equestrian Federation under whose sanction the show is being run. The regulation prevents a bilitary officer from competing in an international event or the Olympic games if he has ever entered and shown in a class where professionals were riding.

The Fort Myer officers who compose the team had intended to enter the Open jumping stakes and other money classes hoping through winnings to finance a major portion of their expenses. There is no available fund with which the team can foot the bills except a comparatively small amount saved from former winnings and there is no Government appropriation for such a purpose. Trophies and ribbons do not pay feed bills, transportation and keep, so the Fort Myer team is regretfully passing up the show this year.

This will dash the hopes of thousands of admirers of Sandy, Billy Do and other sterling horses that make up a team that has by past performance proven its ability to take the measure of the best in the land.

Bill Bennings — At the Post

Selections at Pimlico.

Dear Al:

As a means of forgetting that he picked War Admiral, somebody seems to be having a controversy with himself over whether Seabiscuit defeated War Admiral by three or four lengths. He forgets that the greater the margin, the more he was wrong. However, the true distance will never be known. The Jones camera, used for the tight finishes failed to give a picture that showed Seabiscuit's nose on the wire and also War Admiral. All other pictures were taken at some angle. Despite anything printed to the contrary, track officials did not announce that Seabiscuit won by four lengths. As far as I'm concerned the whole thing reminds me of the Englishman visiting this country who boasted that his countrymen were great fighters. "Why, over home," he said, "we have the flag that our soldiers captured at Bunker Hill." The American replied, "Yes, but we have the hill." And so my dear Wrong Wilbur, you may have the length because I had the winner. And I didn't fall for that exclusive rumor that Mae West would ride War Admiral. It certainly is too bad that Wrong Wilbur, having been proven twice, now believes he has stumbled on something right—and he can't prove it. I hereby present him with one length of hot air. Let him take that up to the pay off window and see if he can get a $6.40 mutuel for it.

BILL.

First race—Orient Express, making his first start in two months, showed excellent form in New York with this company and gets high figure here. Cornwallis merits a chance on his early speed. Lady Orchid is dropping down and may find her level with these.

Second race—Wispy won over a better field at Laurel at this distance and should score if in action. Mama's Choice has not been able to threaten in New York but is the class of the field and may wake up. Dona Dulcin for the show.

Third race—Promoter could do no better than third to Persian Prince at Laurel but was a beaten favorite and didn't run his true race. Persian Prince figures to be right on the heels of the top one and should take second money. Valpuiseaux is dangerous.

Fourth race—Chief Onaway was outclassed running with Volitant but beat high-class juveniles at Laurel and has the edge. Rodin was a hot choice over a good field last outing but couldn't get close in the muddy going. Orchids next is not out of it. Our Mat might take it all.

Fifth race—Benjam was in a blanket finish behind Sun Egret in the Baltimore Autumn Handicap last Wednesday and is in a good spot with these second raters. Finance ran a fair race behind Mr. Canron at Laurel and looks next best. Sir Raleigh has class but may need a race.

Sixth race—Jacola had it all her own way with the stake program at Laurel and will be hard to beat today. Cravat will like the route and will be finishing fast in the stretch if fit. Esposa is dangerous in any field.

Seventh race—Genie Palatine won her last with this kind and looks like a repeater. Siam could surprise among these. Bewitched showed nothing last out but can better that effort.

Eighth race—Askaris was over his head running behind Bain Marie but finished a strong second to Bright Mark at Laurel. Gets the call here. The Runner was a winner at Havre de Grace and Laurel and gets a high rating. Seventh Inning raced well in New York.

Best bet—Benjam.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, Nov. 4.—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, matchmaker for the Seabiscuit-War Admiral race and a guiding hand in the Maryland Jockey Club's "stake-a-day" program, saw his cerise and white diamonds carried to victory in the third running of the Sagamore Handicap, a race named for Vanderbilt's spacious Maryland farm. Outdone, a daughter of Pompey, took down the $2,995 first money by a length and a half while paying a $37.60 mutuel. Morstep, from the Shandon Farm, gained second money by a length from Up the Creek, half of the heavily-played Milky Way Stable.

In the first running of this stake last year, Vanderbilt's Pit Bull ran a dead heat with Ral Parr's Legal Light.

A crowd of 9,000 saw eight juveniles compete at six furlongs over a fast track under threatening skies. Outdone turned in a time of 1:12 4-5, one-fifth better than a year ago.

The start was poor, with No Competition and Up the Creek, the Milky Way pair, suffering most. In fact, No Competition was never in serious competition, and his stablemate barely kept the show betters from being entirely "up the creek."

Under the handling of Silvio Coucci, who was winning his first stake in the East since his great saddle comeback, Outdone was in keen form. Coucci hustled her all the way and she shook off a variety of challenges before hooking up with Morsep in midstretch. At that point Coucci put on the pressure and the Pompey miss drew away.

Double Pays $104.40

Those who played a pair of fours in the daily double collected a $104.40 payoff when Mayro, a $16 shot, and War Streak, a $22.90 proposition, won the first and second races. Mayro, a daughter of Dark Hero, took the lead early and held on under Jockey Nick Wall's urging to win by a length and a half from In Memory. Yarn Sox was third in the field of a dozen cheap routers.

War Streak earned the second purse in the colors of John Kelly and at the expense of Zenana, a heavily played favorite. War Streak is a daughter of War Hero and came with a stretch rush to take a two-length decision. Licketysplit, the pacemaker, was a tiring third.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Rocky Run, trained by D. K. Kerr, of Washington, one-time gentleman rider, scored a thrilling photo finish victory in the day's steeplechase. Prattler, the public choice, barely failed to catch the veteran son of Rockminister, making his first start since 1934, when he ran second to Battleship, later winner of the Grand National. Argonaut was third in the field of six. High Mart fell and Jockey O. Helicus suffered bruises. Rocky Run was second choice, paying $6.90.

Brown Knight proved an old-fashioned long-shot winner in the fourth race, paying $56.70 while beating Slow Motion, another long shot, by a length. The favored Rissa was third in the field of nine. Jockey Hilton Dabson gave the winner a masterful ride and brought him from far back to be up in a whipping finish.

In a gang rush to the wire that involved four horses, A. C. Compton's Clingendaal came to the rescue of the favorite players and was the winner by a neck margin in the fifth. The gelding, making it two straight here, paid a mere $4.20. Infidox and Journey On were second and third, with Sir Jim James a close fourth.

Hall, Denner Added To Arena Program

The program for Monday night's boxing show at Turner's Arena was completed last night with the addition of three bouts. The card continues the "new faces" policy of Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn, recently inaugurated in the hope of uncovering a new sensation.

Abe Denner, lean, lithe New York scrapper, and Tommy Ricco, conquerer of Pancho Huerta last week, have been signed for one six-rounder; and Jerry Hall tangles with Toby Scroggins in another. Frankie Wills, a newcomer to these parts, tangles with George Esrick, of Baltimore, in the opening four-rounder.

The bouts support two eight-round engagements previously announced which find Jimmy Jones battling Sewell Hipps, and Tommy Rawson meeting Pete Galiano.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAYRO, $16.00, $5.50, $3.80; IN MEMORY, $3.90, $3.30; YARN SOX, $4.40.

MAYRO sprinted into lead at once, drew clear, withstood challenges of IN MEMORY and won opening a gap while under a drive. IN MEMORY, always forward factor, was raced for half, rallied when placed to drive, but weakened in final furlong. YARN SOX, slow to begin, worked way to contention, collided with DUEL in stretch run and closed gamely. ANHELATION dropped far out of it following break and gained gradually after a half. DUEL was within striking distance from start, moved up menacingly in early stretch, but weakened after bumping YARN SOX. AMERICAN BELLE improved position boldly along backstretch, but weakened thereafter. CHASE HIM was through after a half. APATHY had good early speed.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 2-year-olds, bred in Maryland. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 1:47. Off 1:54. Winner, J. Kelly's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAR STREAK, $22.90, $7.30, $6.20; ZENANA, $2.90, $2.40; LICKETYSPLIT, $5.20.

WAR STREAK, steadied along while close up to turn, responded when shaken up, took command and held away thereafter under drive. ZENANA, rated when lacking racing room in opening quarter, came with good energy when clear in stretch. LICKETYSPLIT was rushed to front at once, opened a good lead, but weakened badly in final stages. CODY was off slowly, gained steadily and closed with rush. MAROC, closest to pace to stretch, swerved out in final eighth. ANN MOWLEE was blocked by MAROC when making move to stretch. L'ENVOI had early speed.

Daily Double, Mayro and War Streak, Paid $104.40.

THIRD RACE—Two miles. Purse, $1,000. The Cockeysville Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:20. Off 2:21. Winner, Mrs. J. H. Whitney's ch. g. (8), by Rockminster—War News. Trained by D. K. Kerr. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 3:52 3-5. (15 jumps.)

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROCKY RUN, $6.90, $3.00, $2.20; PRATTLER, $2.20, $2.10; ARGONAUT, $2.50.

ROCKY RUN took command going to first fence, was steadied along while fencing fruitlessly and rallied when placed to drive to just last ahead of PRATTLER. The latter, restrained close to pacemaker, came with good courage when put to punishment after final fence and barely missed. ARGONAUT went forwardly for mile and tired gradually. LUCKITE could not reach contention, HIGH MART fell at fourth fence.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Garrett. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:50½. Off 2:56½. Winner, H. M. Babylon's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROWN KNIGHT, $56.70, $25.00, $5.40; SLOW MOTION, $24.80, $7.00; RISSA, $2.30.

BROWN KNIGHT, sent to outside for racing room leaving backstretch, responded to intermittent punishment and won going away. SLOW MOTION, steadied close to pace, went to front inside eighth pole when shaken up, but could not resist winner. RISSA was rushed to front under hard riding and weakened in final drive. SUNTIME, shuffled back soon after break, hung after reaching serious contention. BILLMAR had early speed. The others were outrun.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,500. The Arlington Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:19½. Off 3:24. Winner, A. C. Compton's b. g. (4), by Pharamond II—Bossie. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 1:45 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLINGENDAAL, $4.10, $3.70, $2.70; INFIDOX, $13.40, $6.30; JOURNEY ON, $3.80.

CLINGENDAAL, rated while shaking off early bid of TEMPESTUOUS, drew clear, but had to withstand severe drive to hold INFIDOX safe. The latter, forwardly placed from start, responded willingly to drive, but hung in final 50 yards. JOURNEY ON, carried wide at first turn and forced to race on outside to stretch, came willingly in closing test. HIGH VELOCITY showed a good effort. FLAT LANCE dropped far out of it and came with rush on inside at close. TEMPESTUOUS stopped. SCABBARD had early speed.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,500 added. The Sagamore Handicap. For 2-year-olds. Start poor from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:51½. Off 3:54. Winner, A. G. Vanderbilt's b. f. (2), by Pompey—Sweep Out. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Net value to winner, $2,995; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $125. Time, 1:12 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OUTDONE, $37.60, $16.90, $4.70; MORSTEP, $12.50, $4.00; UP THE CREEK (entry), $2.10.

OUTDONE, nicely handled, raced MARRIAGE into defeat and withstood challenge of MORSTEP to draw out. MORSTEP, within striking distance from break, moved up boldly in midstretch, but was held safe when she hung in final sixteenth. UP THE CREEK, last away, worked way to contention on inside to close with rush. MARRIAGE was hard used to get to front and weakened at end. BUD'S BELL had early speed. DOUBLE BACK broke well, but dropped back gradually when kept close to rail. NO COMPETITION, off poorly, failed to rally at any stage. METAMORPHOSIS was outrun.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:00. Off 4:24½. Winner, Mrs. E. Denemark's b. f. (3), by Stefan Nerva. Trained by W. Booth. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:45.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VASSAR, $22.50, $11.60, $7.40; LIGHT CHATTER, $9.20, $4.90; SAN ANTIOCA, $6.20.

VASSAR, steadied along while closest to pace of ICY WIND for half, took command when put to drive, drew out and was tiring at end. LIGHT CHATTER, in tight quarters leaving backstretch, came with rush in closing stages. SAN ANTIOCA, outrun in early stages, came with bold rush in closing quarter. DOPLAY was forced wide going to backstretch, moved up menacingly, but weakened through stretch. IZAR ZURI was forward factor to midstretch and faltered gradually. MY ELSIE closed gamely. ICY WIND and MATTAPONY stopped badly.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:49½. Off 4:51½. Winner, W. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MASTER LAD, $10.70, $5.60, $4.50; THE QUEEN, $10.10, $6.70; INVERMARK, $6.60.

MASTER LAD, steadied along while within striking distance, came around horses with rush approaching stretch to take command and withstood final bid of THE QUEEN. The latter, allowed to settle into best stride, came with good energy at close. INVERMARK gained with rush in final quarter. WHICHAWAY closed a gap. ENDYMION was used up running with KERMAY and stopped. KERMAY set pace under hustling tactics and quit. GYRAL went well for three-quarters. BRIGHT MARK raced on inside and faltered after half. CAREFUL MISS went well placed in early stages and stopped.

Cotton Lower December 8.42

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Increased December liquidation and hedge selling depressed cotton today. March sold off from 8.44 to 8.35 and finished at the low, with final quotations 3 to 8 points net lower.

The market opened with late months again relatively steady on foreign buying. More pressure in the near months, however, discouraged longs and the lists turned heavier. December liquidation was more pronounced. Further private crop estimates pointing to larger production figures than a month ago disturbed sentiment somewhat.

Futures Price Ranges

	High.	Low.	Last.
December	8.51	8.42	8.42-43
January	8.42	8.35	8.35
March	8.44	8.35	8.35

Cottonseed Oil

Cottonseed oil was firmer today on covering and buying by houses with Southern connections promoted by the rally in grains, firmness of hogs and higher tallow prices. The market closed 8 to 9 points net higher, with sales of 147 contracts. December closed 7.51; January, 7.57; March, 7.87; May, 7.77.

Telephone Gains

New York, Nov. 4, (AP).—Telephone Operating Companies of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. in eight countries reported a gain of more than 53,000 telephones in the first nine months of the year, compared with a gain of about 47,000 in the same period last year.

Wheat Prices Climb With Export Hopes

Government at Work
Liverpool Advances
Closings at Top

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Wheat values in Chicago climbed a full cent a bushel today, and ended at the day's top level.

Indications that the United States Government has hopes of soon achieving enlarged export sales of wheat did much to lift prices. Considerable buying of futures here was credited against sales to the Government.

Some stimulus came also from late cables that reported purchasing of wheat futures at Liverpool by previous speculative sellers. Announcement that a Washington Administration agent had sailed for Europe received special notice in connection with talk that a direct wheat selling program on the part of the American Government might be developed.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅛ to 1 cent higher, compared with yesterday's finish, December 64⅛@⅜, May 66⅛@¼, corn ¾@1⅛ up, Dec. 45¼@⅛, May 48⅛@¾, oats unchanged to ⅛ advance, rye showing ⅜@¾ jump, and provisions a bulge of 12 to 20 cents.

Traders Await Results of Elections

New York, Nov. 4.—With interest concentrated more on the elections than the still improving business picture, traders on the long side made only half-hearted attempts today to rally the list and stocks generally finished irregularly lower. Oils, rail equipments and motors were firm; rails and merchandising issues were off 0.23 point at the finish. Transfers on the big board expanded to 1,196,240 shares.

The election topic took up a good deal of space in brokers' letter and was the favorite topic in board rooms. Ordinarily, a let down in volume and failure of prices to move definitely might arouse some expectations of a reaction. At present, however, the concensus in Wall street is that buying orders are probably being held in abeyance temporarily pending the outcome of the vote. Many traders are reluctant to take a position until it is definitely known to what extent a swing to the right will develop. Present indications point to important conservative gains and if these expectations are realized, the financial district believes there will be increased activity on the upside when the election results are known.

While there was plenty of good news today in the form of further increase in automobile assemblies, another advance in steel output at Youngtown and reports of betterment in many lines of domestic trade, other items may have contributed to the market's rather ragged showing. Rails, for example, were soft on announcements by managements that the 15 per cent wage-cut proposal has been shelved. Such action, however, could not have been unforeseen in view of the President's fact-finding committee report, announced a week ago. High grade carrier stocks were weaker than the speculative kind. Losses in the group generally were fairly substantial, New York Central and Pennsylvania, both among the day's most active issues, giving up large fractions.

Columbia Gas Active

Columbia Gas led the list with turnover of 37,100 shares at a net discount of ⅞ point on the day, the filing of an anti-trust suit by the Government against the company inducing some liquidation by timid holders, in the opinion of brokers. General Motors and Chrysler led other motors a trifle higher on publication of Ward's favorable estimate on production for the week. Steel common closed at 64⅛ for a loss of ⅜ and Bethlehem dropped back more than a point in the face of a forecast for another advance in ingot production and mill activity next week. Westinghouse gave up 1½ points.

Closing levels in virtually all groups were a lot lower at the close than at the high point for the day, some of the popular issues showing spreads of 1 to 3 points, with 49 individual stocks recording new heights.

Firmness in aviations attended news of additional orders for some of the leading manufacturing companies in the industry. In the copper division, Anaconda and Kennecott continued to droop but Phelps Dodge was at its high for the year about 10 points ahead of Anaconda.

Speculative Bonds Favored

Listed bond trends were mostly upward today, with dealers somewhat mystified by the cheerful atmosphere in the face of the uncertain equities market. United States Government bonds again drifted slightly lower, while best grade corporate bonds hovered around previous levels. But speculative rails were in favor, and gains also predominated in most other special groups. In the foreign section Japanese and German bonds remained in demand, with issues in both groups forging into high territory for the year. Turnover was $8,630,000.

The decline in Treasury bonds has been persistent, but relates to nothing more than the anticipated large borrowing operation of next month. Losses today ranged from 1-32 to 8-32 point. Guaranteed issues of the farm and home corporations also were soft. Highest rated utility, railroad and industrial stocks showed only small fractional changes in either direction.

Secondary railroad bonds showed numerous small gains, with a sprinkling of losses also in evidence. The advances were far more numerous, and appeared to reflect the opinion that "something" will eventually be done for the carriers. Default rails were more uncertain than the interest-payers. Allegheny Corporation issues advanced sharply, while utility holding bonds were a little better. Local traction bonds suffered a relapse after their long upswing.

German bonds showed gains to 5 points in a fairly active market, while Japanese issues moved up 1 to 2 points. Italian bonds were in modest demand. Latin American default issues were dull and irregular. High grade foreigns were firm.

Woolworth Sales Dip Under Year Ago

New York, Nov. 4, (AP).—F. W. Woolworth Co. today reported sales for October of $26,774,093, a decline of .05 of 1 per cent from the $26,788,148 volume of the same month in 1937.

Sales for the ten months aggregated $228,620,231 compared with $232,450,172 in the same months last year, a decline of 1.65 per cent.

Foreign Markets

London, Nov. 4.—British government securities continued upward in the stock market today and the transatlantic group also advanced. Industrials remained steady with a good demand for copper and other metals, and oils, rubbers and mining stocks were quiet and unaltered. Foreign liens were fractionally up.

Paris.—Trading in the bourse was quiet today with fractional changes in most departments. Rentes finished 65 centimes down to 195 higher and Bank of France was unchanged. Royal Dutch reacted 35 francs while Suez Canal moved up 20.

Liverpool.—Nearby cotton futures sold lower today on easier spot basis and limited trade demand. There was some local support in sympathy with firm eastern markets and Bombay buying. Final prices were 3 points higher to 3 down. Wheat futures rallied sharply in late dealings, on reports of hail storms in Argentina, small weekly Australian shipments and covering in October. The market was ½d to 1¼d net higher at the finish.

War Crisis Drives Billion Gold to U. S.

134 Million Last Week
U. S. Holds 14 Billion
60% of World's Total

By the Associated Press.

The Commerce Department announced yesterday that gold imports since the beginning of the Czechoslovakian crisis in September have passed $1,000,000,000. The deluge of foreign gold sent by war-frightened Europeans totaled $1,004,780,188 for the eight weeks ended October 28. They sought safety for their wealth by buying dollar credits.

Last week's share was $134,420,403, and marked a resumption of heavy gold shipments, which had relaxed somewhat in the preceding week.

The unprecedented gold movements boosted the United States Treasury's holdings of the metal to $14,071,098,436—more than any nation ever owned and equal to about 60 per cent of all the monetary gold in the world.

Bulk From England

Last week's shipments included $89,617,173 from England, $24,933,083 from France, $7,170,201 from the Netherlands, $4,501,835 from Canada and $5,739,664 from Japan.

One result of the continued gold flow was a weakness in European currencies, which Secretary Morgenthau admitted caused him concern. Cheap dollar values for foreign currencies make American goods more expensive aboard and might hamper this country's foreign trade. However, officials maintain the situation is not "serious."

Last week's silver imports amounted to $5,753,715, including $4,300,000 from China, $478,376 from Mexico and $221,392 from Canada.

Episcopal Faces V.E.S.

Alumni to Attend Game at 2:30 At Alexandria

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Nov. 4.—More than 200 Episcopal High School alumni are expected to return to their alma mater tomorrow for the annual Homecoming Day program, featured by the varsity football scrap with Virginia Episcopal High School, of Lynchburg, at 2:30.

Defeated only by the Hill School eleven, of Pottstown, Pa., the Maroons will be seeking their fifth victory of the season, and their second win in competition for the State prep school title. They have previously disposed of Randolph-Macon, of Front Royal, and need only victories over V. E. S. and Woodberry Forest to clinch the championship for the third straight year.

The Lynchburg eleven is out of the running for the State title, having dropped two decisions to Virginia prep elevens. Despite their two losses, the Battling Bishops boast a strong, well-balanced eleven, and, in view of the natural rivalry existing betwen the two schools, the Maroons will rate not better than even choice to win.

Episcopal's starting line-up will include Ben Dulany and Tom Todd, ends; Capt. Charlie Barrett and Porter, tackles; Buster Robertson and Izard, guards; Billy Suhling, center; "Stumpy" Craighill, quarterback; "Red" Bradfield and John Young, halfbacks, and Stanley Woodward, fullback.

Junior elevens of Central High share the spotlight with George Washington High School cripders tomorrow night, when junior varsity and 138-pound teams of the two schools clash in a double-header at the C. W. Stadium at 8 o'clock. The twin bill marks the lone night appearance of the year for the local junior teams.

In order to prevent any lull in the program, G. W. officials have arranged the games on a "clear-as-you-go" system and play will be uninterrupted from start to finish. Following completion of the first half of the junior varsity game, the 138-pounders will take the field and play two quarters before the Jayvees return to complete their game. The final half of the midget tilt will wind up the program, eliminating the lost time between halves.

The George Washington Jayvees will be seeking their second victory in three starts, having split even in a pair of contests with the Fredericksburg Miners and the National Training School varsity, respectively, while the local 128-pound eleven is undefeated in two starts. The Jayvees are coached by Willie Renner, former Maryland U. star, while George Tyler, of Emory and Henry College, tutors the midget eleven.

Another Sunday twin bill will be offered at the Municipal Stadium when the Virginia Athletic Club's junior and unlimited elevens play host to a pair of rivals from across the Potomac line. The junior eleven meets the undefeated Mount Rainier Ramblers at 1 o'clock, while the independents oppose the Naval Receiving Station at 3 o'clock.

Fork Union Wins, 19 to 7

Beat Young Tigers Scores Early

Special Dispatch to The Post

Fork Union, Va., Nov. 4.—Fork Union Military Academy defeated Hampden-Sydney Freshmen on their home field, 19 to 7, today.

Fork Union made its first touchdown on the last play of the opening quarter when Smith passed from the 15-yard line to McElwee in the end zone. McElwee missed the extra point.

Fork Union scored again in the third quarter after McElwee passed to Smith for a 22-yard gain. McElwee then took it over in three attempts. McElwee's placement was blocked by Hay.

For Union's last touchdown came late in the third quarter after several attempts to gain from the 20-yard line. McElwee passed to Gadek, who took the ball on the 2-yard line and then dived over for a score. McElwee made the extra point by placement.

Hampden-Sydney took advantage of a fumble deep in Fork Union's territory. After a series of plays Tasker passed to Hay in the end zone. Holmes kicked a placement which was good.

Both Fork Union and Hampden-Sydney lines played stellar ball throughout. Hay, Younce and Holmes were outstanding for Hampden-Sydney, while Smith, McElwee, W. L. Johnson and Thomas stood out for Fork Union.

Massanutten Beats Staunton, 31 to 0

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., Nov. 4.—Scoring in every period, Massanutten Military Academy, J. V., swamped Staunton Military Academy; J. V., 31 to 0 here this afternoon. In the opening period the Cadets marched down the field losing the ball only once to score the initial touchdown.

Marks, made a spectacular 98-yard run when he took the pigskin on M. M. A., 2-yard line and dashed down the field for a tally. Three times, Massanutten intercepted Staunton passes and ran the ball back to scoring territory. Seltman made two runs of over 40 yards each for touchdowns.

The fine punting of Burnstein featured the play of the losers.

Orange Defeats Severn, 47-7

Woodberry Forest, Va., Nov. 4—The Woodberry Forest eleven defeated Severn School of Maryland here today, 47 to 7. The game was not a minute old when the home team recovered a fumble deep in the visitors' territory and scored on a pass from Covington to Glenn. Hornor added the extra point from placement.

This lead was short lived, however, as the Marylanders recovered a Woodberry fumble within scoring distance and drove to a touchdown on a run by Wattles. Burnstein knotted the count with a neat dropkick.

From this point on the Orange team gained at will, and at half time the score stood 27 to 7 in their favor. CoCapt. Harris Covington, of Woodberry, turned in the flashiest run of the day when he returned a punt behind nice blocking for 65 yards and a touchdown.

The fine punting of Burnstein featured the play of the losers.

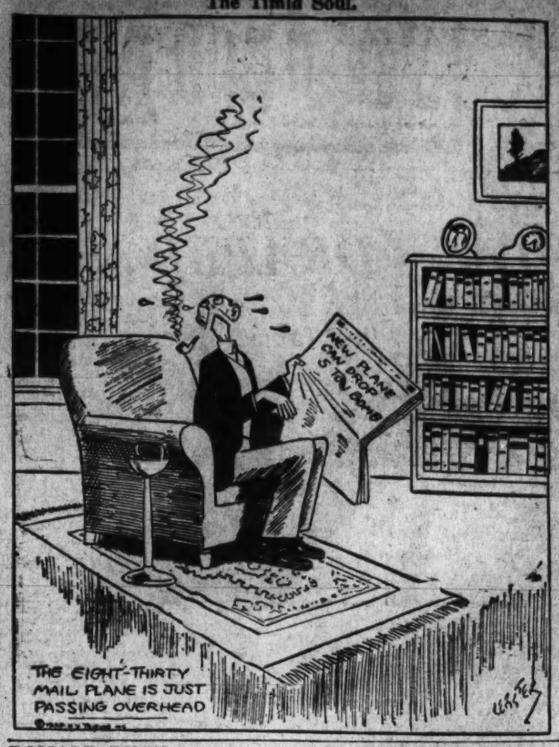
The Timid Soul.



Bob Burns Says—

Why are comedians always makin' jokes about the slow trains in Arkansas? The same main lines and the same trains that run across the country go through my State, too.

One comedian said that when he went through the State, he was annoyed by a beggar with a cork leg runnin' alongside the train sellin' lead pencils through the windows. This ain't true. I know this beggar personally and I happen to know that when he's beggin', he always wears a wooden leg.

Fire Sweeping One-Fourth of West Virginia

Blaze Fighters Give Up Seek to Save Villages Rain Is Only Hope

By the Associated Press.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 4.—Approximately 100 West Virginia forest fires roared out of control tonight and 2,000 men quit trying to stop them and concentrated their efforts on saving villages and isolated buildings in the fire zones. One fourth of West Virginia's total area was spotted with uncontrolled fires.

State forester, D. B. Griffin, issued this bulletin:

"Scores of calls to the Conservation Commission reporting danger to cities, towns, camps and human life have been received today.

"Automobile traffic has been made hazardous by the heavy pall of smoke. The situation is becoming worse.

"All persons are urged to stay out of the woods. Unless the situation improves in the next 24 hours, it may be necessary to suspend all hunting."

Winds at 40 miles an hour whipped the flames while the men on the fire lines looked for promised rain as their only hope.

Blaze Near Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 4.—A forest fire, blamed on hunters, swept over a large acreage of Piney Mountain near Mount Savage before being subdued. Over a score of men were called to battle the blaze until after nightfall.

Damage in Harlan

Harlan, Ky., Nov. 4 (AP).—Forest fires were raging over a large section of Harlan County today destroying thousands of acres of virgin timber land. Approximately 1,100 CCC enrollees, WPA workers and volunteers were fighting the flames fanned by a strong wind.

H. W. Berckman, district forester, estimated 7,500 acres of timberland had been destroyed already and placed the loss at about $200,000.

Indiana Forests Afire

Indianapolis, Nov. 4 (AP).—Five big forest fires blazed in southern Indiana timber today and youths from CCC camps battled to bring them under control.

A Weather Bureau prediction of rain was welcomed. Fires in the last three weeks have burned over 20,000 acres of forest lands.

Rains Aid Fight

Atlanta, Nov. 4 (AP).—The weather joined hands with firefighters and farmers today in combating forest blazes and breaking the South's drought as general rains moved eastward from the Mississippi Valley.

The Weather Bureau predicted the rain would reach Georgia tonight and the Carolinas tomorrow. That would cover most of the sections where hundreds of forest fires have caused considerable damage throughout the deep South.

The rain already has reached most of Alabama. Other cities reporting rain included Vicksburg, New Orleans, Memphis, Miami, Galveston, Jacksonville and Savannah.

G. O. P. Accused Of 'Misrule' In Maryland

A Montgomery County Democratic leader last night predicted the forthcoming election would mark the end of "Republican misrule" in Maryland, while Republican candidates for the board of Commissioners promised their election would mark the start of a business-like county government.

J. Bond Smith, publicity co-chairman of the county's United Democratic Organization, declared "it is evident from one end of old Montgomery to the other that its people, fooled once in 1934, both in the State and in the County, by Republican promises, will not be fooled again."

He said support for the Democratic ticket would restore to the State and County" sound efficient, economical and progressive government which we in Maryland have enjoyed in the past under Democratic rule, and which we have learned to expect as part of our rightful heritage."

He listed as evidence of misrule, "junking of school programs, stagnation of road construction, failure to extend the merit system to the police force and to eliminate unnecessary jobs.

Walter Johnson and Capt. Chester Wells, Republican candidates for the board, called for business-like government in radio interviews with Earl W. Shinn, county campaign manager for the Republican Party.

Johnson said "if I am elected commissioner of this county for the next four years I expect to do what is right for everybody." He emphasized that he was not tied up with any faction or party in the county.

Capt. Wells, retired naval officer, warned that "as a people we are getting entirely away from those principles which have made us great in the eyes of the world."

"I think that if every county government in these United States was operated on a business basis for the benefit of all the people and not the few who hold office, our fuondation would be right, and all this trouble we are having over national policies would be completely eliminated."

Paul Sheman praised the qualifications of Wilson L. Townsend for the post of associate judge in the Circuit Court for Montgomery and Frederick counties.

Rogers Oil Scion, Whose Showgirl Friend Was Slain, Found Secretly Wed to Dancer

Married Year Ago 'Has Fine Old Family' 'Got the Sense I Lack'

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 4.—Henry Huddleston Rogers, jr., son of the late H. H. Rogers, multi-millionnaire Standard Oil executive, has been married secretly to Diana Taylor, a dancer, for more than a year.

"I'm not saying when or where we were married," he said today at his Bedford Village home, "Because I don't want to drag her through the mire I've been in."

"She's too decent," he continued. "She comes of a fine old New England family—has a swell mother. They've got the sense I lack."

"When Evelyn died, I thought I'd die, too," he said, referring to Evelyn Hoey, the showgirl who was shot to death in Rogers' Pennsylvania farmhuose in 1935. "But I didn't know Diana then."

A coroner's jury found that Miss Hoey "died at the hands of a person or persons unknown."

Rogers was married previously to Virginia Lincoln, of Cleveland, in 1928. They were divorced in 1937.

Mrs. Rogers is a tall, slender blonde with brown eyes and a quiet manner. She smilingly affirmed their secret marriage.

"But I guess most of the people in the village know it by this time," she said.

Rogers said a portrait of his great-great-grandfather, Henry Huddleston, of Bedford, Mass., hanging over the mantel in the living room of his white-pillared Colonial farmhouse, was "all I've had so far out of my father's $21,000,000 will."

"But I've managed to live," he said. "Three years ago I started with $10,000 in Wall street. Now I've got $60,000. Before I was 29, I made half a million which I invested, not to be touched until I'm 42. I'm 34 now."

Rogers said his wife does the housework and he helps with the cooking—"and we have a darn good time," he added.

3 Posting Signs Acquitted, No More Guilty Than Nice

Not until Gov. Nice, Attorney General O'Conor, Senator Tydings and other high-ranking officials of Maryland are arrested, will a verdict of guilty for posting signs along the public highways of Montgomery County be handed down, Judge Harold C. Smith, of the Rockville Police Court, said yesterday.

Judge Smith made these remarks in acquitting J. Richard Peacock and Francis Leizear, both of Silver Spring. They were arrested in Bethesda Wednesday by three State forest wardens after they had posted placards announcing a sham battle to be staged by a local American Legion Post on Armistice Eve.

The judge pointed out that he had seen signs urging the election of numerous State officials posted on poles, trees and fences in all parts of the county, but as yet had not heard of any of these officials being arrested.

Dr. H. A. Smith to Bring 'Gallery' to Albright

Dr. Augustine Smith, of Boston University, will be at Albright Memorial Evangelical Church tomorrow for the eleventh anniversary of the dedication of Albright Church, bringing hundreds of color prints representing the finest pictures in the art galleries of Europe and America.

Dr. Smith will conduct the worship service at 11 a. m. with the Rev. George E. Schnabel preaching. At 2 p. m. tours through the art gallery will begin. At 3 there will be a school of religious music conducted by Dr. Smith for all choir members and others interested in church music. At 7:45 p. m. there will be a pageant presented with 100 participating, "The Christus."

4 in 'Syndicate' Admit Killing Kidnaped Man

Body Was Cremated No Corpus Delicti May Escape Chair

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 4.—Four members of an alleged "crime syndicate," facing possible death sentences, pleaded not guilty today to three kidnaping indictments accusing them of a series of abductions in whcih they allegedly demanded a total of $425,000 ransom and killed Arthur Fried, young White Plains, N. Y., business man.

Assistant District Attorney Rosenblum said the prisoners confessed they took Fried from his home last December 4, held him captive in the basement of the Ukrainian Hall on the Lower East Side, killed him and cremated his body in a furnace.

Rosenblum said the penalty for conviction in the Fried case would be death in the electric chair or 20 years to life in prison.

The four men were named as William Jacknis, 27, former WPA playground instructor; Demetrius Gula, 30; John Virga, 34, and Joseph Stephen Sacoda, 28, a Sing Sing convict.

Gula and Sacoda were charged with the Fried kidnaping, and all four were accused of kidnaping Norman Miller, 19, college student, and Benjamin Farber, of Brooklyn.

Rosenblum said the gang demanded $200,000 for the return of Miller, but finally accepted $13,000, and sought $25,000 for Farber, but released him for $1,900.

Gula's father, Dennis, 52, was held in $50,000 bail as a material witness. Jack Werner, 53, described as bartender at the hall, was held in $25,000, and bail of $10,000 each was fixed for a man who described himself as a Greek Catholic priest and another bartender.

Rosenblum suggested the suspects might have invented the cremation story in the hope of escaping the death penalty through failure of the state to establish the corpus delicti.

Five Accused By Informers Here Released

Five persons went free without trial yesterday because the witnesses against them were colored police informers.

District Attorney Pine ordered nolle prossed cases against Catherine Douglas, liquor violation; George D. Governor, numbers; William B. Fletcher and Harry F. Robinson, liquor law violation, and Jones B. Montgomery, gaming.

Assistant District Attorney Fihelly was investigating two other cases in which informers were involved.

The officials felt that informers in the cases, William Browning and James R. Fallin, who has been indicted for bribery and conspiracy, were so discredited that the defendants should not be tried.
